FIGHTING CONTINUES WEST OF MADRID

Rebels Announce "Smashing" of Loyalist Offensive, While Government Says It Has Made Additional Gains.

INTENSE AERIAL ACTIVITY REPORTED

Insurgent Communique Declares Gen. Miaja Has Lost 3000 Men, With 6000 Wounded, in Effort to Lift Siege.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, July 10.—Severe fighting between loyalist and insurgent forces continued today west of Madrid, in the Government drive to lift the siege of Gen. Francisco Franco's rebel army.

Conflicting reports of the progress of the battle were issued by headquarters on each side, the insurgents declaring the government's offensive had been smashed, with 3000 soldiers killed, and the defense ministry reporting continued success.

The Government communique reported intense aerial activity without the loss of a single Government airplane.

The defense ministry said the insurgents were "severely broken up" by a surprise attack in the vicinity of the Extremadura highway, southwest of Madrid, by which "our lines were advanced slightly."

All enemy counter-attacks were frustrated, the ministry said, and the lines surrounding Villaneuva del Pardillo (about 14 miles west and slightly north of Madrid) were tightened up further."

"It added that fighting continued northwest of the capital, in the Guadarrama Mountains, "where our army is maneuvering."

Capture of Castle.

An earlier announcement reported the capture of the Castle of Albarracin in the town of the same name, 118 miles east of Madrid in the Teruel sector.

Other strategic points in the town were under Government artillery fire.

A quantity of war material was captured and insurgent losses were described as heavy, with 30 bodies picked up from the field of battle, while Government losses were "very small."

Boadilla del Monte, about halfway between Madrid and Villanueva del Pardillo, was bombed three times within 12 minutes while pursuit planes raked enemy trenches and concentrations.

Air raids against the town continued in the afternoon. Two insurgent anti-aircraft guns opened fire, the communique said, "but without any result."

Throughout the region near Madrid bombers and pursuit planes carried out their operations, the communique said, ranging as far as Espinar, 40 miles west-southwest of the capital.

Airfields Bombed.

Two airfields northeast of Espinar were bombed, the Government reported. During another raid on an Escalona airdrome, five insurgent pursuit planes of a line of 20 standing on the field, took off "to escape from the air attack."

This and all other raids during the day, the communique said, were carried out "without a single loss for the loyal aviation."

"Enemy aviation, which was concentrated in large numbers around Madrid yesterday, displayed some activity but ineffectively as their action was countered admirably by our airplanes and anti-aircraft batteries.

"Our anti-aircraft guns forced the enemy aviation to fly very high and their fire was often dispersed . . .

"Since July 6 our anti-aircraft batteries have brought down five enemy planes. A flyer in the service of the rebels died yesterday in one of our military hospitals. The flyer displayed the insignia of a Captain in the German army."

"Only the Beginning."

The Government's general staff at Valencia declared tonight the offensive west and southwest of Madrid was "only the beginning of something much more important."

"The attacks on Brunete and Villanueva de la Canada, in which we reached insurgent artillery positions within a few hours, are but a

McCARRAN CALLS COURT BILL STEP TOWARD DICTATORSHIP, URGES LABOR TO JOIN FIGHT

Senator Says Scheme May Be "Entering Wedge" as in Germany and Italy—Advises Workers to Save Rights.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Senator McCarran (Dem.), Nevada, told the Senate today the administration's bill to remake the Supreme Court might prove "the entering wedge" for a dictatorship like those which wiped out the rights of labor in Germany and Italy.

Speaking against the advice of his physician, the Nevadan appealed to organized labor to join quickly in the "crusade" to prevent enlargement of the Supreme Court. He said: "Come to us now, because it might be too late tomorrow."

He carried on the assault against the compromise judiciary bill before galleries packed to the doors. Although Senators are reluctant to attend Saturday sessions, the floor was well filled.

Nevadan Speaks Three Hours.

The debate was free from parliamentary wrangles. McCarran, his gray curls damp with perspiration, talked for three hours with few interruptions save those from his fellow Democrats who oppose the bill.

He told his associates that doctors had warned him against strenuous debate, but that he believed "the cause in which I have enlisted is worthy of any man's life."

"We have constituted a battalion of death to the end that the Constitution may prevail," he said. "We should not by one jot nor tittle change the fundamental organization of our Government at this time," he said.

"The hour is coming when you and I will be called upon to say whether the seeds of destruction being sowed in this Government today from afar will take root and bloom to a fruition that will poison the atmosphere of the whole world."

Power in Other Hands.

As he left the chamber late in the afternoon, McCarran said Senators Bailey (Dem.), North Carolina, and O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, would "carry on the fight" next week.

McCarran, long a pillar of the New Deal, said President Roosevelt "has no intention of becoming a dictator," but, he argued, passage of the court bill would set a precedent which some later President might use to "destroy" both the judicial and legislative arms of the Government.

Pointing to the growth of dictatorships abroad, he declared that the people of many nations "are praying, imploring that this republic will hold itself steady."

Says Congress Was to Blame.

McCarran blamed Congress for the fact that some New Deal measures had been invalidated by the court, arguing that "if 72 lawyers in the Senate can't write a constitutional law, how do you expect nine old men to find it constitutional?"

Instead of changing the court, he contended, Congress should "do its own work."

"We could write a new N R A within the spirit and letter of the Constitution, and the court of last appeal would sustain it," he asserted.

In response to a question from Senator Austin (Rep.), Vermont, McCarran said there was no difference in principle between the original court plan and the substitute proposal.

"Addressing this fire at its inception," he continued, "if it had been stopped in Germany, labor would have the right to organize there today."

He called the plan merely an "entering wedge," and said it would result in appointment of a Justice to sit "side by side with the Chief Justice," whose record of public service he defended vigorously.

"Who will be Chief Justice?" he asked. "What will become of the Chief Justice?

"We Will Destroy the Court."

"By the passage of this bill, we will destroy the Supreme Court of the United States. We will destroy the confidence in which it rests in the hearts of the people—and that's all the army that it has behind its mandates."

Choosing his words with calm deliberation, the Nevada Senator defied the administration to throw him out of the party for his opposition to its court program.

By Mandate of Farley.

He asserted that published remarks of Senator Logan (Dem.), Kentucky, has sounded as if he sought "to read Senator Wheeler and those who follow him out of the Democratic party."

"I don't believe the hour has come when members of our own party can dare to cast us off—to say that because you exercise your own judgment you are about to be read out of the Democratic party."

McCarran described as "a terrible mistake" the widely-publicized statement of Postmaster-General Farley that when McCarran sought something for his State he might have

ROOSEVELT ON CRUISE BUT TAKES WORK ALONG

Rayburn, House Floor Leader, and Chairman Landis of SEC Are Guests.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—President Roosevelt left the White House today for a short "working" holiday aboard the presidential yacht Potomac on Chesapeake Bay.

The presence of Representative Rayburn, House floor leader, as one of his guests prompted some observers to express the belief that they intended to discuss a proposal for prolonged recesses of the House during Senate debate of the Supreme Court bill. Also with the President were James M. Landis, soon to retire as chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission, and Mrs. Landis, and members of the White House staff.

Roosevelt motored 35 miles to Annapolis i nan open automobile to board the Potomac.

With the President went a large accumulation of White House mail and four voluminous reports on which he is expected to work during his cruise. He planned to return to Washington late Sunday.

Before leaving the White House, the President signed several bills, including an authorization for Government participation in the New York World's Fair in 1939.

PHOTOGRAPHS EARTHQUAKE RUINS, KILLED BY VOLCANO

San Franciscan Leaves Ship in New Britain During Disaster and Is Trapped.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Wireless reports here today indicated love of amateur photography lured Radio Operator V. M. Costner of the Matson steamship Golden Bear to death in a volcanic eruption at Rabaul, New Britain.

The Golden Bear was due at Honolulu tonight with full accounts of the catastrophe, reported to have killed 500 persons May 28 and 29. The only word received by Mrs. Costner here was in a wireless message from Australia: "Costner lost."

The Golden Bear was at Rabaul when a terrific tidal wave crashed in May 28. Twenty-eight hours of earthquakes followed.

Costner went ashore to take pictures. Then the three great volcanoes surrounding the harbor began spewing pumice, volcanic debris and poisonous gases.

Costner was cut off. The Golden Bear, forced to put out to sea, spent hours picking up refugees in the surf.

Forty-eight hours later, when it was possible again to approach the city buried a foot deep in pumice, the Golden Bear resumed its search for Costner, but found no trace of him.

PLOT TO DESTROY SOVIET ARMY FOOD SUPPLY ALLEGED

Newspaper Says Three Agricultural Leaders Under Arrest Were German-Japanese Agents.

OTHERS IN FAR EAST UNDER SUSPICION

Prisoners Said to Have Given Only Plows to One Farm, Harrows to Another, Rakes to Third.

MOSCOW, July 10.—A plot to destroy the food base of the Soviet Union's Far Eastern army has been discovered at Khabarovsk, with the arrest of three principal executives of the Agricultural Department of the Far Eastern District, according to the Pacific Ocean Star, Khabarovsk newspaper, which arrived here today.

The men, Chemanov, Khavkin and Vasilivich, were denounced in the paper for having deliberately sabotaged the district's state and collective farms into "an extremely serious situation." They were called "rotten traitors to their fatherland and German - Japanese Fascist agents."

Sowed Dissatisfaction.

Besides conspiring to cut off the Far Eastern army's food supplies, they were charged with bargaining with Japanese for the surrender of the entire district, meanwhile busily sowing dissatisfaction among Siberian collective farmers.

The plot was said to have been discovered by a recent conference of state farm and traction station executives, who had been summoned to discuss means of remedying this spring's unsatisfactory sowing record. The district's sowing plan was only 85 per cent completed by June 25 as a result of the wrecking activities, and much of last year's grain, it was reported, was left on the fields to rot under the snow.

More arrests were promised among agricultural workers as a result of the conference's disclosures. It was impossible, according to the Pacific Ocean Star, for the assistants of these men not to have known the criminal character of the instructions they carried out.

Details of Charges.

According to the charges, the wrecking was concentrated in the planning and financing of agricultural activities. The paper said:

"They did all that was possible to destroy crop rotation, mechanization and colonization. They also sabotaged the timely preparation of the soil for seed, disorganized the seed supply and left State farms and tractor stations without spare parts for the machines."

Chemanov especially was assailed for his theory that the Far Eastern District did not need any more machinery. Vareik, now Communist Party secretary in the Far Eastern District, was quoted as being against this theory, and it was pointed out that the arrested men tried to defend their theory by distributing only plows to one farm, only harrows to another and only hay-rakes to a third.

Their holding back of funds was said to have left almost half the district's tractor stations in serious financial straits.

ITALIAN PRIEST WHO FAKED MIRACLE EXCOMMUNICATED

Called Attention to Purported Drops of Blood Issuing From Communion Wafers.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, July 10. — The Holy Office tonight convicted Raffaele Codipietro, parish priest of Paganico Sabine, diocese of Rieti, of "sacrilege" and excommunicated him on charges of faking a miracle during communion in his church July 26, 1936.

At the time of the alleged miracle Codipietro called the attention of his impressed congregation to what were purported to be drops of blood issuing from communion wafers, it was stated.

The Holy Office subjected the priest to a painstaking examination, the results of which were referred to Pope Pius.

Prelates said tonight's sentence meant the priest was unfrocked, cast out of the church and, as a civilian, will be denied the Catholic marriage sacrament.

WOMAN'S MURDER LINKED TO TRIAL OF MANNY STREWL

VICTIM BEATEN WITH HAND MIRROR

Companion in Drunken Stupor at Foot of Bed — Police Seek Tie-up With Kidnaping Case.

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., July 10.—Investigation of the killing of a woman in a hotel tonight led indirectly to a phase of the Government trial of Manning Strewl and seven other men held on charges growing out of the kidnaping of John J. O'Connell Jr. of Albany.

Deputy Police Chief John Haller said that in the clothing of a man found in a stupor in the woman's room was a receipt for a Newark traffic fine paid by an "Albert Handel,' and among the woman's effects was a bankbook issued to Grace Handel, of West New York, N. J.

Haller said detectives were checking to determine whether "Handel" was the Albert Handel living in West New York, who was arrested by Department of Justice agents several weeks ago and removed to Binghamton, N. Y., to become an "unwilling" Government witness in the kidnaping trial.

The victim, about 35 years of age, and the man still were unidentified several hours after a hotel chambermaid entered the room tonight to find the woman beaten to death on a bed and her companion unconscious nearby.

Man Had Been Drinking.

The man, who had apparently been drinking heavily, was taken to City Hospital and police said he would be held on a technical charge. A guard was placed at his bedside.

The woman's face was bruised. She had been beaten to death with a hand mirror found near her bed, said Dr. Carmine Bernardinelli, assistant County Medical Examiner. Her nude body was partly covered by a sheet.

The pair took the room two weeks ago, police said, registering as "Mr. and Mrs. Casper of Kingston, N. Y." Police sought to establish their identity through a lease found in the man's clothing and bank books among the woman's effects.

The killing was discovered at 8:40 p. m., but Dr. Bernardinelli said the woman had been dead more than nine hours.

Three Bank Books in Room.

There were three bank books in the room, each made out in a different name. They were described as follows:

One issued to Grace Handel, by the First National Bank of West New York.

Another issued to Gertrude Miller by the Dime Savings Bank, Brooklyn. It showed a balance of $3254. The last notation in it was a withdrawal of $350 on June 11.

A third, made out to Grace Casper by the Central Savings Bank, New York. It was issued in October, 1936. The savings were listed as $85.60.

Police said empty liquor bottles and glasses were strewn about the room.

In the clothing of the man was a two-year-lease for an apartment at a Bronx address, issued to "James H. Durkin."

Returning to the room at 6:30 a. m. today, the pair placed several orders with a restaurant by telephone.

Carl Solarich, switchboard operator, said he heard a man say during the last call, at 7:15 a. m.: "I guess I killed her this time."

In the room were found a set of costumes, indicating the woman might have been an actress.

"James H. Durkin" in No Way Involved, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—A man who said he was "James H. Durkin, an officer of the Corn Exchange Bank," said tonight that he was in no way involved in the fatal beating of a woman in a Newark (N. J.) hotel.

Told that a man found in the room had an apartment lease made out in Durkin's name and that the listed address was 6025 Delafield avenue, the Bronx, the man said "Yes, I'm Durkin, but I know absolutely nothing about it."

NEWSPAPER GUILD STRIKE AT DECATUR

Group Quits at Two Papers Under Same Management, Starts Picketing.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DECATUR, Ill., July 10.—Editorial employes of the Herald and the Review, jointly owned morning and evening newspaper here, went on strike at 7:30 o'clock this evening, following failure of the Decatur Newspaper Guild to reach an agreement with the newspaper management on wages, hours and working conditions.

Julius Klyman of St. Louis, an international vice-president of the Guild and one of the negotiators, said 20 of the 28 editorial workers of the two papers had walked out and started picketing the plant.

Immediate cause for calling the strike, Klyman said, was the unwillingness of the newspaper to sign an agreement not to discharge any of the present employes except for insubordination or misconduct. The newspaper would sign the agreement only if the Guild, in turn, would agree to drop wage and hour negotiations for one year.

Offer by Management.

The management had made a bulletin board announcement Thursday, following negotiations, offering a $25-a-week minimum for the first year of employment and $40 minimum after five years, and granting a six-day, 40-hour week.

Klyman said the Guild had not been fully satisfied with this offer and desired to negotiate further.

Some doubt as to whether the Herald's Sunday edition would appear was expressed by H. C. Schaub, president of the Decatur Newspapers, Inc., publishers of the two dailies here as well as of East St. Louis and Urbana, Ill.

Press Room Crew Awaits Word.

"Most of the copy for the Sunday paper was in the office by 7:45, almost two hours before the walkout,' he said, "and we have a full staff in our composing room. However, members of the press room crew, all of whom are bound by a union contract with us, mingled with the Guild pickets just before they were due to go to work. They told us that they were waiting for word from the officers of their international before reporting for duty."

Schaub said that a meeting of the directors of the publishing firm had been called for tomorrow to decide whether an attempt would be made to publish on Monday. He challenged Klyman's statement that 20 editorial employes had joined in the strike, saying that the papers could count on at least 15 of their 30 men.

Schaub also announced that the paper's telephone trunk line and its Associated Press wire had been crippled outside the plant. Telephone company employes said that it would be impossible to restore service tonight, but there was no explanation of the break-down.

"The Guild presented a list of 21 demands, ranging from a minimum salary of $60 a week for men of five years' experience to a five day-40 hour week and severance pay

COMPOSER GERSHWIN IS CRITICALLY ILL

Appeal Made for Specialist to Fly to California to Operate for Brain Tumor.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 10.—George Gershwin, noted composer, was reported critically ill, suffering from a brain tumor, at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital here tonight.

He had been under treatment in the hospital, but was released a few days ago. As he grew worse today, several brain specialists were summoned and an attempt made to reach Dr. Walter Dandy, Baltimore surgeon, reported cruising on Chesapeake Bay. A request was made for him to fly here to operate on Gershwin.

Members of the family were at the hospital tonight. Attendants said there appeared to be little hope for Gershwin's recovery.

Gershwin and his brother, Ira Gershwin, came here from New York City two weeks ago to write songs for a movie. His first illness was regarded as a nervous breakdown, but examination later disclosed the brain tumor.

Gershwin was born in New York, Sept. 26, 1898. He first attracted attention as a composer with "Half Past Eight" in 1919 and the following year scored hits with George White's Scandals.

His compositions range from light, popular tunes to his "Rhapsody in Blue," which opened the doors of many concert halls to jazz as an authentic musical medium.

Gershwin also composed the music for "Porgy and Bess," an operatic version of DuBose Heyward's play "Porgy."

Among his popular compositions are the scores of "Of Thee I Sing," a musical comedy that satirized Washington's political life and won the 1932 Pulitzer prize.

Coast Guard Transmits Appeal to Dr. Dandy.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 10. — The Coast Guard relayed a request to Dr. Walter Dandy tonight that he fly to California to operate on George Gershwin.

Dr. Dandy was reached by telephone at Cambridge, Md., after he had landed from the Maryland State Yacht du Pont on which he was cruising in Chesapeake Bay with Gov. Nice.

9 KILLED, 30 HURT IN TRAIN WRECK AT LE MANS, FRANCE

Locomotive Telescopes Two Rear Coaches of Train Slowed Down for Switch.

By the Associated Press.

LE MANS, France, July 10.—Nine persons were killed tonight, railroad officials said, when two trains collided in the yards of this city. Between 25 and 30 persons were injured, several gravely.

The accident occurred when a train leaving Le Mans for Rennes, directly west, overtook a train bound for Mezidon, to the north, as the latter was slowed down for a switch.

Two cars at the rear of the Mezidon train were crushed.

SEARCH FOR MISS EARHART NEARING END, LITTLE HOPE

MAY SEND OUT ALL 62 MACHINES

After This Inspection of South Pacific, Hunt for Aviatrix and Navigator Is Expected to Be Concluded.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, July 10.—Holding little hope for rescue of Amelia Earhart, navy flyers from the battleship Colorado scanned the Phoenix Islands today while the aircraft carrier Lexington with 300 aviators hurried on for a "last chance" survey of the South Pacific area where she disappeared eight days ago.

Without clews and virtually without hope that the woman flyer and her navigator, Frederick J. Noonan, would be found, the Colorado's airmen pointed their three planes toward the main Phoenix group, tiny bits of land.

Naval searchers expressed the opinion the island survey would exhaust the best chances for a rescue. They said the hunt probably would turn to open water southeast of Howland tomorrow.

The Lexington planned to reach the search area by Monday morning and naval authorities said it might send out its entire fleet of 62 fighting planes.

Capable of covering 60,000 square miles daily, this great air armada was expected to bring the hunt to a swift conclusion.

The Colorado's aviators, after three days of flying over the island group designated as the most likely place to search, undertook a broad survey of four or five small dots of reef-encircled land southeast of Howland Island.

Why Search Was Shifted.

The great hunt first embraced 104,000 square miles of sea north and west of Howland but switched to the Phoenix area on the belief of naval authorities that wind conditions and unidentified radio signals pointed to the south and east of Howland.

With the Colorado's planes detailed to survey Enderbury, Phoenix, Birnie and Sydney islands of the Phoenix group, shore patrols of the minesweeper Swan headed for Canton Island, largest of the archipelago.

Backing up these combined efforts, the powerful Lexington moved swiftly southward for the last phase of the most extensive search ever made for a flyer.

Naval authorities said they had reached no conclusion as to how long the Lexington would stay, although Rear Admiral O. G. Murfin, directing the hunt from here, blocked out a 265,000 square mile area to be covered. Theoretically the Lexington's planes could scan such an area in about four and one-half days.

Vessel Soon to Need Fuel.

Officers said the Colorado would have to start back to Hawaii Tuesday for fuel. It was ordered to get in contact and refuel the Swan during the day and also to supply the three destroyers accompanying the Lexington.

The fuel supply of the Coast Guard cutter Itasca, obtained earlier in the week from the Colorado, was deemed sufficient to last until July 18. The Itasca has been in the search from the start.

With a refueling today, the Swan was considered able to keep going without further supply contacts until July 20.

Naval authorities said the Lexington carried 10,000 extra gallons of gasolir but did not report the total supply. In the early stages of the search they said it could keep its planes in the air three days.

Putnam Still Has Hope; Returns to North Hollywood Home.

ITALY TO RUSH ARMS TO REBELS IF FRANCE ACTS

Newspaper La Stampa Says Naval Convoys Will Be Used When Paris Government Ends Patrol.

NEW REPORTS OF A HITLER SURPRISE

Diplomats Take Talk of Austrian Move Seriously —Schuschnigg Rushes to Vienna.

By JOHN T. WHITAKER.

ROME, July 10. — Anticipating France's decision to lift the arms traffic control on her Spanish frontier, the newspaper "La Stampa" of Turin declares that in this event Italy will rush arms with naval convoys to aid Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgent Fascist forces.

"If Paris assumes this full and flagrant responsibility for the complete collapse of non-intervention" says this newspaper, "Italy will take full liberty of action again to send arms to the nationalists (insurgents) and will escort to them in convoy units ready to repel any attacks."

This bold declaration in "La Stampa" a most responsible newspaper in a country where no journal dares speak without government approval, gives a hint of the gravity of the tension between the Rome-Berlin axis on the one hand and the British-French entente on the other. The most cautious diplomats in Rome are frankly alarmed at the possibility that Adolf Hitler may create a diversion in Austria comparable to the diversion he created by marching into the Rhineland in March, 1936, at a moment when Fascism's effort in Ethiopia was equally critical.

Report Taken Seriously.

Sensational reports of Nazi designs on Austria have been heard before, but diplomats resident here indicate that the reports are taken seriously by their embassies in Berlin and Vienna, and add that Austria's Chancellor, Kurt Von Schuschnigg is rushing back to Vienna on urgent summons from Dr. Guido Schmidt, his Foreign Minister.

As long as a week ago, one heard confident predictions among Italian Fascists that an incident or surprise would come to relieve the strain Italy and Germany has felt ever since Great Britain and France rejected their proposals for recognition of Franco's belligerency, or, to put it more simply, declined to agree with the Fascists that Franco should win the Spanish war.

The rapidity with which French quarters acted, whether the various ambassadors in Berlin decided rightly or wrongly that the Nazis planned a diversion in Austria, recalls the similar way in which Franco broadcast a report in mid-January that Germany had designs on Spanish Morocco.

The reports mobilized entente opposition and brought an immediate denial from Germany, and, although the correspondent of the London Times had found German air bases already established in Spanish Morocco, the Germans made no effort to occupy these zones Anti-German quarters believe that the publicity given Franco obviated an occupation which Germany otherwise would have carried out with the same success which has marked her de facto violations of the Versailles treaty.

FRENCH THREATEN TO ACT TUESDAY

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 10.—France brought pressure on Germany and Italy today to get them to return to full co-operation in the European effort to keep the Spanish war from spreading.

It formally notified fellow members of the 27-nation non-intervention committee it would suspend international control of the Spanish frontier Tuesday unless similar control were restored on the Portuguese-Spanish border.

This control is designed to prevent the flow of arms and men to the warring Spanish factions.

The announcement did not mean France would open its frontier immediately to that flow, for officials said the border would remain closed against it, but that French authorities, instead of international control officials, would maintain the barrier.

Meaning of Threat.

Diplomats read in the French notification a direct intimation to Rome and Berlin that unless they helped to restore the control cordon around Spain, on sea and on land, France would carry out previous threats to return to "normal commercial relations" with the Spanish Government.

That would have an important bearing on the civil war, since the French Government is friendly to the Madrid-Valencia Government and could become an important source of supply for war materials.

International border control went into effect in both France and Portugal late in March. Recently the Portuguese withdrew facilities for the British control agents who operated along the border by special agreement between Lisbon and London.

Portugal has been friendly to the Spanish insurgents and its territory adjoins that part of Spain under insurgent control.

British Hope to Frame New Proposal by Tuesday.

LONDON, July 10. — British statesmen worked today to formulate a new plan to isolate the Spanish war, hoping to complete it by Tuesday.

Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, and the Earl of Plymouth, British chairman of the 27-nation non-intervention committee, were seeking the new formula, in fulfillment of virtual pledges made in the committee's two meetings yesterday. They were working in secrecy.

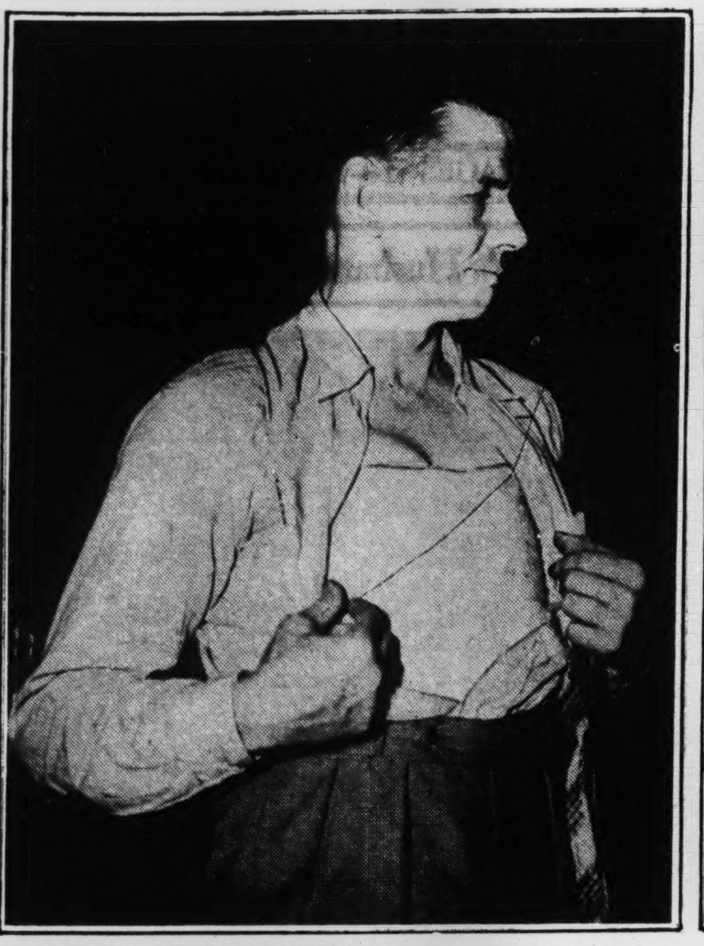
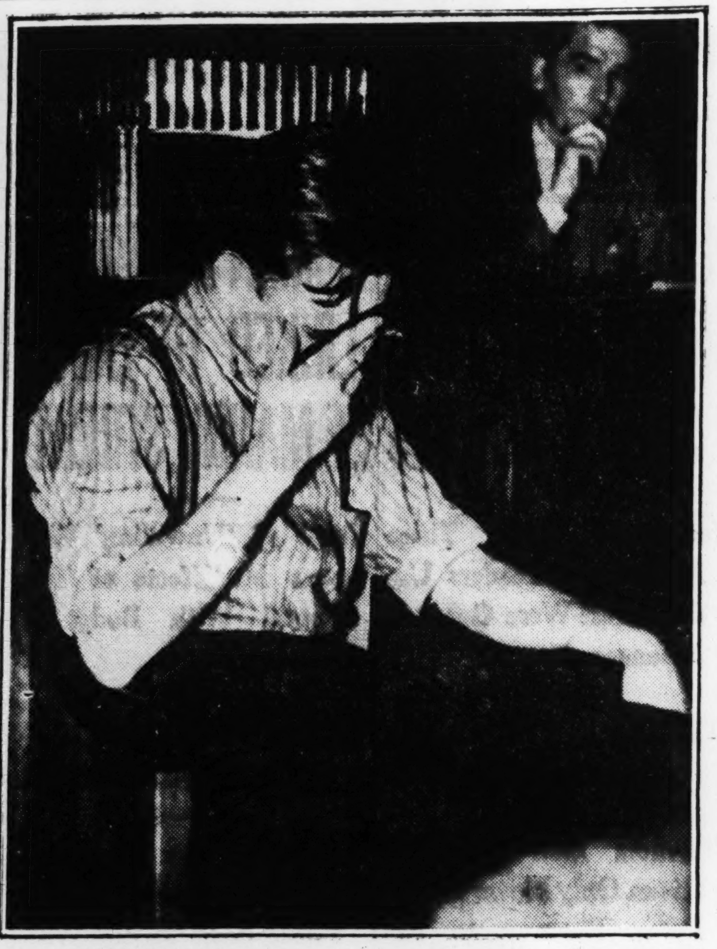
Labor Board Gets Factual Evidence at Ford Hearing



WILLIAM H. MERRIWEATHER, union man, displays the plaster cast he is still wearing as a result of the beating he received May 26. He was a witness at the Detroit hearing.



RALPH DUNHAM, another victim of the clash, collapses in the witness chair when asked to describe his injuries. He has been in the hospital most of the time since he was beaten.

GERMANY AND FRANCE SIGN TWO-YEAR COMMERCIAL PACT

Agreement Wipes Out Troublesome Trade Barriers and Opens Way for Exposition Spending.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 10.—A two-year commercial and financial treaty between Germany and France was signed today by French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos and Johannes Graf von Welczeck, German Ambassador to France.

The agreement, part of which already was in force, wipes out one of Europe's most troublesome trade barriers, a spokesman for the French Ministry of Commerce said.

It opens the way for German tourists to bring about $4,632,000 to the Paris Exposition under a provision relaxing the Reich's exchange restrictions.

ROOSEVELTS OFF FOR EUROPE

Franklin Jr. and Bride Leave From Quebec on Honeymoon.

QUEBEC, Que., July 10.—Franklin Delano Roosevelt Jr., and his bride, the former Ethel du Pont, embarked on the Liner Empress of Britain this afternoon for a honeymoon in Europe.

They boarded the vessel 15 minutes before sailing time to shouts of a throng of spectators. They arrived here last night from Campobello Island, N. B.

POPE EXAMINED BY DOCTOR

Since Physician's Visit, He Has Taken Frequent Walks.

By the Associated Press.

CASTEL GANDOLFO Italy, July 10.—It was disclosed today that Pope Pius submitted to examination by an "eminent" physician for three hours June 28. Since then the Pope has taken frequent walks through the gardens of his summer palace.

The Pope was gravely ill last winter and had walked little since.

Pauline Frederick "Very Ill."

By the Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 10.—Pauline Frederick, stage and former screen star, was described as "very ill" today by Dr. Daniel D. Young. Miss Frederick, playing here, was overcome by heat, which aggravated an asthmatic condition. Dr. Young said the actress, in a hotel here, declined hospital treatment.

M'CARRAN CALLS COURT BILL STEP TO DICTATORSHIP

"a different viewpoint" on the court bill.

"When Farley said that, he wrote my death warrant and he knew it," he said. "I may today be delivering my valedictory by reason of the mandate of Mr. Farley."

A Campaign Promise.

In the last campaign, McCarran said, the Democratic National Committee begged him to visit a number of "doubtful" states to assure the voters that the administration had no intention of impairing the Supreme Court.

Utah miners "trudged through snow up to their knees," he added, to hear him promise that the Democratic party would never "tear down any of the three branches of government."

Wheeler interrupted to remark that "no reputable lawyer would accept a seat on the court under this bill, when he knows that by so doing he would humiliate Justice Brandeis or Chief Justice Hughes or any of the others."

Special Class of Judges.

Senator Burke (Dem.), Nebraska, another opposition leader, predicted that Justices seated under such legislation would "belong to a special class of Judges, suspect from the start in the eyes of the public and other members of the court."

As McCarran concluded his talk, leaders of both sides estimated privately that the opposition held a scant lead. A poll showed 40 against the measure, 39 openly for it, and 17 uncommitted.

The compromise judiciary bill was criticised by the United States Chamber of Commerce as "no less objectionable than the original proposal."

Plans for House Recess If Senate Filibusters on Court Bill.

Speaker Bankhead said today exploratory plans were afoot to permit the House to recess indefinitely if the Senate settled down for a protracted filibuster against the Supreme Court bills.

The possibility of an agreement under which the House would transact no business for perhaps two weeks arose yesterday when Majority Leader Rayburn (Dem.), Texas, told the House he had been discussing three-day recesses with Bankhead and Minority Leader Snell (Rep.), New York. The speaker made it plain today, however, that more extended recesses were being considered.

Under the rules, neither House nor Senate may recess for more than three consecutive legislative days without the consent of the other but Bankhead said a concurrent resolution would be introduced to obtain that consent "if conditions warrant it."

The House is well advanced with its routine work. Leaders said it might be possible to start such a recess within 10 days or two weeks.

FIGHTING STILL IS IN PROGRESS WEST OF MADRID mild beginning to activities which will not stop from now on," a communique said.

It added that "the military balance . . . is swinging slowly but surely to our side."

The government's Director-General of Security proposed that bullfights and greyhound racing be suspended throughout Government-held territory, so that the money spent on them could be used to fight the insurgents. Music halls and dance halls recently were closed.

REBELS REPORT OFFENSIVE HALTED

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, French-Spanish Frontier, July 10.—Insurgent field commanders reported tonight that the Government offensive against the Madrid siege was smashed.

The Government army, they said, "suffered a great disaster."

Official communiques said that 3000 of Gen. Jose Miaja's troops were killed and 6000 wounded when insurgents counter-attacked near Brunete, about 15 miles west of Madrid.

The Government army was reported in flight from Brunete and in a desperate plight on the Usera front, on Madrid's southwestern edge, after an attack by 20,000 troops collapsed.

Gen. Francisco Franco, insurgent commander, threw the whole weight of his aerial forces into the drive to smash the loyalist offensive, begun five days ago. He sent 150 trimotored bombing planes and 150 pursuit ships into the air.

His lieutenants said the tank-protected Government army was suffering heavy losses under a terrific bombardment from the sky.

Latest insurgent dispatches from the front northwest of besieged Madrid corrobrated Government reports of advances but declared that the territory taken was "of no strategic importance."

Insurgent planes flew over Santander, objective of Gen. Franco's Basque campaign in northwestern Spain, and dropped leaflets demanding that the city "surrender or take the consequences."

Franco's troops were said to have been reinforced by two newly recruited brigades of Carlists.

Packing House Workers Vote to Boycott East St. Louis Journal.

The Swift & Co. local of the United Packing House Workers' Union, an affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization, has voted to boycott the East St. Louis Journal until the Decatur (Ill.) Herald, under the same ownership, signs an agreement with the Newspaper Guild there. The action was taken Friday night when negotiations were still in progress between the newspaper and the guild.

Angelo Verdu, C I O organizer, said the Swift union had a membership of 1200 out of 1400 eligible employes, and that the boycott action was decided on as a means of applying pressure on the newspaper management.

GUESTS QUIT HOTELS IN PARIS CAFE STRIKE

Mobile Guards and Gendarmes Fight "Garcons" as Walkout Spreads Through City.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 10. — Violence accompanied tonight the spread of a strike by hotel, restaurant and cafe workers demanding an unconditional five-day week.

A dozen of the largest Paris hotels and more than 100 cafes and restaurants were strike-bound after committees of three affiliated unions called workers out in all establishments not on a 40-hour, five-day week.

One big boulevard hotel said most of its guests left when the strike was declared. Its American guests, however, preferred to stay, even though they had to prepare their own meals and make up their own rooms. Kitchens were turned over to them and the hotel managerial staff left fresh linen at their doors.

Mobile Guards Called Out.

One big Champs Elysee cafe kept running despite the strike, staffed by its manager and hat check girl. Sidewalk tables were deserted and its few patrons sat discreetly inside.

Most of the disorders were created when roving squadrons of strikers tried to call out employes of places that remained open although listed on the strike roll.

Emergency police squads restored order in one cafe after an employe was injured and Mobile Guards were stationed near the large hotels and cafe-lined boulevards.

Twenty strikers smashed bottles and hurled chairs in a restaurant in the financial district until gendarmes ejected them. They returned with reinforcements but police blocked the entrances.

Employers declared they would try to offset the strike by shutting their doors rather than modify the general accord of July 2, reached through Government mediation, which established an approximate five and a half day week.

Exposition Not Affected.

Premier Camille Chautemps, who has tried to reconcile the workers and employers, planned to continue arbitration conferences, it was announced.

Restaurants in foreign pavilions of the Paris Exposition were not affected by the walkout but those operating under French licenses were closed.

Many proprietors donned white jackets and waited on tables themselves. Some smaller establishments, where members of the family are the only help, found the strike a windfall.

OLD AGE PENSIONERS TO GET JULY CHECKS NEXT WEEK

Increase of 20,000 Persons on Rolls Cause of Mailing Delay.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 10.—Old age pensioners who haven't received their July checks will get them by the latter part of next week, Miss Reba E. Choate, assistant old-age commissioner, said today.

This month checks have been made out in the old age assistance office, under the new social security setup. This work formerly was done by the State Auditor's force.

Establishing the new routine and making out 73,000 checks, about 20,000 of them to persons not previously on the rolls, has thrown the mailing several days behind the usual schedule.

"When the new system is fully in operation all checks should be out not later than the fifth of each month," Miss Choate said.

"The lists are made up by counties, and pensioners in each county will get their money at the same time each month."

HORNER VETOES ILLINOIS BILL TO RESTRICT PAROLE BOARD

Rules Wider Power for Judges Over Sentences Would Nullify Indeterminate Term Law.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 10. — Gov. Horner vetoed tonight the Loesch bill designed to restrict the power of the State Parole Board by giving trial judges greater authority in sentencing prisoners.

"This would practically nullify the indeterminate sentence law," the Governor said in a long message defending the parole board.

Drafted by a committee headed by Frank J. Loesch, veteran chairman of the Chicago Crime Commission, the bill would have permitted judges to fix maximum and minimum sentences within the present limits of the indeterminate sentence law, under which the parole board determines when a prisoner is to be released.

Gov. Horner declared the parole board is in a better position than trial judges to determine when a prisoner is sufficiently punished, and that the Loesch bill "does not even establish a uniform system of punishment."

ARABS TO RALLY ALL ISLAM AGAINST DIVIDING PALESTINE

Moslems of India, Egypt and Syria Will Be Asked to Put Pressure on Great Britain.

By the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, July 10.—Arab leaders decided today to use diplomacy in their fight against the partition of Palestine as recommended by the British Royal Commission.

Arabs said a campaign will be carried on by the entire Moslem population; Eastern Moslems will be asked to exert pressure upon Great Britain to revoke the whole plan and return Palestine to the Arabs.

These sources said Syria, Egypt, India and the Lebanon District would be chief supporters in opposing partitioning of Palestine into separate Jewish and Arab states and a British mandate territory.

"If Britain had given the Arabs more of Galilee and the Jews the southern section, we would have been partially satisfied, but this cutting Arabs from their holy places and leaving them the unwatered hills make us determined not to accept the plan," one Arab said.

"If the plane is on land," he said, "as reasonably believable evidence indicates, it will be found. If at sea, and having survived the landing, it could float indefinitely.

"The chances? I do not know. I can only hope. I do know that if courage and fine determination can pull them through, both they have in abundance, and will return."

Putnam quit his long vigil beside the Coast Guard in San Francisco and returned to his North Hollywood home today. He explained the aviatrix's mother was at this home and "I think I should be with her."

GIRL FOUND MURDERED IN YOUNG MAN'S ROOM

Strangled in Grandmother's Home at New Haven — Adopted Son Sought.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 10.—The body of Estelle Feinberg, 16 years old, an orphan and a junior at the New Haven High School, was found late today in an attic room of her grandmother's home where she lived. There was a gash in her left temple.

Mrs. Bessie Moran, her grandmother, discovered the body in a bedroom used by Joseph Dumorad, 20, an employe of the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., whom she adopted 15 years ago, police said.

The police sought Dumorad for questioning. He had left home earlier in the day, announcing he was going to a friend's cottage on Lake Zoar to swim.

The girl's body was on the floor. On a bed in the room was a shirt covering a carpenter's hammer, the head of which was stained.

Police quoted the grandmother as saying she, Miss Feinberg and Dumorad ate together shortly after noon today, after which the girl said she was going to a side porch to read.

Dumorad said he was going upstairs to change his clothing preparatory to leaving and Mrs. Moran went to the furnished basement for the afternoon.

Mrs. Moran missed the girl about 5 p. m. and began a search of the rooms. She told Mary Capalis, 17, a roomer, of her discovery. Neighbors called police.

Following the viewing of the body by Deputy Coroner Nathan G. Sachs, police said signs of strangulation were present.

TWO MEN KILLED, ONE HURT IN ROAD CRASH NEAR ASBURY

Auto and Gravel Truck Collide; One of Victims Is Aid to Joplin Official.

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., July 10.—Two men were killed and one seriously hurt late today in a collision between a motor car and truck about 18 miles northwest of here, near Asbury.

The dead: Lloyd Thomas, 28 years old, assistant Joplin Meat Inspector, and "Dutch" Keller, 25, also of Joplin. Orville Martin of Pittsburg, Kan., was seriously injured.

Thomas and Keller were returning from Scammon, Kan., when their automobile and a truck loaded with gravel and driven by Martin collided.

Thomas died instantly, his body pinned in the wreckage of his car. Keller died in an ambulance bringing him to a Joplin hospital. Martin was taken to Pittsburg.

NEW EVIDENCE IN KILLING LAID TO VICTIM'S SISTER

STAINS ON CAR'S UPHOLSTERY FOUND

Murder Warrants Issued for Woman and A. R. Giancola—Her Extradition to Illinois Sought.

Two bits of evidence were developed by police yesterday to corroborate the statement of young Anthony Ralph Giancola that he was present when William Kappen was shot to death on the East Side July 3, a few hours before he was to be married. He named as the person who fired the shot, Mrs. Marie Porter, Kappen's sister, giving as her motive the fear that her brother's financee would be made beneficiary of $3300 insurance on his life then payable to her.

One of the corroborative items was a discharged .32-caliber cartridge found beneath the back seat of an automobile which the youth said the 37-year-old mother of four had him rent from a Washington boulevard agency with money she obtained by pledging furniture in her rooming house at 5028 Page boulevard. Research specialists, comparing it with test cartridges ejected from a .32-caliber automatic which Giancola said Mrs. Porter had used in the killing, said it had been fired from the same pistol.

Auto Upholstery Stained.

The other point of evidence was blood stains on the upholstery of the automobile. Although Giancola said he had washed the fabric before returning the machine, and employes at the agency also had tried to remove a large spot, the benzidine test showed the stains had been made by blood.

Police previously had established by records of the agency that the automobile had been rented to Giancola at 8 p. m. July 2 and returned at 7:18 p. m. the following day, having been driven 182 miles.

"This boy was taken in by a witch," Mrs. E. J. Giancola, the mother of the young man, said yesterday to a Post-Dispatch reporter. There were tears in the eyes of the dark-haired woman, apparently in her late 40's, and she seemed on the verge of collapse. More than that she would not say, and her husband, a tailor, was not at home. However, the boy's sister, Rita, a few years his junior, acted as spokesman for the family.

"My brother went to the Nativity parish school in West Walnut Manor, St. Louis County," she said, "and then he went to the Rankin school for a year. That was five years ago.

"He was a good boy. He liked to play cards at home, and he liked to go to dances. He often took me. He had been working as a bricklayer for Arthur R. Brunk Sr., a contractor, of 5466 Genevieve avenue."

Confirms Employment.

This was confirmed by Brunk's son, Arthur Jr., who said that young Giancola had been in his father's employ for the last six months. The younger Brunk said he had heard Giancola mention Mrs. Porter's name only a few times, and then only in connection with the fact that she had been his employer.

Neighbors spoke well of the young man, saying he was well behaved and that they had never noticed him in saloons or in bad company. He worked as a Republican precinct captain on last election day, they said.

Murder warrants were issued yesterday against Mrs. Potter and Giancola, by Justice of the Peace A. H. Schoenenberger at Belleville on complaint of State's Attorney Louis P. Zerweck. A request for the extradition of Mrs. Porter, who had steadfastly refused to make any statement or to waive extradition, was sent to Gov. Horner. Giancola announced he would not resist being taken to St. Clair County for trial.

The pistol with which the 21-year-old Giancola said Mrs. Porter shot her brother from the back seat as he sat in the front seat of the automobile the youth drove, was found hidden in a cigar box in the basement of Giancola's home at 5468 Genevieve avenue, where he had directed police to look. Police had learned he took a pistol from Mrs. Porter's home last Sunday.

Account of Killing.

Kappen, an electrical worker, 36 years old, was at the flat he and his fiancee had furnished at 5273A Union boulevard shortly after midnight, according to Giancola's statement, when he and Mrs. Porter went there. He remained in the automobile while Mrs. Porter went in and returned to the machine with her brother after about half an hour. After several drinks at a South Broadway tavern and a long drive on the East Side, Mrs. Porter, still alone in the back seat, called her brother by name and shot him through the head as he turned, Giancola related.

"Well, that's over with," he quoted the woman as saying as Kappen's body fell across his knees.

At her direction, Giancola continued, he turned down a dirt road from State Highway 13 near Belle-

"Well, that's over with," he quoted the woman as saying as Kappen's body fell across his knees.

At her direction, Giancola continued, he turned down a dirt road from State Highway 13 near Belleville and dragged the body to the ditch where it was found and then returned to St. Louis.

Since last April, Giancola said, Mrs. Porter had importuned him to kill her brother, suggesting that he be poisoned and offering $800 from the proceeds of his insurance. He was to receive this sum, he added, for his part in the murder as finally planned.

Result of Routine Investigation.

Officers given credit for the arrests by Chief of Detectives Carroll were Detective Sergeant John Sinclair, Detectives Harold Bohlen and James Ogden and Deputy Sheriff Frank A. Kerrigan of St. Clair County.

Kerrigan attributed their success in obtaining Giancola's statement to close application to routine investigation. By questioning relatives and friends of Mrs. Porter, he said, they learned that she was beneficiary of his insurance and that she had made several unsuccessful efforts to arrange a meeting with him.

Other information gained from such sources was that she was in straitened financial circumstances, as shown by recent mortgages placed on her automobile and furniture, and that she had been seen frequently in the company of Giancola. The youth, they heard, was the owner of a pistol of the type that would cause a wound like Kappen's.

After persistent denial by Giancola of knowledge of the crime, the questioners observed that he frequently scratched his wrists. A skin eruption was noticed. A police physician said it was caused by ivy poisoning. Giancola said he did not know where he could have gotten it.

Recalling a rank growth of poison ivy at the place where Kappen's body was found, the officers told the youth they would show him a picture of the place.

He shuddered when they showed him a picture of Kappen's body as it was found, and announced he was ready to make a statement.

Kappen's body was found the afternoon of the day he was to have been married at St. Anthony's Catholic Church at 10 a. m. When he failed to appear at the home of his fiancee, Miss Irene Traub, 4137 Nebraska avenue, at 8 a. m., a search was started and the news of his disappearance announced to waiting wedding guests at the church.

GRACE THOMASSON'S NO. 7 SUES HER TO GET BACK $8400

Says Marriage, Now Annulled, Was Result of "Mercenary Desire to Defraud."

Grace Caroline Thomasson's seventh husband, R. F. Fledderman, filed suit against her yesterday in Circuit Court, trying to get back $8417 she got from him during their May-to-December romance last year.

Fledderman's petition lists 57 items of expenditure, including insurance premiums, flowers, payments on an automobile, advances to Mrs. Thomasson's lawyers and a hotel bill "during her faked illness." He seeks return of the money because their marriage, since annulled, was the result of her "purely mercenary desire to defraud."

Nominal defendants in the suit are the Boatmen's National Bank, executor of the estate of Hugh W. Thomasson, and three lawyers to whom, Fledderman's petition states, Mrs. Thomasson assigned $20,000 of the $50,000 she received in settlement of her claim as Thomasson's widow. The assignment, Fledderman charges, was for the purpose of defrauding creditors.

DRIVER FINED IN ACCIDENT

W. C. Harrelson Assessed $300 on Charge of Carelessness.

William C. Harrelson, a railway mail clerk, 5653A Wells avenue, was fined $300 yesterday by Police Judge James F. Nangle on a charge of careless driving growing out of an accident May 7 when August Markert, a painter, 905 Market street, was struck and injured in the 2300 block of Olive street.

Markert testified he saw no automobile when he started from a safety zone after getting off a street car, yet was hit before he reached the curb. Harrelson testified Markert ran in front of him. He appealed.

FULTON RESIGNS AS ROLLA SCHOOL OF MINES HEAD

Retirement of Director for 17 Years Accepted by Board of Curators; Vacation Granted.

Dr. Charles Herman Fulton, director of the Missouri School of Mines and Metallurgy at Rolla for the past 17 years, resigned yesterday and his resignation was accepted by the board of curators of the University of Missouri, which controls the school, at its meeting here at Hotel Statler.

Dr. Fulton told the Post-Dispatch by telephone from Rolla that his resignation was voluntary, but it is known that his administration in recent years has been the object of criticism by both faculty and alumni groups.

He was granted a leave of absence with pay for the academic year 1937-38 and was appointed as a research professor of metallurgy at the school for the following year. After that, having reached the age of 65, he said he would in all probability retire on a pension from the Carnegie Endowment for Teaching. Dr. Fulton's salary has been $7200, subject to a 15 per cent reduction. His successor has not yet been named.

However, Dr. F. A. Middlebush, president of the University of Missouri, said last night at Columbia that "action will be taken at once" toward finding a new director for the school.

Regime Has Been Under Fire.

For the last five years Dr. Fulton's regime has been under fire. A faculty committee was organized in 1932 to investigate and a person thoroughly conversant with the school's internal affairs told the Post-Dispatch that "the leading engineers in the school were dissatisfied with Dr. Fulton's administrative educational policy."

An alumni committee was formed in 1933 at the instigation of Daniel C. Jackling, head of the Utah Copper Co. and one of the school's most widely known graduates. This committee made representations to Gov. Park at the time and succeeded in having John K. Walsh of Webster Groves, a graduate of the school, appointed to the Board of Curators.

The alumni committee's grievances were partly with the school's administration and partly with its athletic affairs. As one member of the alumni committee put it: "Dr. Fulton's administration in the last years unfortunately corresponded with an athletic decline." A few weeks ago it was announced that Gale Bullman, assistant football coach at Washington University, would become athletic director at the school, succeeding Harold Grant.

Dr. Baysinger Resigns.

Dr. Fulton was graduated from the school of mines at Columbia University in New York in 1897. After teaching at Columbia and the University of Wyoming he went to the South Dakota School of Mines at Rapid City in 1900. He was president there from 1905 to 1911 and taught at the Case School of Applied Science in Cleveland from 1911 to 1920, when he came to Rolla.

The Board of Curators also received and accepted the resignation of Dr. S. L. Baysinger as director of the school's hospital and as professor of hygiene.

It also announced that it had reduced registration, hospital, and laboratory fees at the school from $45 to $40 and abolished the $10 matriculation fee. At a meeting 10 days ago the board had reduced the fees at the University of Missouri on an average of 30 per cent.

TWO YOUTHS WITH PISTOL ARRESTED IN STOLEN AUTO

One Had Escaped From Indiana Reformatory; Planned Robberies Here.

Two young men, arrested on suspicion early yesterday in a parked automobile at Hadley and North Market streets, told police they had arrived in the city a few hours before and had intended "pulling a few stickups" while here. One of them had in his pocket a loaded .32-caliber automatic pistol, police said.

One of the youths, who identified himself as Charles Hall, 19 years old, of Washington, Ind., told police of the North Market Street District he escaped July 2 from the Indiana State Reformatory at Pendleton, where he was sent last January under a one to 10-year sentence for automobile theft. After stealing an automobile in Indianapolis, he continued, he drove to Washington where he met his companion, who told police his name was James Scholl, 18, and the two made several trips in the car, arriving in St. Louis Friday night.

Police said they would be held for Federal prosecution for violation of the Dyer act, or would be prosecuted here for carrying concealed weapons. Indiana authorities also were notified.

MRS. J. D. WOOSTER LAMBERT

WOOSTER LAMBERT WEDS MRS. TURNER

Millionaire and Former Wife of St. Louis Broker to Live in New York.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 10.—J. D. Wooster Lambert, multi-millionaire sportsman of New York and St. Louis, and Mrs. Mary Miller Turner, formerly of St. Louis, were married in the Municipal Chapel here this morning by a deputy city clerk.

It was Lambert's third marriage, the first two having ended in divorce; it was Mrs. Lambert's second. The bride is the divorced wife of W. Pelham Hoxton Turner, St. Louis broker.

Witnesses at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Horace Davis of New York. Mrs. Davis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Garrison of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Lambert will sail Wednesday for Europe on the Normandie. They will reside in New York when they return in the fall.

In obtaining the marriage license Lambert gave his age as 48 and his residence as the Park Plaza Hotel in St. Louis. Mrs. Turner said she was 39.

Lambert's first wife, who was Miss Julia Marion Turner, divorced him in 1924 and is now Mrs. Sydney T. Allen of Paris. His second wife, Mrs. Emily Milliken Lambert, daughter of the late John T. Milliken, millionaire chemical manufacturer, divorced him last Dec. 17. She obtained gross alimony of $1,600,000 and sole custody of their two children.

Mrs. Turner, who was Miss Mary Miller Brown of Lexington, Ky., obtained her divorce from Pelham Turner in September, 1934. She has a daughter, 13 years old.

MRS. FRANK E. WILLIAMS GRANTED DIVORCE AT TROY

Mrs. Grace Williams obtained a divorce yesterday at Troy, Mo., from Frank E. Williams, member of the St. Louis law firm of Fordyce, White, Mayne & Williams. She alleged general indignities.

She told Circuit Judge Edgar B. Woolfolk that her husband had declined to escort her to social functions or places of amusement and during the last year had exhibited no affection for her. They were married in Detroit in 1919 and lived at 6311 Waterman avenue until separation last month.

Mrs. Williams obtained custody of a 16-year-old daughter, Shirley Ellen. A property settlement was made out of court. Williams filed a general denial, but did not appear to contest the suit.

JUDGE FREES WOMAN DRIVER ARRESTED BY HER HUSBAND

Policeman's Wife Acquitted but Other Motorist in Crash Is Fined $50.

Mrs. Genevieve Kaufman, 6581 Hoffman avenue, who was arrested for careless driving May 28 by her husband, Patrolman Louis Kaufman Jr., was acquitted of the charge by Police Judge James F. Nangle yesterday. The driver of an automobile which collided with hers, Charles Stuever, 7418 South Grand boulevard, was fined $50 for careless driving.

Mrs. Kaufman and Stuever were arrested when Patrolman Kaufman, answering a routine radio call, found the machines damaged at Hoffman and Tamm avenues. Yesterday each testified the other was driving at excessive speed. Stuever, a contractor, was convicted of careless driving six months ago.

MAN WHO KILLED 3 GIRLS FOUND SANE

Five Alienists Report Albert Dyer's Mentality Only Slightly Under Normal.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, July 10. — Five alienists reported today that Albert Dyer, confessed killer of three little Inglewood girls, is sane.

Deputy District Attorney Eugene Williams said the substance of the prosecution alienists' findings is:

"Dyer is sane. His intelligence is only slightly below average. He knew what he was doing. He has no hallucinations but is a sadist and sexual pervert."

Williams said the reports will be presented in court Monday when Dyer, 32-year-old W P A school crossing guard, appears to plead to grand jury indictments.

Three defense alienists also will submit reports.

SMOKE CONTROL LAW UPHELD IN FEDERAL COURT

Judge Moore Refuses to Grant Injunction to Prevent City's Enforcement of Measure.

The validity of the new St. Louis smoke control ordinance, requiring the washing of low-grade soft coal produced in nearby Illinois fields, was upheld in an opinion yesterday by United States District Judge George H. Moore, denying the application of two coal mine operators for an injunction to prevent the city from enforcing the measure.

Judge Moore ruled that the law was not, as the mine operators had contended, an unreasonable interference with interstate commerce but a proper regulatory measure enacted under the police power of the city for public health and welfare.

While denying the injunction sought, the Court issued an order restraining city officials from interfering with the shipment through the city of coal destined for sale and consumption outside of St. Louis.

Judge Moore's decision upholding the measure ended the first court test of the act. The injunction suit was instituted by Samuel White and Samuel Sergent, partners in the Bell Heat, Coal and Mining Co., at Cooper Station, near Belleville.

The mine operators and the city offered conflicting testimony as to the value of washing coal to reduce the sulphur and ash content of smoke. Judge Moore decided that washing would reduce the sulphur and ash content and increase the efficiency of the coal in heating.

Judge Moore found also, his opinion stated, that "the emission of smoke and its component gases, fumes and ash results in great loss and damage to property in the city of St. Louis, is a public nuisance and is detrimental to public health."

White and Sergent introduced testimony that washing the coal screenings produced at their mine would be prohibitively expensive and would do relatively little to reduce smoke. The ordinance requires washing of screenings and hand-picking of larger sizes of coal which contains more than 2 per cent of sulphur and 10 per cent of ash.

MAN KILLED IN CRASH OF AUTO AND TROLLEY

Jason A. Skinner Dies in Hospital After Collision at Gravois and Alma.

A head-on crash between an automobile and a Cherokee street car at Gravois and Alma avenues at 4 a. m. yesterday resulted in the death of the driver, Jason A. Skinner, a plumber, who died an hour later at City Hospital of skull and internal injuries.

Joseph King, operator of the one-man street car, told police that Skinner swerved onto the tracks in the path of the street car, which was eastbound. The machine, a 1928 coupe, was wrecked and Skinner was thrown out. Windows in the street car were broken by the impact.

Skinner, 39 years old, a World War veteran, was separated from his wife. He resided at 4560 Oakland avenue with his mother, Mrs. Mary Skinner.

Woman Loses $8125 on Train.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Anna Walsh, 30 years old, social worker, told police today she lost $8125 which she withdrew from her savings account in one bank to transfer to another. She said the money disappeared on a subway train but she did not know when or how.

WARNED OF BLOODSHED C I O AID LEAVES AGAIN

Twice-Evicted Society Woman May Seek N L R B Protection in Tupelo, Miss.

By the Associated Press.

TUPELO, Miss., July 10. — Reporting a warning that "bloodshed would ensue" unless she left town permanently, Ida Sledge, Memphis society woman and union organizer, left town tonight with the declaration that she would return.

She had declared her intention to remain pending further orders from union officials, despite her ejection last night for the second time in three weeks. She is an organizer for the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, C I O affiliate.

She had said she was determined to stay "until my work is accomplished."

Friends said Miss Sledge, 28 years old and a Wellesley graduate, would meet representatives of the National Labor Relations Board at Kosciusko, Miss., before returning here Sunday or Monday. They added the C I O hoped to protect her through having a subpena issued for her as a Government witness before the labor board, thus giving her the Government's "full protection."

Both the labor group supporting Miss Sledge and a "vigilante" committee of citizens, refusing to allow the use of their names, said there was danger of a clash if Miss Sledge attempts to return here and remain.

Miss Sledge was escorted to the county line June 18 by girl workers at the Reed Brothers' Manufacturing Co.

She returned Tuesday with 12 volunteer organizers, attending an N L R B hearing and staying on with Miss Josephine Smith and Mrs. L. H. Scott to do organization work.

All three were sent out of town yesterday with the warning that if they came back again "most drastic action" might be taken.

"The group included numerous prominent business people," Miss Sledge said today. "They came to the hotel and escorted us to taxicabs which took us to Pontotoc.

"I returned to Tupelo for my car, and drove back to Pontotoc."

There, she said, unionists persuaded her to return to Tupelo and stop with friends in the "milltown" section.

"We have not been hurt at all," Miss Sledge said.

Mayor J. P. Nanney said he had received no complaint concerning last night's ejections.

"I don't know whether there will be trouble if Miss Sledge remains," he said.

STEEL COMPANIES TO OPEN REST OF MILLS THIS WEEK

Sheet & Tube Announces It Will Resume Operations at Strike-Closed Indiana Harbor Plants.

"WE WON'T SIGN WITH ANYBODY"

Republic to Start Work Again at Pittsburgh, Canton and Cumberland (Md.) Units.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., July 10.—Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. plans to reopen its Indiana Harbor (Ind.) plants next week and Republic Steel Corporation has made arrangements to resume operations at Pittsburgh and Cumberland, Md.

These are the only steel mills remaining idle as a result of the strike in seven states which at its height affected a sixth of the nation's steel production, and made nearly 100,000 men idle in mills and affiliated mines.

"We will open next week at Indiana Harbor," Vice-President J. C. Argetsinger of Sheet & Tube said. "Our position is unchanged. We will not sign with anybody. We are obeying the law."

Sheet & Tube had announced previously it would not reopen in Indiana until authorities gave the company and its workers ample protection. There was no indication tonight what, if any, special arrangements had been made by Indiana authorities for the announced reopening.

The company has said from the beginning that it would sign no bargaining contract with the C I O Steel Workers' Organizing Committee. This also was the stand of the other three affected companies, Republic Steel, Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and Inland Steel Co. Inland, however, agreed to an arbitration procedure which reopened its plants with union sanction. Most of the other plants have been reopened under National Guard protection.

B. F. Handloser, general manager of Republic's Dilworth Porter division, at Pittsburgh, said he expected "no difficulty" in reopening that plant Monday to 300 workers.

In Cumberland, Md., Mayor Thomas W. Koon refused to admit C I O organizers to a workers' conference he had called with a view to reopening Republic's Taylor tin plate mill.

Republic Steel Corporation announced it will reopen its Canton tin plate division Monday morning, calling about half of its 500 employes back to work.

This is last of the corporation's eight divisions in the Canton-Massillon territory to be reopened.

EIGHT STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK ON SEATTLE STAR

Paper Publishes Second Consecutive Day's Editions as Deadlock Continues.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, July 10.—Negotiations between the striking American Newspaper Guild and the Seattle Star continued deadlocked tonight, but Publisher E. W. Scripps announced eight strikers voluntarily had returned to work and will be paid for the time they lost.

The paper, which was closed last Saturday, published a second consecutive day's editions today under a small police guard.

Scripps said returning strikers were members of the circulation and business departments. Skeleton news and advertising staffs published today's editions and they were distributed without difficulty, the management announced. There were full crews in other departments.

The Guild members walked out a week ago today after a jurisdictional dispute with the teamsters union over membership of circulation employes in the Guild.

Asserting the strike has aspects of a lockout, striking Guildsmen announced they were preparing to file new chargesl against the newspaper with the National Labor Relations Board.

Taking issue with the announcement by the management, Guild officials said that to their knowledge no striking employes had returned to work.

C I O AFFILIATE TO BARGAIN FOR WESTINGHOUSE WORKERS

Named Exclusive Agency of 11,500 Employes at East Pittsburgh.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 10.—The United Electrical and Radio Workers of America, C I O affiliate, obtained certification today from the National Labor Relations Board as exclusive collective bargaining agency for 11,500 East Pittsburgh employes of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co.

Regional Labor Board Director Charles T. Douds said the union's membership included 7200 of the workers.

The Labor Board's announcement at Washington said the company had indicated its willingness to bargain with the union if the board found it represented a majority.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, and an independent employes' group had challenged the union's claims, but declined to appear against it at a Labor Board meeting.

C I O DENIED 'MASSACRE' FILM

Union Director Says Paramount Infringes on Civil Rights.

Bert Tavender, regional director for the Committee for Industrial Organization here, protested yesterday against the refusal of the Paramount Co. to rent the Chicago Memorial day "massacre" film to the United Electrical and Radio Workers of America, a C I O union, for a showing at a union meeting.

The protest declared that the refusal of the company to release the film constitutes a denial of civil rights and is an attempt to suppress the records of the Civil Liberties Committee of the Senate. A copy of the letter, addressed to the Paramount company, was sent to La Follette, as chairman of the committee.

C I O Lawyer Beaten in Dallas.

DALLAS, Tex., July 10.—W. J. Houston, local attorney for the C I O, was beaten in a street fight downtown here today. Police stopped the fight. The C I O has been attempting to unionize the Ford Motor Co. branch plant here.

HAMILTON-BROWN BOSS WARNED HIM, UNION MAN SAYS

William Gerling Testifies He Was Told When You All Are Signed, "Plant Doors Will Be Locked."

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNION, Mo., July 10.—Labor Board attorneys announced today that they had completed groundwork testimony in the hearing of charges that the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. had engaged in unfair labor practices in its plant here, and that evidence next week would be devoted largely to mass discharges of workers and the inner workings of an alleged company union.

The hearing, conducted by the National Labor Relations Board, began here Thursday. Testimony in the first three sessions involved to a large extent the dismissal of six leaders of the newly formed local of the United Shoe Workers of America. The union is affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization. Complaints charge illegal dismissal of about 200 other employes.

Last witness today was William Gerling, who said he was discharged June 3 because of his membership in the union. On May 4, he declared, he was called into the office of Charles Jannings, plant superintendent, and that the door was closed and locked. Jannings protested against the employe's activities in signing new members, Gerling testified.

Gerling, one of the most articulate of witnesses called so far in the hearing, quoted Jannings as saying: "Every man you sign, you turn the key that much farther. When you get them all signed, the plant doors will be locked."

In cross-examination, Luke E. Hart, president of the shoe company, asked if members of the C I O affiliate still were not employed at the Hambro plant. Gerling replied that only those who had signed for membership in the "company" union had retained their jobs. Those who refused to sign were summarily discharged, he asserted.

Threatened to Close Plant.

Jess Crews, former cutting room employe at the Hambro plant, testified concerning a similar conversation with Jannings on May 10. The superintendent, Crews asserted, threatened to close the plant here if he failed in efforts to "bust up" the union.

David C. Shaw, Labor Board attorney, told a Post-Dispatch reporter, that he would attempt next week to show great pressure of public opinion was exerted against union men. He said several issues of the Franklin County Tribune, a weekly newspaper, would be introduced in evidence.

On June 25, the paper published an "extra," which declared the company had signed a closed shop contract with the Commercial Shoe Workers' Organization, an independent union. A part of the headlines read: "Representative committee of Commercial Shoe Workers' Organization forces Luke Hart, president of Hamilton-Brown, to sign contract this morning—closed shop principle invoked."

Quotation From Article.

The article said in part: "Early in April a decided minority of employes, aided by men in St. Louis, connected in some capacity with the C I O, attempted to induce the majority of employes to join a local branch of the C I O, and employed present-day methods of intimidation, misrepresentation and coercion.

"However, the leaders of the move were not in reality employes of Hambro, and the only results of their campaign apparently is the loss of upwards of $75,000 in payroll."

After praising leaders of the new organization, the article said the Commercial Shoe Workers' Organization was composed of "men and women who make their home in Union and are interested in its growth and development, and have no selfish motive in representing their fellow workers."

Closing of Plant Anticipated.

In another article, published May 21, the paper discussed the labor situation, saying, "From all reports (the trouble) will close Hambro factory indefinitely unless some agreement is reached soon. Thousands of pairs of shoes originally scheduled for Hambro have been sent to Columbia and Boonville factories, and it is rumored that Hamilton-Brown is considering opening its factory at Owensville."

Freedom from labor troubles was the real reason for opening of shoe plants in Union and Franklin County, the paper said. The movement was "doomed to failure because of the type of people in Union, Mo.—lovers of freedom and conscious of the harmful effects of dictation by agitators."

What Shaw Will Try to Show.

Shaw said he would attempt to show that the newspaper, business men and civic groups sided with the company in efforts to suppress organization of the workers. He declared the Commercial Shoe Workers' Organization was sponsored by the management.

On June 29, the complaints allege, 125 employes were discharged because of their refusal to join Commercial Shoe Workers. Shaw asserted that smaller groups were discharged earlier when they failed to sign pledges of loyalty to the company. The attorney said membership records of the C I O affiliate, now in evidence, would be used later to show that all those discharged were members of the union.

The hearing will be resumed at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

DR. TESLA, AT 81, TELLS OF HIS DEVICE TO SIGNAL TO STARS

Expects to Claim French Prize for Means of Interplanetary Communication.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Dr. Nikola Tesla, the noted inventor, was 81 years old today, and, following his custom, he discussed his year's work and made some predictions for the future at a luncheon given in his honor.

He paid his respects to partisans of the Einstein relativity theory while explaining his "dynamic theory of gravity," declaring that his discovery will "put an end to idle speculation and false conceptions such as that of 'curved space'."

But it was to his machine for communicating through inter-stellar space that Dr. Tesla devoted most of his remarks, terming it "the triumph of the age," and the achievement for which his name will be longest remembered.

"I have devoted much of my time during the years past," he said, "to the perfecting of a new small and compact apparatus by which energy in considerable amounts can now be flashed through inter-stellar space to any distance without the slightest dispersion.

"I had in mind to confer with my friend, George E. Hale, the great astronomer and solar expert, regarding the possible use of this invention in connection with his own researches, and I am going to do it.

"In the meantime, however, I am expecting to put before the Institute of France an accurate description of the devices with data and calculations and claim the Pierre Guzman prize of 100,000 francs for means of communications with other worlds, feeling perfectly sure that it will be awarded to me."

Dr. Sigmund Freud Ill.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, July 10.—Dr. Sigmund Freud, famed psycho-analyst, is ill with a heart affliction, his physician announced tonight. Dr. Freud was 81 years old on May 6. His theory that nervous troubles and worries are attributable to sexual impulses and civilization's restraints is known throughout the world.

MEN HIRED AS STEEL MILL GUARDS TESTIFY

N L R B Witnesses Say Agency Told Them They Were to Protect Inland Property.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 10. — Two witnesses testified today before a National Labor Relations Board trial examiner that they were hired as "guards" by a detective agency and were told they would be called for duty at the Inland Steel Co. plant in East Chicago, Ind.

The witnesses, John Chesko and Tony Yovetich, named the Calumet Protective Association of Gary, Ind., as the agency which employed them. Yovetich quoted James Grainer, who he said took their applications, as saying they would "protect Inland property."

Neither went to work, they said, because the C I O strike was ended by a truce and 12,500 men went back to work last week.

I. S. Dorfman, labor board attorney, told Examiner Charles A. Wood the witnesses' testimony was to support the labor board charge that the Inland Co. "intimidated" employes in violation of the Wagner Labor act.

The examiner overruled a motion by Ernest S. Ballard, Inland attorney, to exclude their testimony on the ground no showing was made that the company had anything to do with their employment.

After today's session, which concluded the second week of the Inland hearing, Dorfman said he would request District Attorney Michael L. Igoe to prosecute a third witness for perjury. This witness, Steve Ivan of Hammond, Ind., denied on the stand that he had been coerced by the company into resigning from the C I O and joining an independent union. Ivan asked that he have protection in leaving the hearing room, but departed before the arrival of a Deputy United States Marshal summoned by Wood.

PRESIDENT'S MOTHER IN ITALY

Sails to Genoa From Naples; John Roosevelt Goes to Rome.

By the Associated Press.

NAPLES, July 10.—Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of the President, sailed from here for Genoa tonight after visiting Naples and Pompeii. Accompanied by her grandson, John, she is on a European vacation.

She received an enthusiastic welcome when she stepped ashore here from the liner Conti di Savoia. United States Ambassador William Phillips and Mrs. Phillips took her on an afternoon tour of the city and she later motored to Pompeii, where, carried in a portable chair, she visited several sections of the ancient city. John motored to Sorrento and played golf with friends before proceeding to Rome to visit for several days.

STRIKE SETTLED, CONTINENTAL CAN CO. TO REOPEN TONIGHT

Subsidiary Plant Also to Resume Operations; Union Head Says 2500 Workers Will Return.

By the Associated Press.

CANONSBURG, Pa., July 10.—The Continental Can Co. and its subsidiary, Standard Tinplate Co. will resume operations tomorrow night as a result of a strike settlement reached today.

D. B. Geeseman, general manager of the plants, and President R. R. Cummins of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers said the 2500 employes would return to work. They declined to comment on the details of the agreement which ended the strike that was called last night.

Differences arose during two days of negotiations over wage differentials of the Continental plant, the company stated, adding that the union had been offered a contract as bargaining agent for its members. Cummins had said he expected "an amicable adjustment to be reached."

EX-WIFE TESTIFIES FOR MAN ACCUSED OF KILLING WOMAN

Says Frank J. Furch of Chicago "Acted Strangely" After Start of New Romance.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Called as a defense witness, Mrs. Myrtle Tash Furch testified today in the trial of her former husband, Frank J. Furch, charged with murder, that she noticed he "acted strangely" after he struck up a romance with Mrs. Norma Schmidt, his second wife.

Mrs. Schmidt, also divorced from Furch, was shot to death Feb. 26 at her home. The State charged the shooting followed a quarrel between the woman and Furch, who, the prosecution alleged, had insisted Mrs. Schmidt remarry him.

By the testimony of Mrs. Furch, his first wife, and a friend, Mrs. Constance Schrader, counsel for Furch hoped to build a defense of emotional insanity.

Mrs. Schrader said she accompanied Mrs. Myrtle Furch to the Schmidt apartment on the night of the shooting. She testified she believed Furch was "actually insane" at the time.

Mrs. Furch testified theirs was a childhood romance which culminated in their elopement and marriage at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York. She described him as a "model husband" until he fell in love with Mrs. Schmidt.

Wife Killed by Husband's Auto.

STAUNTON, Va., July 10.—Mrs. Florence Fridley was killed today when struck by an automobile driven by her husband. The young woman ran into the road at Augusta Springs apparently in an effort to halt the oncoming machine. Fridley said he swerved the car to the left but his wife also ran in that direction and he could not prevent the accident. Fridley was arrested.

MURPHY ASKED TO ACT IN MICHIGAN DISPUTES

Governor's Aid Sought in Settling Cleaners' Strike, Preventing Truck Walkout.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, July 10.—Intercession of Gov. Frank Murphy was sought tonight to settle a cleaning and dyeing strike and avert another walkout threatening to tie up a major portion of Michigan's trucking facilities.

Union truck drivers announced their demands for a minimum wage scale must be met by Wednesday midnight. If a strike is called, they said, it will affect more than 30,000 workers.

Truck operators have asked the State Public Utilities Commission to approve rate increases, and Gov. Murphy was appealed to for aid in the request. Glenwood C. Fuller of Grand Rapids, commission member, said the advance asked would be insufficient to meet the truckers' financial problem.

Clothing Union Asks Intervention.

Hyman Schneid organizer for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, engaged in the strike affecting 2000 workers in nearly 70 cleaning and dyeing plants at Detroit, telegraphed the Governor asking that he intervene to obtain a "fair and equitable settlement."

Murphy was at Mackinac Island attending a Democratic party gathering.

The Amalgamated Union is an affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Involved in the trucking dispute are units of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers, an American Federation of Labor Affiliate.

Ten Detroit police scout cars responded to a riot call at the Nash-Kelvinator Corporation plant today after members of the Mechanics' Educational Society of America pushed 20 members of an independent union into the street, but the disorder had subsided when they arrived. The evicted men are members of the newly organized mechanical refrigeration guild.

Calls Guild a Company Union.

Matthew Smith, MESA secretary, said, "We have sole bargaining rights under a contract signed last February, and if these 20 decide to stay in the MESA and settle their differences, they can go back to work next week." He contended the guild was a "company union."

A strike which started Friday as a sit-down at the Fruehauf Trailer Co. in Detroit continued after the strikers evacuated the plant. The company employs 500.

The strike was called by the United Automobile Workers, CIO affiliate, to enforce demands for wage adjustments and reinstatement of a worker.

EX-KING AND QUEEN OF SPAIN APPEAR TOGETHER IN ROME

Reconciliation Reported Contemplated After Estrangement for Six Years.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, July 10.—Former King Alfonso XIII of Spain and former Queen Victoria appeared together formally tonight for the first time in six years, stimulating reports they were contemplating a reconciliation.

Heading a regal procession, they entered the Church of San Roberto Bellarmino as patrons for their cousin, Prince Alvaro of Bourbon-Orleans, on his marriage to Carla Parodi Delfino.

Side by side, they occupied special raised royal pews just as though they had not been estranged since shortly after the Spanish monarchy fell in 1931.

Their appearance freshened a belief in Italian aristocratic circles a reconciliation between the two was being sought by the Italian royal family.

MAN WHO KILLED ESTRANGED WIFE CHARGED WITH MURDER

Pekin (Ill.) Distillery Worker Testifies at Inquest He Fired Only to "Scare" Her.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, Ill., July 10.—A Coroner's jury recommended today that Hubert Burlingame, a distillery worker, be held without bail on a charge of murder for the fatal shooting of his wife, Florecen. Mrs Burlingame, 20-year-old mother of a 3-year-old child, died today in the Pekin Hospital. She and her husband separated six weeks ago.

Burlingame is held in the Tazewell County jail. He testified at the inquest he fired only to give his wife a "scare" when he found her Thursday night with Orville Boyer of Green Valley in the apartment of Grace Cline, with whom Mrs. Burlingame had been living.

Boyer denied at the inquest he had any affair with Mrs. Burlingame. He said he was at Miss Cline's apartment at her invitation.

8000 PUT ON WATER QUOTAS

Grand Coulee (Wash.) District Suffers From Drought.

By the Associated Press.

GRAND COULEE, Wash., July 10.—A serious water shortage today faced Grand Coulee—in the shadow of the world's largest hydro-electric project, which will make water available for irrigating 1,800,000 acres.

Dr. A. S. Baker of the State Health Department proclaimed a real emergency exists, with deep wells unable to supply the demand. He put the 8000 residents on a quota basis.

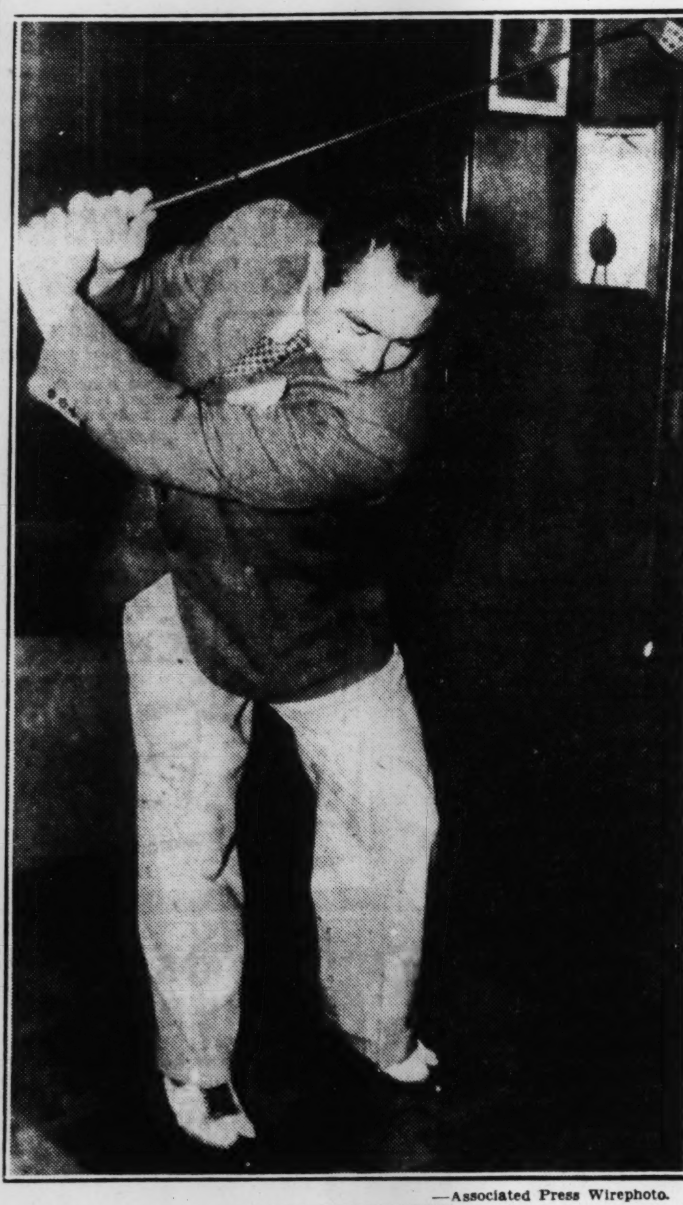
GOLFER CHARGED WITH ROBBERY IS RELEASED ON BOND

John Montague, Hollywood Mystery Man, Freed on $10,000 Bail Furnished by Friends.

NAME DISCLOSED AS LA VERNE MOORE

Refuses to Discuss Accusation That He Participated in Holdup of Jay, N. Y., Roadhouse in 1930.

How "Mystery Golfer" Does It



—Associated Press Wirephoto.

JOHN MONTAGUE
Shows his golfing form in the county jail in Los Angeles.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—John Montague won temporary freedom from jail today on $10,000 bond as the State of New York demanded his extradition on a seven-year-old robbery charge.

Friends furnished bail for "Mysterious Montague" following a court hearing.

Municipal Judge Arthur Guerin set the bond, overruling a motion by Deputy District Attorney Hinshaw for bail of $25,000.

"This man has been a fugitive from New York for nearly seven years," Hinshaw said, "during which time he has shown signs of some affluence with no visible means of support. The officers in this case believe he may know something of recent robberies here."

"We are concerned only with the case in court and not with any charges that have not been brought and have not been proven," answered Judge Guerin.

Refuses to Discuss Charge.

Montague, an outstanding golfer, sat quietly as the case was argued. He waved affably to a coterie of friends seated behind him.

George Clark, one of his attorneys and long a golfing associate at the exclusive film colony club where Montague belongs, advised Gov. Frank F. Merriam in Sacramento he would ask for a hearing when formal extradition papers arrive from the East.

Leaving the cell where he spent the night, Montague, whose real name was disclosed as La Verne Moore, was willing to talk on most any subject except the robbery charge—the charge that he participated in the holdup of a roadhouse with three others near Jay, N. Y., in 1930.

New York Indictment.

A copy of the indictment naming Moore, or Montague, forwarded here, showed that on the night of Aug. 5, 1930, four masked men entered the road house, bound and gagged customers and employes, including Kin Hanna, operator, took $600 and fled in an automobile.

In the getaway the automobile turned over and one of the four men was killed. Two others were caught, convicted and are now serving prison terms of 16 years each.

"I made one foolish mistake when I was just a kid," Montague was quoted as saying. "I got into a tough gang and went wrong. I've been trying to live it down ever since.

"I was just about to the place where I intended to go back East and clear the whole thing up. I'm glad this happened. I'm glad it's over."

Montague, in signing application for bond, gave the names of Oliver Hardy, Bing Crosby and Guy Kibbee, all personal friends of screen renown, as references. He said his father is Matthew Moore, 318 Stope avenue, Syracuse, N. Y.

Lifted Hardy With One Hand.

Asked what he intended doing about the robbery charge, he said: "I'm not interested in going to New York right now. Let's let my lawyers handle that end of the affair."

Montague, who once lifted his ponderous friend, Hardy, with one hand, laughed again when the matter of his strength was mentioned. He attributed it to "clean living."

For many months Montague made his home with Hardy.

Standing 5 feet 10 inches and weighing 220 pounds, Montague is said to have demonstrated his great strength in locker rooms at the Lakeside Golf Club, disposing of as many as six opponents simultaneously in wrestling and fisticuffs.

Another tale is that when he and George Bancroft were tussling in a locker room Montague picked up the actor, thrust him neatly into a steel locker, and closed the door.

Denies Ever Being Drunk.

Reminded that stories were constantly told of his capacity for liquor, he declared: "I've never been drunk in my life."

Hal Sims, the bridge expert, once told of "Monty" breakfasting on a bottle of Scotch and eight gin fizzes—without becoming intoxicated. The incident supposedly occurred during a golf tournament last winter staged by Crosby.

This tale Montague told himself: "I was playing in a foursome at the Fox Hills Country Club. At the tenth tee, I said to the others: 'See those birds on that telephone wire? Watch me pick off the one farthest to the right.'

"I teed up an old ball, took a brassie and hit a full drive. It struck the bird in the neck, snapping its head off—170 yards away."

Although Montague never entered a golf tournament, he was declared by many experts to be one of the best players in the game.

Stories of Golf Skill.

Tales told about Montague included:

He can drive a golf ball 50 yards farther than the longest ball Bobby Jones ever drove.

He beat Crosby, who used the regulation golf clubs, with only a shovel, a rake and a baseball bat.

His best recorded golf score was 61, at Palm Springs, where he lowered the course record four times on successive days.

He is said to have bet and won as much as $1000 a hole in golf matches.

Hollywood also knows Montague as the man who can place an approach shot within 10 feet of the pin from any distance up to 200 yards. Once, it is said, he bet he would knock a ball three-quarters of a mile in five shots, and won easily.

Montague has frequented Hollywood and Southern California since the latter part of 1930, the year in which he is alleged to have participated in the robbery.

LABOR BOARD CHARGES FOLLOW ALCOA FIGHT

Union Alleges Aluminum Co. Failed to Bargain Collectively; Inquiry Ordered.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 10.—The Aluminum Co. of America was charged today with "interference and failure to bargain collectively" in connection with labor troubles at its Alcoa, Tenn., plant.

Charles N. Feidelson, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, said the charge was signed by Fred Wetmore, president of the Aluminum Workers' Union at Alcoa, with whom he conferred. He said an investigation will be made promptly.

Wetmore said he would return immediately to the strike area where the plant, normally employing 3000 workers, is operating on a reduced basis.

At Alcoa, Francis J. Dillon, personal representative of President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, arrived to confer with J. C. Howard, Labor Department conciliator, and others. Howard, who is attempting to negotiate a settlement of the strike, has submitted a proposal to the company and the union, the contents of which he declined to divulge.

No comment was forthcoming today on the union's charges from A. D. Huddleston, regional manager for the aluminum company. However, after last Wednesday's fight at the Alcoa mill, he said "we have been and are always ready to negotiate with our employes or their representatives any question raised by our employes."

The union is seeking to increase the basic hourly wage at the Alcoa plant from 45 to 60 cents an hour. The strike was called May 18.

Wetmore said shortly before he talked with Feidelson that Gov. Browning of Tennessee would be asked to close the plant by executive order or "withdraw the National Guard and let us close it."

The Governor said he had not received the request to close the plant, but saw "no justification for it."

LUMBER PITCHED INTO SEA TO SAVE STRANDED BOAT

Tugboat and Cutter Try to Aid Freighter Marooned on West Coast.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—The crew of the stranded freighter West Mahwah began pitching its cargo of lumber into the sea today to float it from the sands of Pescadero Point.

Should combined efforts of a tugboat and Coast Guard cutter fail to free the McCormick line ship at the midnight high tide, company officials said it would be abandoned.

Most of the crew of 45 men and two passengers, marooned since midnight Thursday when the freighter plowed onto the sandy pomontory in a dense fog, remained aboard.

A heavy list developed today, and the keel was reported six or seven feet deeper in the sands.

Aviation Cadets' Arm Amputated.

By the Associated Press.

PORT ANGELES, Wash., July 10.—T. H. McMahon, 27 years old, Brooklyn (N. Y.) naval aviation cadet, was recovering today from the amputation of an arm and other injuries suffered in a naval plane accident yesterday. The plane struck a submerged log as it taxied to a mooring buoy, casting the crew into the water. McMahon was struck by a propellor.

MINISTER HELD ON CHARGES MADE BY FATHER OF GIRL, 15

Friend of Monroe (La.) Youngster Arrested for Attempting to Blackmail Preacher.

MONROE, La., July 10.—A minister was under arrest here today on charges brought by the father of a 15-year-old farm girl and a friend of the girl was held for attempting to blackmail the preacher. Bond had not yet been set for them. District Attorney Frank J. Hawthorne said the Rev. George A. Dierlamm, about 55, admitted the girl had lived with him for about a year. She left his home several weeks ago.

Since then, the District Attorney said, the minister said a man listed as Oscar Turnley, truck driver, had attempted to extort $200 from him under a threat to expose the minister's relations with the girl.

Authorities learned of the affair when the girl confided in her mother who told her husband. The girl's father asked that charges be filed.

The minister served the Congregational Missions in Ouichita and Jackson Parishes. He recently returned from a tour of New York, New Jersey and Delaware, where he appeared before several of the large Congregational churches of that area.

DEPARTMENT STORE SALES UP

June department store sales in St. Louis were 10.6 per cent greater than in the same month last year, it was announced yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank. Sales last month were 4.5 per cent under those of May, however. For the first six months of this year, sales were 13.1 per cent greater than in the same period last year.

For the entire Federal Reserve district, department store sales last month were 9 per cent greater than in June, 1936, but 8.8 per cent lower than in May. For the six month period, sales in the district were 11.9 per cent higher this year than last.

"A World Beater for Money-Saving —that's my new Dodge!"

Says Noted Sportsman

COL. JOHN REED KILPATRICK, President, Madison Square Garden Corporation, says: "My new Dodge has given me surprising mileage. I have never owned a car so thoroughly satisfactory, and I can't say enough for it. Quite a number of my associates here at the Garden are Dodge owners and they are all equally enthusiastic!"

THANK YOU, Col. Kilpatrick! Your remarks echo the enthusiastic statements of Dodge owners from coast to coast who report 18 to 24 miles to the gallon of gasoline — savings up to 20% on oil—with additional savings on general upkeep!

Many owners say that Dodge is saving them so much that, in the long run, this bigger, more comfortable, more luxurious car will actually cost them no more than small, lowest-priced, competitive-make cars! Why buy a small car, they say, when you can get all the benefits the big, quality Dodge gives you and yet pay no more in the end?

And think of the combination of expensive-car features this big, money-saving Dodge gives you for just a few dollars more than lowest-priced cars... New "Silenced Ride!"...New "high-safety" interiors...Chair-Height seats ...Low, level floor...Patented Floating Power engine mountings...Even stronger safety all-steel body...Genuine hydraulic brakes—to name just a few!

"MY TRIP from Brooklyn to Hollywood, Florida, proved to me that I was very wise in switching to Dodge. The average mileage on my gasoline was better than 20 miles per gallon. My cost of gas was $18.70 covering 1,382 miles."—Capt. John Keefe, Hollywood, Fla.

"I FOUND the Dodge truck so superior and so economical that I was convinced the Dodge passenger car must be equally dependable," says David Jacobson, New York. "So, I switched to Dodge. It is a magnificent performer and the most economical car I have ever driven. I am getting over 21 miles to the gallon of gas."

"21 MILES TO THE GALLON—that's what I call gas mileage," says G. Heimberg, Los Angeles. "And I'm getting it from my swell-looking new Dodge! It's a money-saver for fair—not only on gas, but on oil and lubrication as well. I wish I had switched to Dodge long ago!"

"I'M CONVINCED that my beautiful new Dodge with its marvelous gasoline and oil economy will cost me no more in the long run than a small car," says Cheri McKay, Chicago. "I never get less than 19 miles to the gallon of gasoline and save on other things, too. And it's so much more fun to drive a car so much bigger!"

the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 10.—Soviet aviation leaders disclosed plans tonight send two more airplanes on attempted non-stop flights to the United States within a month, probably over the North Polar regions.

One plane is tuned up and ready go but rain has held it for several days in Moscow. It will be piloted by Mikhail Gromov, an outstanding Russian distance flyer. He will have two companions.

Although Gromov is expected to cross the Arctic regions, he probably will not follow the route of the three men who completed a non-stop flight from Moscow to Vancouver, Wash., June 20—Valeri Chkalov, Georgi Baidukov and Alexander Beliakov. They passed directly over the North Pole, near which the Soviet Government has established a scientific camp.

May Seek Distance Record.

Gromov's destination is understood to be Chicago. He may try to make a distance record surpassing that of Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos of France, who flew 5657 miles from New York to Syria in 1933.

The other plane will be piloted by Sigismund Levaneffsky, who attempted a trans-Polar flight from Moscow to San Francisco in August, 1935, but was forced to turn back by mechanical trouble.

Levaneffsky disclosed his plan on his return here from Sebastopol, where he tested an American-made plane. He told friends he intended to take off within a month but did not specify his destination.

The famous flyer took the opportunity to deny reports that he had been arrested in the recent government campaign against its alleged enemies. Explaining his absence from the official reception for Dr. Otto Schmidt, leader of the North Polar scientific expedition, when Schmidt returned to Moscow in June, Levaneffsky said he had been busy flying.

Levaneffsky's Exploits.

Levaneffsky attracted world attention in 1933 when he rescued James E. Mattern, American round-the-world flyer, who was forced down in Siberia and missing for several days. Levaneffsky flew Mattern to Alaska and the American continued his journey in another plane.

In 1934 Levaneffsky aided in rescuing 101 Russians adrift on the ice off Kamchatka after their ship, the Chelivuskin, had been crushed. He then won the coveted title, "Hero of the Soviet Union."

Last year he piloted a plane from San Pedro, Cal., to Moscow in short jumps via Alaska and Siberia.

Gromov was the regular pilot of the giant Soviet airplane Maxim Gorky. He was ill and not aboard the plane when it crashed in May, 1935, killing 49 persons.

MORE JAPANESE SENT TO PEIPING FIGHTING ZONE

Units of Manchoukuoan Army on Way to North China as Result of Resumption of Warfare.

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, July 11 (Sunday).—Troop trains carrying units of Japan's powerful Manchoukuoan army were reported rolling toward the North China trouble zone today as Chinese and Japanese forces resumed their bitter, intermittent warfare.

The troops clashed again yesterday and last night along the Yungting River about 10 miles west of Peiping, ending a precarious 36-hour truce. Although fighting ceased shortly before midnight it was expected to be resumed at daybreak.

The Japanese said they won the opening combat of the renewed conflict, capturing Lungwangmiao (Temple of the Dragon King) on the east side of the Yungting River about half a mile north of Marco Polo bridge.

It was near this 900-foot marble span that the original conflict began Wednesday night, when units of Japan's North China garrison on night maneuvers clashed with soldiers of the Chinese twenty-ninth army.

The first phase was ended by an armistice Friday, by which the Japanese withdrew to the east of the Yungting and the Chinese to the west.

Opposing Contentions.

Japanese declared the Chinese along the Yungting opened fire on them at 7:20 p. m. yesterday. The Japanese took up the challenge and seized Lungwangmiao after two hours' fighting. They said their casualties were heavier than in the earlier phase of the conflict, in which they lost 10 killed and 22 wounded.

Chinese charged the Japanese had broken the truce several hours previously, when they sent 600 soldiers with tanks, machine guns and field pieces from Fengtai to the Yungting area, where they attacked the walled village of Wanpinghsien.

Fengtai is an important railway junction about half way between Peiping and the Yungting. The Japanese had withdrawn most of their men there after the Friday truce.

There were Japanese reports of a fresh armistice early today, but the Chinese merely said they were trying to "halt the fighting by negotiations."

Reports, which conflicted in many details, indicated several local clashes followed the return of the Japanese from Fengtai to the river shortly after noon yesterday.

Situation Looks Ominous.

Dispatches telling of the rushing of Japanese reinforcements to the Peiping area, some from as far away as Mukden, made the outlook ominous. Hitherto only units of Japan's relatively small North China garrison have been engaged. The dispatches indicated the army in Manchoukuo—which totals over 100,000—might become involved.

The Hopei-Chahar Council, highest Chinese authority in the north, made public reports that 10 trains carrying units of the Kwantung army — Japan's Manchoukuoan force of occupation—had rolled out toward Peiping and two already had passed Shanhaikwan, at the Manchoukuo-China frontier.

Chinese railway men said two Japanese troop trains which passed through Tientsin reached Fengtai, where troops detrained and moved off in different directions as if to encircle Peiping. About 100 Japanese soldiers were reported near Shihchingshan, 10 miles north of Peiping where the city's electric power station is situated. The trains were said to carry tanks, armored cars, field guns and machine guns.

(Tientsin reported six troop trains from Manchoukuo reached Shanhaikwan, but that the troops detrained and went into temporary barracks there. Officials at Tientsin also said Japanese had commandeered rolling stock there to carry men and supplies to Peiping. The arrivals at Fengtai therefore may have come only from Tientsin. There was no evidence troops from Manchoukuo had entered the fighting zone.)

"We are preparing for war,' said one high Chinese official, charging Japan alone was responsible for breaking the truce.

Peiping was again under martial law. No trains left the city yesterday. Even the Chien Men, the great gate near the American embassy piercing the Tartar wall in the center of the city, was closed. This is done only in great emergencies.

Japanese War Minister Calls Conference of Staff.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, July 11.—The army command kept silent today concerning reports of Japanese troop movements from Manchoukuo into North China, but authoritative quarters, said reinforcements probably would be sent across the Great Wall to the North China garrison.

Gen. Gen Sugiyama, Minister of War, summoned the highest officers of his staff for a conference at 2 a. m. Officials of the Navy Ministry and foreign office also were in conference.

Authoritative observers based their belief the Kwantung army—Japan's army in Manchoukuo—would act on these factors:

There have been numerous indications recently of restlessness in the Kwantung army, freed from its major anxiety by reports that the Soviet army was in a bad state of morale.

Dispatches from China reported four divisions of the Nanking Government's best troops were moving northward.

Japanese consider Nanking has shown an "intransigeant" attitude concerning the Peiping crisis. They point to the note handed the Japanese Embassy at Nanking demanding that Japan formally apologize for the hostilities near Marco Polo Bridge, punish the officers responsible and pay indemnity for the Chinese casualties and property loss.

Four Divisions of Chinese Troops Reported Moving North.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, July 11 (Sunday).—a Domei (Japanese) News Agency dispatch from Hankow today said four divisions of the Chineses First Army had begun moving northward on the Peiping-Hankow Railway, possibly to reinforce the Twenty-ninth Army, embroiled with the Japanese west of Peiping.

Another Japanese dispatch said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nanking Government, had ordered his strong air force to be mobilized.

The First Army is known as Chiang Kai-shek's own. It is German trained and regarded as the finest unit of Chinese fighting forces.

In Nanking Chinese authorities were reticent about troop movements, but it was indicated "emergency precautionary" orders had been issued to Nanking forces along the Lunghai Railway, the main east-west trunk line north of the Yangtze River.

The army command was understood to have formulated emergency plans to be put into operation if the North China situation becomes worse. These, it was authoritatively indicated, would deal with the disposition of all Nanking forces north of the Yangtze.

Probably the forces would be assigned to a line along the southern bank of the Yellow River, the one great natural barrier between the Peiping-Tientsin area and Central China.

Chinese officials did not conceal fears that the grave turn taken by the Peiping situation might lead to larger military operations in the north than any that have gone before.

Gen. Chiang remained at Kuling.

Missourian Shot at Paragould.

PARAGOULD, Ark., July 10.—Albert Cole, 51 years old, Arbyrd, Mo., merchant and liquor store operator, was found in a hotel room here yesterday with a bullet wound in his left chest, described by Sheriff Robert Brashears as self-inflicted. Hospital attendants said Cole's condition was critical. He formerly operated a small place of business here and at one time was employed by the district highway shops.

WISCONSIN

When you call the family roll of vacation desires and find an assortment of divergent inclinations, don't worry. Though Mother insists on complete freedom from domestic responsibilities, young son votes for forest trails, wild creatures and an opportunity to use his woodcraft, grown-up daughter demands surroundings bright and gay, and Father must have his fishing—the answer is easy.

Wisconsin has everything! There are camps, resorts and hotels with just the accommodations you require. There are 7,000 lakes, thousands of miles of rivers and great areas of cool, green forests to thrill you with their natural beauty. And you will find friends to fit your every mood.

Let us tell you more about this grand vacation land.

May we send you a packet of vacation literature FREE?

Motorist Reported To Be This Country's No. 1 Payer of Taxes

Average Impost Declared to Be $51 a Year—72 Per Cent Rise in 10 Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, July 10.—The motorist has become the nation's leading taxpayer.

With the annual cost of taxes to the average motorist estimated at more than $51 each year, and with automotive vehicle registrations rapidly nearing the 30,000,000 mark, 1937 promises to be a banner year for automobile production and payment of automotive taxes.

Motorists now pay one of every seven tax dollars, although auto production in 1936 fell short of the 1929 peak, motor taxes climbed to a new high of $1,448,000,000 to represent a 72 per cent increase in 10 years.

Foremost among the levies imposed upon the motorist is the gasoline tax, which this year is breaking all previous records for revenue collected by the Government.

Tax Revenue Increasing.

The increase in automobile ownership the past few years, represented by an increase of more than 3,000,000 passenger cars and trucks, is producing a revenue from this levy that rapidly approaches a billion dollars annually. It is estimated that the 1937 "gas" tax on the average automobile will be $32, a rise of 35.9 per cent.

Since more than half of the average automobile owners' incomes are less than $30 per week, it is estimated by the American Petroleum Committee that the average taxpayer will have to work one to two weeks to pay this tax alone. The tax represents 30,000,000 man weeks of labor or the equivalent of an entire year's labor by 600,000 men.

The committee points out, however, that the Legislatures of 20 states have petitioned Congress to repeal the gasoline tax and leave the field exclusively to the states which depend chiefly upon this levy for funds for highway financing.

Results of this activity by the states, and the growing resentment against extending indefinitely this Federal tax, is seen in the action taken by the Senate Finance Committee, which voted to end the "temporary" levy June 30, 1938.

Car Owners More Numerous.

Meanwhile, it is estimated that in the past three years 3,000,000 families with incomes of $1500 a year have been added to the ever-increasing ranks of automotive taxpayers.

These families are not, however, to any large extent buyers of new cars. They have purchased the used cars that new cars have replaced. In this way the used car has played its part in broadening automobile ownership among the lower income groups.

In 1930, there were 26,545,000 automotive vehicles registered in the United States. This number tapered off the next three years until in 1933 there were nearly 3,000,000 fewer vehicles on the road.

With automobile buying back in high gear 1936, registerations continued an upward trend at a pace that by the end of the year resulted in nearly 29,000,00 cars being registered. It is expected that by the close of this year 5,000,000 more automobiles will be operating on the highways of the nation.

Americans earning $25 a week now own more automobiles than are owned by motorists in all income classes throughout the world, in countries having 15 times the population of the United States.

All-Time Passenger Record for a Month Set by American Airlines

American Airlines, Inc., announces a total of 30,902 revenue passengers in June, the first time any air line has attained the 30,000-passenger mark in a single month and a new all-time record for the air line industry.

C. R. Smith, president of the company, says that this figure represents an average of more than 1000 passengers per day for the entire month and indicates a gain of 7.5 per cent over the 28,757 passengers carried by American in October, 1936, previous record month for the industry.

It also represents an increase of 37 per cent over the 22,551 passengers carried in June, 1936, and 9.9 per cent over the 28,121 transported in May, the preceding month.

New U. S. Tire Lines Being Introduced

A new U. S. Royal Master safety tube, with a laminated three-ply base which is said to overcome tube failures due to pinching, abrasion, rust and corrosion, is announced by U. S. Tire Dealers Mutual Corporation.

The new laminated construction gives extra protection at rim side, extending over that part of the tube which comes into contact with the steel rim, and on up the walls beyond the toes of the beads. Additional safety is provided through use of heavy gauge heat-resisting stock which withstands extreme tire heat and high brake drum temperatures.

The new U. S. Royal Master tube features an entire new line of U. S. safety tubes. Prominent in the line are the new U. S. Royal and U. S. Peerless tubes. The U. S. Royal is an all-black, high carbon, heat-resisting tube of great tensile strength. It provides increased resistance to excessive tire heat of modern high-speed driving. The special grainless stock used in this tube prevents splitting or tearing in ordinary punctures.

The new U. S. Peerless tube, new in construction, material and appearance, has a laminated two-ply base to protect against rim side wear, is made of heat-resistant stock, and has vented construction, to prevent trapped air blowouts, and a molded rubber valve stem.

A new U. S. Guard tube completes the line.

New Goodrich Synthetic Material Makes Paper Oil and Water Proof

Water and oil proof air-tight paper, made of "Koroseal," a new synthetic elastic material recently discovered in the laboratories of the B. F. Goodrich Co., Akron, O., is announced.

The new paper is manufactured by applying the elastic material to kraft paper. Its uses include packaging chemicals, medicine and oil, for gaskets, flower pots and other applications.

Koroseal contains no rubber, nor is it a synthetic rubber.

The Koroseal coating has been found to be impervious to water, grease and oil action and corrosion, unaffected by sunlight, non-oxidizing and non-cracking with flexing, it is said. The coating doubles the tear resistance of the paper and adheres strongly to itself by heat sealing, the maker says.

Airline Hostesses To Be Reporters On Planes of TWA

Changes by TWA, announced in Kansas City by John B. Walker, vice-president in charge of traffic of Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., include setting up a new department known as the TWA News Bureau, which replaces the former public relations division.

Heading the new division, with headquarters in Kansas City, is Clancy W. Dayhoff, former public relations manager at Los Angeles. Since 1928, Dayhoff has been in airline news work. He was news manager on the Pacific Coast for Western Air Express and in 1935 was in New York City for Eastern Air Lines.

Air hostesses of TWA will be trained in the rudiments of reporting and news coverage so that they may interview passengers in flights from coast to coast.

Foreign Ruler Orders Armor-Plated Auto to Foil Any Assassin

A foreign ruler soon will be able to ride in his country in a new limousine secure in the knowledge that no assassin can make a successful attack on his life, unless he uses a cannon.

Enroute to him now is what has been declared by armor plating experts to be the most perfectly protected automobile ever built. It is a Packard Twelve limousine, armor plated.

All metal surfaces in the front, back and sides have an inner lining of quarter inch armor plate of a new type. The roof is protected with armor plate nearly as thick, and the floor has armor plating more than a quarter of an inch thick to guard against bombs. Windows are of bullet proof glass an inch and an eighth thick, made up of five different laminations.

No assassin could leap on the running board and wrench open the doors for there are no running boards. Steps fold under the car when doors are closed and there are no door handles. Entrance to the car can be gained only through use of a special key.

Graham Shipments Double June, 1936 Total

Graham shipments in the last two weeks in June more than doubled the figure for June 1 to 15, it is reported by F. R. Valpey, vice-president of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation.

"From June 15 to 30 we shipped 1000 new cars as compared with 488 shipped from June 1 to 15," Valpey said.

Graham's new trade-in plan, which allows careful drivers a bonus of as much as $100 extra, was a factor in stimulating Graham business during June, Valpey declared.

Studebaker Sales Gain 34 Per Cent

Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corporation, reports the sale of 10,140 passenger cars and trucks in June compared with 7573 in June, 1936, an increase of 34 per cent.

This brings total sales in the first six months of 1937 to 56,639, compared with 47,584 in the first six month of 1936—a gain of 19 per cent.

Cadillac-LaSalle Sales Up 81 Per Cent

A new record for June business for Cadillac-LaSalle is announced by General Manager Nicholas Dreystadt. Complete field reports showed 4404 cars delivered to customers.

Figures for the month topped the previous all-time June peak by 25 per cent and bettered June a year ago by 118 per cent.

Adding in the June volume, Dreystadt said customer deliveries from Nov. 1 to date have reached 33,215 units. In the comparative period of 1936, customer deliveries totaled 18,283. The increase is 81 per cent.

Cities to Seize Autos.

"If a motorist cannot afford to pay a traffic fine in Greeley, Colo., he cannot afford to drive a car," in the opinion of local justices of the peace. Justices have been authorized to seize cars of traffic law violators who fail to pay fines.

7154 Willys Cars Produced in June

Production of Willys cars in June totaled 7154 units, with total production since factory operations started on the current models in November, 1936, reaching 53,648 units.

Since Jan. 1, last, 49,628 units have been manufactured, according to a statement by David R. Wilson, president of Willys-Overland Motors, Inc.

Shipments of the new coupe model started in mid-June, and production on this model is running about 25 per cent of the total.

Orders for shipment in the last 10-day period of June showed a marked upward movement.

June 21, the company started a nation-wide economy contest, open to all drivers of legal age having driver's license in states where such licenses are required.

Wallace's Career Parallels That of Walter P. Chrysler

Succeeds J. E. Fields Who Becomes an Executive for Chrysler Corporation.

David A. Wallace, who has been appointed president of the Chrysler Division o fthe Chrysler Corporation, began working as an apprentice in the Santa Fe Railroad shops in Kansas. His career parallels in many ways that of Walter P. Chrysler, head of the Chrysler Corporation, also a Kansan, who started in the Union Pacific shops at Ellis, Kan.

Wallace finally got a job with an auto company at Flint, Mich., then handled sales in service in a Texas city, worked for a mining firm in Mexico, and became superintendent for a steel company at Charles City, Ia., which made tractors and later shells for the British Government. He served in the World War as a lieutenant and captain in the Motor Transport Service. For the next 10 years he was with the John Deere Plow Co., Waterloo, Ia., starting as a master mechanic and ending as general superintendent.

In 1929, he was called to Detroit by K. T. Keller, then vice-president, now president of the Chrysler Corporation, to be a member of Keller's personal staff. Within a year, he was vice-president in charge of manufacturing at the Chrysler Division plant and the Kercheval body plant. Until the De Soto Division built its own factory, he also was in charge of the making of De Soto cars.

In addition to being president of the Chrysler Division, Wallace holds the same office in the Pekin Wood Products Co., Helena, Ark., a Chrysler subsidiary, and in the Chrysler Marine Motor Co., which makes marine and industrial engines and is growing rapidly.

Wallace will devote his time largely to Chrysler's manufacturing activities. Joseph W. Fraser, vice-president and director of sales, will assume responsibility for the sales and advertising department, taking over duties heretofore performed by J. E. Fields, who has been promoted from president of the Chrysler Division to an executive position in the Chrysler Corporation.

Acoustic Laboratory to Aid Designers of Chevrolet Autos

A new acoustical laboratory for detecting noises, and designing methods for preventing them, has been placed at the disposal of Chevrolet engineers at the General Motors proving ground.

The laboratory, one of the most completely-equipped buildings of its kind, will provide Chevrolet engineers with greater facilities for co-ordinating mechanical excellence and silence of operation than they have ever before possessed, officials declared. The laboratory also will be used by other divisions of GM.

Enclosed within the buildings are two soundproof rooms, each with separate walls, ceiling, and floor to shut out outside noises. Sounds initiated in these and other testing rooms are recorded on instruments set up in a central control room, which has 48 separate circuits connecting it with various outlets in the five testing rooms in the building.

In one of the "silent rooms," the air is so still that the silence is oppressive. The floor is built on a six-inch concrete base, topped by heavy felt, over which a three-inch layer of concrete has been laid. On top of that is a layer of rock wool, a two-inch air space, another layer of rock wool, and a covering of transite.

The ceiling and walls are separated from the rest of the building by a six-inch air space. Successively, they include a six-inch layer of concrete, two-inch air space, two-inch layer of compressed rock wool, two-inch air space, two-inch layer of loose rock wool, and a covering of transite.

One of the "silent rooms" is built to admit an automobile for body, chassis, and engine acoustics tests, while the other will be used principally for parts testing. A third insulated room contains an engine dynamometer and apparatus for operating the chassis dynamometer tests.

An overhead treadmill has been built into the ceiling of another room to eliminate vibration during chassis dynamometer testing. The car is raised to roof level on a special hoist and run onto the wheels of the treadmill on the roof of the building. A specially constructed portable recording machine measures the required data in the room below.

Protection Against Insects Provided for Oldsmobile Autos

Protection against insects is available to Oldsmobile drivers for summer motoring. In addition to the built-in cowl ventilator screen which long has been a feature of Oldsmobile cars, mesh window ventilator screens may be obtained.

These screens, tailored to the forward contour of the window openings, permit the ventilator pane to be swung to its widest angle. They allow a volume of fresh air to enter the car body while blocking the entrance of annoying insects. The screens are regarded as an indirect factor of safety in summer driving because of the certainty with which they exclude bees and wasps, among other insects, from the interior of the car.

Oldsmobile accessory engineers also have given thought to protecting the Oldsmobile radiator cores against imperfect air circulation due to accumulation of insects. A snugly-fitted fine mesh galvanized screen may be installed as an outside cover over the radiator grille of either the six or the eight.

Three Buildings Being Added to Big Pontiac Auto Plant

Addition of nearly 60,000 square feet of floor space to the Pontiac Motor plant, in preparation for greater volume in the near future, is announced by H. J. Klingler, general manager.

Three new buildings, all under construction or soon to be started, compose the expansion program. One will house a school for plant apprentices; another, a foundry addition mainly for core storage, and the third a separate plant administration building which will also house executive dining and conference rooms.

The new apprentice school is being built adjacent to the plant frame storage building. When completed, it will be a one-story structure, 120 by 62 feet, of brick, steel and concrete. It is to be ready for occupancy by early fall. In it a full-time faculty will instruct young men in the specialized training required in modern plant operation.

The foundry addition, to connect two present foundry units, will be 230 feet long by 88 feet wide, 34 feet high, and will make for greater flexibility in foundry operation.

The new administration building will front on the driveway adjacent to plant 9, and will house the plant executive personnel. This building will be in addition to the executive administration building now occupied downtown in Pontiac. It will be a two-story structure, 390 feet long and 40 feet wide.

American Car Used in South African Scientific Expedition

Transportation for an expedition sent out by the South African Institute for Medical Research, which will travel over 15,000 miles of bad roads, will be in a stock-model Plymouth station wagon that the "microbe hunters" pressed into service as a heavy-duty "safari truck." Hundreds of miles through African bush, swamps, desert and great mountain ranges must be crossed before the scientists return in October to the institute's base at Johannesburg.

The expedition, headed by Dr. Elsdon Dew and J. de Bruijne of the research institute, must penetrate wild regions to make blood tests among native tribes, in an effort to extend knowledge of man's earliest history.

Although "paternity blood tests" are frequently used to determine the ancestry of individuals, this expedition is said to be the first scientific attempt to apply the tests to large groups. By means of this group testing of tribesmen, the expedition seeks to establish the history of tribal blood relationships.

The tests are expected to reveal the extent of invasions of Africa from Arabia and the Far East, now suspected to have been much more extensive than formerly believed. Dr. Dew spent four years perfecting the method of group-testing he employs.

Station wagons find unusual uses in Asia, far different from their original use as smart vehicles for estates, schools and hotels or beach parties. In India, the Maharajah of Indore keeps several in his garage for tiger hunting.

Booklet for Touring Car Owners Issued By Buick Factory

More than 2800 dealers' service stations are listed in a booklet released to car owners throughout the country by the Buick division of General Motors in preparation for the summer touring season.

The service points are listed by cities and states, including Alaska and the District of Columbia, and provide a quick reference for the traveling motorist. A million copies are being distributed to car owners.

A feature of the booklet is a section devoted to ready identification of highway traffic signs and tips on safe driving.

"Being a careful driver, you probably pay close attention to signs," it says. "But do you know how to read them before you see the lettering? It's simple, once you are familiar with the five standard shapes.

"The octagonal sign for STOP means dangerous corner, through traffic, stop street, junction.

"The circular sign for STOP means railroad crossing.

"A tilted square means slow for curve, hill, dangerous corner, detour, soft shoulders, dip, narrow road. And remember, slow down before you come to curves, not on them. Use second gear on steep hills. Should you find yourself on a soft shoulder, don't use your brakes or disengage the clutch; simply remove your foot from the accelerator and let your car slow down naturally before pulling back on the road.

"A regular square sign indicates information: cross road, men working, hospital zone. Usually this sign gives you a hint to slow down.

"An oblong sign carries directions: keep right, no left turn, distance into town, speed limit.

"Of course you already know the arm signals required for safe driving; arm upward for right turn, arm straight out for left turn, arm pointing down for slowing down and stopping."

Bank on Wheels Used in Argentina

The first "bank" on wheels is used by the Banco de la Nacion Argentina at Buenos Aires. Mounted on a Ford V-8, 112-inch wheelbase commercial chassis, this mobile financial institution journeys far into the hinterland of the Argentine to carry on business where banking facilities are not available.

Two passengers may be seated in the car, which has special accommodations such as folding chairs and tables, files, and a built-in safe. Several of these travelling banks have been built for the Buenos Aires institution.

Ford Co. to Enlarge Plant at Norfolk, Va., At Cost of $500,000

Plans for a $500,000 expansion of the Ford Tidewater branch assembly plant at Norfolk, Va., are announced.

The expansion will permit employment at peak of 250 more workers and increase plant capacity by 50 cars daily to 400 cars daily.

It will also provide facilities for handling parts and other material shipped from the Ford Rouge plant for use in assembly of Ford V-8 cars and trucks. The parts will be shipped in Ford vessels via the Great Lakes, New York State Barge Canal, Hudson River and Atlantic coastal waters.

The plant extension will be 520 feet long and 300 feet wide. Included in the program will be a 400-foot concrete dock, extending into the Elizabeth River.

The Ford Norfolk plant at present has no facilities for receiving or dispatching shipments by water. Cars and trucks manufactured there are sent overland 10 miles to the Norfolk army supply base, where they are loaded on Ford ships for transport. When the new dock is completed, the built-up units can be loaded directly at the plant, which lies seven miles up the Elizabeth River from Hampton Roads.

CREDITORS SEEK AUDIT OF HOWARDS CLEANERS

"Stupendous" Daily Losses Charged in Petition Filed in Federal Court.

Three creditors of Howards Cleaners, Inc., seekiing an audit of the firm's books, declared the business is being operated at "stupendous" daily losses in a petition filed in United States Judge Charles B. Davis' court yesterday.

The company filed a petition July 2 in Federal Court for reorganization under the amended bankruptcy act, asserting its business troubles were due to a strike fostered by competitors. Judge Davis granted the company's request that it temporarily be continued in control of the business. A hearing to determine whether a trustee should be appointed was set for July 30.

Creditors seeking the audit of the firm's books are the Mound City Realty Co., M. M. Realty & Investment Co. and Morris and Ann Lapin.

They alleged that "any solvency enjoyed by the firm," however slight it was, was achieved only by bookkeeping legerdemain." If an item labeled "surplus arising from appreciation of fixed assets" had been eliminated from the balance sheet, Howards would have had a deficit of $18,610.16 last April, the petition continued.

It was further alleged that the cleaning firm is unable to pay rent on its stores.

Howards, which conducts its business on a cash-and-carry basis, asserted in its reorganization petition that it had been engaged in a dispute for some time with other cleaning and dyeing companies, which have been seeking to force the concern to increase its prices. The dispute resulted March 10 in the strike, the company charged.

Main offices of the firm, at 2515 North Grand boulevard, and 69 branch offices in the city and county have been picketed. The firm in its petition listed assets of $161,166 and liabilities of $158,993.

HEAVY RAIN FLOODS WHEELING, WASHES OUT ROADS, BRIDGES

More Than 500 Automobiles Abandoned in Water; Traffic Paralyzed.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 10.—Heavy rains and high winds struck the Wheeling area late today, wrecked homes, flooded business districts, paralyzed traffic and marooned hundreds.

More than 500 automobiles were abandoned on U. S. Route 40 east of Elm Grove, it was reported. The highway was under from four to six feet of water. A tourist camp was completely washed out.

In the same sector more than 100 yards of Baltimore & Ohio railroad track were washed out. A Pittsburgh-Wheeling train, due in Wheeling at 7 p. m., was halted outside the city.

A railroad bridge and a highway bridge were reported swept away by the surging Wheeling creek.

NAVY FLYER KILLED IN CRASH

Companion Saved by Parachute Leap Near Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Lieut. Elmer Johansen, 41 years old, of Somerville, Mass., a naval reserve pilot, was killed today when his plane crashed in a corn field near suburban Glenview.

His mechanic, Roy J. Hedine, 32, of Northbrook, also of the naval reserve, bailed out at 1500 feet and escaped with minor injuries. Hedine said at an altitude of 6000 feet the plane went into a spin. After it had fallen about 2000 feet, he said, Johansen told him to jump. Johansen's body was found clear of the ship, indicating, Hedine said, the pilot jumped but waited too long.

AUTO CLUB PROTESTS AT TRAFFIC RULING

Protest against the enforcement of the traffic ordinance compelling motorists to drive in street car tracks by keeping to the right when eastbound on Manchester avenue, west of Kingshighway, was filed yesterday with the police traffic division and Charles G. Gonter, City Traffic Engineer, by the Automobile Club of Missouri.

It was pointed out that many arrests had been made, although officers agreed that it was difficult, and in certain instances where large trucks were involved, impossible to pass westbound street cars on the south side of the street. It was suggested that a white line, drawn in the center of the trackless pavement, would permit both east and west bound traffic safe use of the paved section.

The south side of the street is occupied by street car tracks and paved with rough cobblestones, while the north side has a smooth asphalt surface. There have been many accidents and several fatalities in that section of Manchester avenue.

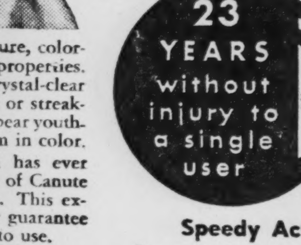
CANUTE WATER

RE-COLOR YOUR

Gray Hair

SIMILAR TO NATURE'S OWN YOUTHFUL SHADE



23 YEARS without injury to a single user

Canute Water is a pure, colorless liquid of wonderful properties. When you apply this crystal-clear fluid to your gray, faded or streaked hair, it will again appear youthful, lustrous and uniform in color.

Not a single person has ever been injured by the use of Canute Water in over 23 years. This exceptional record is your guarantee that it is perfectly safe to use.

Easy to Use

Because of its safety, cleanliness and dependability, you can use Canute Water alone, in the privacy of your own room. No previous experience is necessary. Simply wet your hair with it and allow to dry.

The time of day or the state of the weather makes no difference when using Canute Water. Apply it at your convenience. And since it does not alter the texture of your hair, you may curl, wave or set it—or get a permanent—as usual.

Speedy Action

It requires between one and three applications to re-color hair to its proper shade. The treatment can be completed in a single day.

And when your hair has once been re-colored, a single treatment, given only once a month, is sufficient to keep it that way. No more attention is necessary.

Never Fails

No matter what caused your hair to become gray, Canute Water will positively overcome it. There are no exceptions.

Even if you have used some other hair coloring, it will be a revelation to you to see what Canute Water can do for your hair.

Amazing Results

Canute Water is neither sticky nor greasy. It leaves your hair clean and natural to the touch. There's not even a suggestion of "dye". Neither is it just a hair "darkener". Canute Water imparts a color similar to nature's very own.

Lasting Color

Even your most intimate friends will be unable to distinguish the re-colored hair from your natural. And the new color remains in your hair, permanent against sun, air, salt-water and shampooing.

So, if you are still young — if you still care what others think — and if you are not quite ready to be classed with the "old folks" get a bottle now. It will solve your problem so completely that you, yourself, will be astonished.

Users like Canute Water so well that it has become one of our best sellers.

GARNISHMENT AGAINST LEONARD CEELEY DISSOLVED

Ex-Wife Fails to Post $29,565 Bond in Suit for $14,782 Back Alimony.

A garnishment against the salary due Leonard Ceeley, actor-singer, from the Municipal Opera Association for an appearance here was dissolved Friday with the failure of Mrs. Madeline Collins Ceeley, his former wife, to post $29,565 bond in Circuit Court in her suit for $14,782 back alimony.

The garnishment was served June 24, and June 28 Circuit Judge Max G. Baron sustained a motion by former Circuit Judge William H. Killoren, Ceeley's attorney, to dissolve it if bond was not posted by July 8. In her suit, filed June 23, Mrs. Creeley alleged that when she divorced Ceeley May 28, 1931, $25,000 gross alimony was awarded her, payable $100 weekly, but that he paid only $10,217. Ceeley filed a general denial.

DEMANDS INQUIRY INTO DEMOCRATS' '36 FUND-RAISING

Snell (Rep.) New York, Asks House for Special Committee on $250 Book Solicitation.

ROOSEVELT, FARLEY NAMED IN CHARGE

Minority Leader Wants to Know If They Were Parties to Evasion of Corrupt Practices Law.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Representative Snell (Rep.) New York, the minority leader, demanded today that the House investigate whether President Roosevelt and Postmaster-General Farley had been parties to a scheme to evade the law governing political campaign contributions.

He introduced a resolution calling for appointment of a special committee to investigate the alleged sale to corporations of President Roosevelt's autographed editions of the Democratic campaign book of 1936 at $250 a copy.

Asserting the Federal Corrupt Practices Act expressly forbade corporations contributing to presidential election campaigns, Snell said his resolution related to matters "involving, in my judgment, a clear violation" of the law.

"The Information Before Me."

"The information before me," he said, in a formal statement, "names the President of the United States and the Postmaster-General as parties to a scheme of evasion perfected and applied through the Democratic National Committee."

Farley is Democratic National Chairman as well as Postmaster-General.

Snell embodied in the resolution what he called "a letter of solicitation" from M. H. Porter of the Democratic National Committee.

The letter said sale of the autographed book was being used to clear up the committees' deficit and that it "enables us to legally accept corporation checks." . . .

Although Snell said he was "cognizant" of an official White House statement of June 9 that the President did not realize his autograph was to be used for that purpose, Snell said "nevertheless, the evidence before me indicates that the chairman of the Democratic National Committee has discovered several ingenious methods of raising campaign funds."

"Some of These Methods."

"Some of these methods," Snell continued, "to use the words of the President, as set forth in his message of June 1, on taxation, 'have the color of legality; others are on the border line of legality; others are plainly contrary even to the letter of the law.'"

Snell said if the House approved the inquiry, he would lay before the committee "purported" photostatic copies of the sales contract promising delivery of the President's autographed editions and the Democratic National Committee's letter of solicitation.

He said he would furnish an affidavit from a business man who was "subjected to various threats and measures of intimidation by officers and agents of the Resettlement Administration" when he declined to purchase $500 worth of the books.

Offer of Evidence.

In addiition, Snell promised to supply:

A list of corporations in at least 15 states which he said already have made substantial contributions to the Democratic National Committee "through this device of evasion."

"Evidence that in at least one Federal jurisdiction formal complaint against attempted coercion in the sale of these books was placed before the United States District Attorney, with no legal action resulting therefrom.

"Circumstantial evidence that lists of corporations doing routine business with various agencies of the United States Government were furnished to the Democratic National Committee as 'prospect lists' for the book salesmen."

The resolution would empower the committee to subpena witnesses, ascertain the names of all agents or solicitors employed to obtain contributions for the book, the names of all corporations and persons subscribing and whether any of them were engaged at the time of signing the contract in furnishing supplies or materials to the Government."

CAMBRIDGE STAR TAKES TWO FIRSTS, SETS RECORD

International Track and Field Meet Decided in Running of Final Event —Three Meet Records Established.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 10. — After five previous failures on American soil, the combined Oxford-Cambridge track team defeated the Harvard-Yale forces, seven first places to five, today. Three meet records fell.

The British collegians' success was due to the "doubles" registered by Cambridge's Godfrey Brown, England's current super-runner, in the quarter and half-mile races and the Oxonian Alan Pennington in the sprints.

Brown, who was expected to threaten Ben Eastman's world mark of 46.4 for the 440, was timed in 47.7 seconds when he broke the tape six yards ahead of James D. Lightbody Jr., Harvard freshman son of the American Olympic hero of 30-odd years ago.

Browns Wins the Clincher.

With the 12-events meet standing six first places to five in favor of the British, Brown, who was runner-up to the U. S. A.'s Archie Williams in the last Olympic 400-meters run, raced out of the ruck at the three-quarters mark and put on such a blistering finish that he led Alex Northrop of Harvard, by eight yards in the 880, turned in 1:54.3, to clinch the Britishers' first victory on this side of the Atlantic.

Brown's 47.7 was a new meet record. Others were supplied by Alfred Mills of Yale, when he won the 220-yards low hurdles in 23.6 seconds and Pennington when he broke the tape in the 220-spring in 21.3 seconds. The latter's first triumph was a slow 10.1 seconds performance in the 100.

Brown's blazing quarter was a let down to the slim crowd of 5000.

The unexpected was provided by C. A. John Emery of Cambridge, when he won the mile by 25-yards from Alex Northrop of Harvard in 4:13.8.

Five Cambridge athletes were victorious and three American first-places were gained by Yale's stars. The home forces were runners-up in nine of the 12 events and would have captured the meet under the usual point scoring system.

Americans Win Hurdles.

The other two British winners were Ali Irfan of Cambridge, with a 46 feet ⅝-inch throw in the shotput, and Charles E. A. Towne of Cambridge, in the two-miles, which he ran in 9:40 while beating Captain Wilbur Woodland of Yale, by 50 yards.

The American colleges swept both hurdles, the broad and high jumps and the pole vault. Mason Fernald of Harvard, who took the 120-yard high timber event in 14.9 seconds, Robert Haydock of Harvard, the high jump by clearing 6 feet 2 inches on his second try, Robert K. I. Kennedy of Cambridge, cleared that height on his third try to place second. Bill Harding of Yale, captured the vaulting honors with a 13 feet 8 inches vault, and E. Huntington Ethridge Jr., another Eli, covered 23 feet 10⅛ inch to win the broad jump.

The British team's victory was it sixth of the 13 meets held on both sides of the Atlantic since 1899.

The summary:

BABE RUTH IS OVERCOME BY HEAT ON GOLF COURSE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.

BABE RUTH, the home run king, collapsed on the sixth tee of a surburban golf course today. A physician who revived him later in the clubhouse said the baseball idol had been overcome by the heat, but that he was able to go home.

CROWDING MARS SEABISCUIT'S VICTORY IN $20,000 STAKE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Strengthening his position as leader of the handicap division, Mrs. C. S. Howard's Seabiscuit today easily won the $20,000 Butler Handicap at Empire City for his fifth successive triumph in eight starts this year.

Having administered defeat to the East's best in the Brooklyn Handicap two weeks ago, the four-year-old son of Hard Tack, a Wheatley stable castoff, today included two mid-Western campaigners, Mrs. Emil Denemark's Corinto and Finance, in his list of victims.

Carrying scale weight of 126 pounds and conceding plenty of poundage to his five rivals, the California star finished the mile and three-sixteenths with a length and a half to spare over B. M. Byers' Thorson after being bothered by James Butler's Caught soon after the start. Thorson, forced to go wide because of the crowding, closed fast to take runner-up honors three lengths in front of Corinto, winner of the Stars and Stripes Handicap at Arlington Park last Monday. Then came William Ziegler's Esposa, second last year, Caught and Finance.

Guided by John (Red) Pollard, Butte, Mont., veteran, Seabiscuit led almost from the first jump, stood off repeated challenges and then drew out in the last furlong to finish the long journey in 1:58 3-5. The time was only two-fifths of a second slower than the track record set by Good Gamble in winning the event last year.

The crowd of about 12,000 sweltering fans made Seabiscuit the 9 to 10 choice to win the purse of $18,025. The triumph boosted his earnings for the year to $82,025, a tidy sum for a horse that such a shrewd trainer as James Fitzsimmons let go for a reported price of $8000. His record for the year includes six victories, and a second behind Rosemont in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap last February.

CUNNINGHAM RUNS SLOW 1500 METERS

By the Associated Press.

CRYSTAL BEACH, Ont., July 10.—Glenn Cunningham ran 1500 meters in a slow 3:58 today and nosed out Charlie Fenske of Wisconsin University by two yards in the feature event of the Erie Club's track and field games.

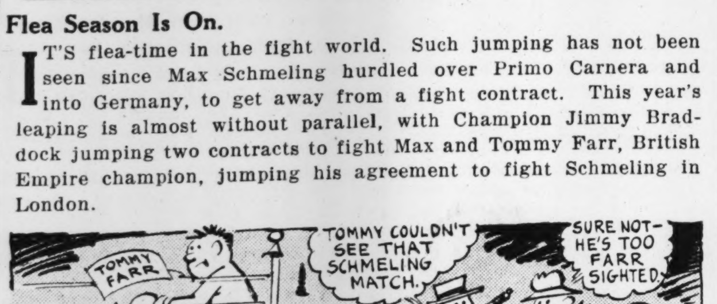
Flea Season Is On.

IT'S flea-time in the fight world. Such jumping has not been seen since Max Schmeling hurdled over Primo Carnera and into Germany, to get away from a fight contract. This year's leaping is almost without parallel, with Champion Jimmy Braddock jumping two contracts to fight Max and Tommy Farr, British Empire champion, jumping his agreement to fight Schmeling in London.



TOMMY FARR
TOMMY COULDN'T SEE THAT SCHMELING MATCH.
SURE NOT—HE'S TOO FARR SIGHTED.
AW

Apparently, all you have to do to convert a fighter into a flea is to wave a few bank notes and immediately he becomes the world broad-jumping champion.

In the current instances, Max Schmeling, the victim, has been working himself into a frenzy over his injustices. And, really, Max seems to have been badly treated.

But, since he himself started the flea business several years ago when, after whipping Young Stribling, he fled from an agreement to fight Carnera, Man Mountain, it appears that Justice is not so blind as pictured.

Max May Get His.

FURTHERMORE, there now looms the possibility that Schmeling will come out of the trouble fairly well. That's because he is being considered as an opponent for the winner of the Louis-Farr contest, which takes place in August.

It is possible that Louis or Farr will battle Schmeling a

Seabiscuit Gallops to Fifth Straight Victory

White Sox Pitcher's Single in Eleventh Beats Browns, 5-4

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Clint Brown's single with two on in the eleventh inning this afternoon beat the Browns, 5 to 4, and left them without profit thus far in the four-game White Sox series.

It was a disappointing blow from the standpoint of some excellent pitching by Oral Hildebrand, who limited the Sox to just eight scattered hits, three of which bounced off the potent bat of Iron Mike Kreevich.

The Browns' attack included 12 hits off Sugar Cain and Brown, and Harlond Clift's sixteenth homer of the season. As part of the White Sox assault Luke Appling hit his second four-bagger of the year.

Walk Paves Way.

Brown put the game on ice for the Sox in the eleventh. Hayes opened with a walk and Berger sacrificed. Sewell was purposely passed with the idea of making the Sox relief pitcher the second out, but Clint paid no attention to the strategy and proceeded to drive in the winning run with a single to center.

Cain's first inning, while painless after the third out, indicated that he might be in for the same sort of treatment accorded him all season. Knickerbocker opened the game with a single and later there was a pass to West, but in between was a double play on Davis' poke to Hayes. In the second Cain was perfect, and as a celebration over this happening, the Sox gave him a one-run lead in their half.

This run was managed almost exclusively by Bonura, who started himself legitimately and completed the journey at bargain rates. Zeke led off in the second with a two-bagger into the left field corner. Appling slapped a fly to Bell in right and Zeke galloped to third after the catch. When Hayes dispatched a fly to West in center, Zeke ran home.

Cain's lead melted down into a tie in the third, the fuel coming from a pair of singles. Hildebrand nudged a one-base safety past Hayes after Carey had flied to Radcliff. Knickerbocker was thrown out on a bunt which he figured wouldn't be anticipated. Davis lined a single into center to score Hildebrand. Davis went to second when nobody cut off Kreevich's throw to the plate but West flied to Radcliff.

Homer for Appling.

The Sox assembled their resources in the fourth and fixed up a two-run advantage for Cain, but it was short-lived. Kreevich led off with a single to left and didn't hesitate about stealing second. He went to third while Carey was throwing out Walker. Bonura sent a fly to West and Kreevich scored. Hildebrand's next pitch was hustled into the pavilion in left center by Appling for his No. 2 homer. Hayes followed with a single to center but was forced on Berger's smash which Hildebrand deflected into Knickerbocker's hands.

Cain got by successfully in the fifth despite an opening single by Carey, but wasn't as fortunate in the sixth. The Georgia plantation owner started this inning by passing West. Right after this Clift drove his sixteenth homer of the season into the left field pavilion to tie the score. The next three men caused no trouble. In the Sox half Bonura singled and Appling

MUNY DOUBLES TITLES WILL BE DECIDED TODAY

The St. Louis Municipal men's and women's tennis championships will come to a close this afternoon with the playing of the final round matches on the Jefferson Memorial courts in Forest Park. The winning teams will qualify for the National Public Parks tennis tournament to be held in Pittsburgh next month.

In the final round of the women's doubles starting at 2 o'clock, Merceina Weiss and Mrs. Jean Dalstrom, defending champions, will oppose Mrs. Virginia Dueker and Frances Jacobson, former titleholders.

The men's doubles final will bring Frank Keaney and Ward Parker against William Bell and Wayne Smith. The 1936 champions Ted Drewes and Robert Norton did not defend their title this year.

Keaney and Parker reached the final round by winning their semi-final round match from Wilbur Lindauer and Jack Plunkert, 6—2, 6—1, 6—2, yesterday afternoon. In the other semi-final, Bell and Smith eliminated John English and Joe Petrik, 6—3, 7—5, 6—2.

Mrs. Dueker and Miss Jacobson took their semi-final match from Mrs. Frank Furlong Jr. and Mrs. George Stemmler, 6—3, 6—2, but the other semi-final contest was a battle from start to finish. Miss Weiss and Mrs. Dalstrom won from Lois Keene and Mrs. Ella Dietz-Felbinger, 8—6, 3—6, 6—4, to gain the final round.

The final matches in the singles championships were played last week. Frank Keaney and Merceina Weiss successfully defended their titles.

QUEBEC GOLFER HAS EVEN-PAR 280 TO WIN IN $4000 OPEN

By the Associated Press.

FONTHILL, Ont., July 10.—Little Jules Huot of Quebec, who packs a lot of golfing punch in his 130-pound frame, outlasted a trio of sharpshooters from the United States through the ups and downs of the final 36 holes today to win the $4000 General Brock Open golf tournament.

Huot smashed the competitive record for the 7000 yard, hilly Fonthill course with a 66 this morning when all the stars were beating par. Then he came back with a 72 on the final round for a total of 280 for 72 holes. This figure, equalling par, was five strokes under the previous tournament record and two better than the card turned in by Wild Bill Mehlhorn of Louisville.

Mehlhorn, starting the last two rounds three strokes behind Huot, picked up only one as he shot a 67, also under the previous course record, then a par-equaling 70. Harry Cooper of Chicago, Huot's playing partner, duplicated Mehlhorn's rounds to tie for third with 283. Ray Mangrum of Dayton, O., who shot 70-72 today, also finished with 283.

Behind these four leaders came long-driving Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., who staged a brilliant finish with 71-68 on his last two rounds for a 284 total.

Huot clipped one stroke from par on his outgoing nine this morning, then went to town on the tough back stretch to go three more strokes under perfect figures.

In all, six players bettered par on the third round. In addition to Huot, Mehlhorn, Thompson and Cooper, Jimmy Hines of Garden City, N. Y., shot a 67 and Oliver and Mike Farco of Buffalo 69's.

ARKANSAS HUMMINGBIRD DRIVEN TO SHOWERS BY FIFTH-INNING ASSAULT

Scarsella, Hafey, Myers and Goodman Hit for Circuit — Second Defeat of Year at Hands of Cincinnati Makes Redbirds Lose Ground in Flag Race.

By J. Roy Stockton.

A tall, wiry right-handed pitcher who started on the mound for the Cardinals at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon was identified definitely as one Lon Warneke of Mt. Ida, Ark., but most of the 9653 persons who formed the Ladies' Day crowd are still wondering about it. Warneke has been known as the Arkansas Hummingbird, because he throws a fast ball that sings as it darts past hostile bats. But in the second game of the series, it might have been Rufus McGoofus or Dannie the Dub out there on the hill.

Four times Cincinnati bats crashed the delivery of the reknowned Warneke for home runs There were three resounding doubles off his delivery and as early as the fifth inning with only two outs, the fourth four-bagger of the afternoon, a drive by Ival Goodman to the screen above the right field pavilion, sent the Hummingbird winging to the clubhouse, rumpled and beaten.

Cardinal pitching wasn't so bad after that fellow definitely identified as Warneke departed, but the Reds already had many more runs than they needed and at the finish the score was Cincinnati, 11, Cardinals 3, for the Reds' second 1937 triumph over the Gas House Gang. And ten of the runs and 13 of the 16 Cincinnati wallops were fashioned off the things that Warneke was using for fast ball and curve.

Lose Ground.

As the Cubs and Giants made it a day of victory, the Cardinals lost ground in their fight to overhaul the teams ahead of them, but as the Chicago triumph was gained at the expense of the Pirates, the Gas House Gang remained only half a game behind the third-place Pittsburgh club.

The Reds didn't waste much time taking the Warneke fellow for his ride. He disposed of the first two batters in the opening inning, but Scarsella walked and scored when Chick Hafey, the big come-back man from California, slammed a double to left-center. Lombardi then caromed a single off Gutteridge's glove and Hafey scored. Riggs followed with a double, moving Lombardi to third, but Padgett helped by making a fine running catch of Kampouris' foul to end the inning.

Derringer's single was the only hit off Warneke in the second, but Scarsella opened the third with a home run blast to the pavilion roof. Hafey walked, took third on Lombardi's single and scored when Myers caromed a single off Durocher's glove. Baseballs were squirting out of St. Louis infielders' hands all afternoon.

Goodman doubled in the fourth and scored on Scarsella's single and after Scarsella was picked off first, Hafey drove a homer into the left-field seats.

Myers Hits Into Bleachers.

With one out in the fifth, Kampouris beat out a grounder to Durocher and Myers hit far into the bleachers in left center, scoring behind Kampouris. Derringer fouled out, but Jordan walked, took second on a wild pitch and scored ahead of Goodman on Ival's drive against the screen above the pavilion roof.

That sent Warneke to the showers, and the only additional Red run materialized in the seventh, when Myers doubled to left and scored on Goodman's double to right.

The Cardinals finished with 11 hits, but despite that fairly respectable total, their attack seemed woefully weak. A pass to Padgett and Medwick's double against the right-field screen produced a run in the first inning and singles by Ogrodowski, Brown and Padgett, added one in the fifth. In the seventh Ogrodowski singled for his third straight hit, took second on

RED 'N' BIRD NOTES

Jim Winford and Ray Harrell probably will be the Cardinal starting pitchers in this afternoon's double-header. Al Hollingsworth and Ray Peaches Davis are likely to work for the Reds. Jess Haines may draw one of the Cardinal starting assignments.

The second game of the series attracted a ladies' day crowd of 9653 including 4496 women, 3016 cash customers, 1455 boys and 686 girls.

After today's twin-bill, the Cardinals will go direct to Union Station for a trip to Pittsburgh where they open a series tomorrow.

Abe White, the left-hander from Buford, Ga., relieved Warneke in the fifth and pitched to only one batter, Scarsella bunting to the mound for the third out. Stuart Martin then batted for White in the home fifth and the stands booed. The customers wanted to see more of the left-hander, who was making his Sportsman's Park debut.

It was a hot sultry day and in an early inning, Derringer carried a towel to the mound and kept it near at hand to dry his hands. Frisch complained a bit about it, asking what the game was coming to. Umpire Barr replied that he saw no reason to bar the towel.

Five of the nine Reds in the starting lineup were developed in the Cardinal organization. They were Derringer, Myers, Riggs, Hafey and Goodman.

GERMANY TO OPPOSE U. S. TEAM IN DAVIS CUP ZONE FINAL

VON CRAMM AND PARTNER WIN THREE MATCHES FROM CZECHS

Series Between Americans and Germans to Be Played at Wimbledon, July 17 to 20.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 10.—For the second time in three years, Germany earned the right to meet the United States in the interzone final of the Davis Cup competition today when the combination of Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Heinrich Henkel scored in the doubles for the third straight victory over Czechoslovakia in the final round of the European competition.

Following up their singles triumphs of yesterday, Von Cramm and Henkel whipped Ladislaus Hecht and Josef Caska, 6—1, 6—2, 10—12, 6—0. Two singles matches remained to be played but have no effect on the outcome other than determining the final score.

The Americans, paced by redheaded Don Budge, will clash with Germany's two-man team at Wimbledon July 17, 19, 20. The survivor of that series will go into the challenge round against England at Wimbledon, July 24, 26, 27.

Budge is the only surviving member of the American team that defeated the Germans four matches to one in 1935. He beat both Henkel and Von Cramm in the singles, conquering the latter after the series had been decided. Wilmer Allison, playing No. 1 on the U. S. team, split even in his two singles matches and paired with Johnny Van Ryn to whip Von Cramm and K. Lund in the doubles.

INTER-PLAYGROUNDS SPORT SCHEDULE FOR GIRLS OPENS JULY 19

A new wrinkle in school playground sports activities for girls this year is the playing off of intramural tournaments in shuffleboard, aerial darts, jumping rope, jackstones and O'Leary. These are offered in addition to the regular games, endball, volleyball, softball and net handball, so that every girl may take part in some division of the athletics program.

These intra-mural activities will be carried on the entire season, according to Marion Bernard, supervisor of girls' sports for the 70 public school play centers. The inter-playground schedule starts July 19. Junior girls are listed for endball, senior girls for volleyball, softball and net handball.

The inter-playground meet for boys swings into its second week Monday with 56 contests booked for a five-day period. Junior and senior boys vie for honors in dodgeball, softball, volleyball and horseshoes. Otto L. Rost, football coach at McKinley High School, is in charge of these activities.

Inter-playground sports card:

Boys' games—Tomorrow: Cleveland at Carondelet; Scruggs at Woerner, Longfellow at Mason; Shaw at Lindenwood. Tuesday—Gardenville at Long; Oak Hill at Buder; McKinley at Hodgen; Pestalozzi at Clinton; Blewett at Arlington; Hempstead at Laclede. Wednesday—Froebel at Shepard, Fremont at Fanning, Rock Spring at Wyman, Roosevelt at Mullanphy, O'Fallon at Howard, Beaumont at Farragut, Ashland at Central; Marquette at Cote Brilliante; Herzog at Walnut Park; Walbridge at Baden: Scullin at Gundlach: Hamilton at Emerson; Washington at Dozier. Thursday—Dewey at Mason; Shaw at Gratiot; Clay at Eliot; Columbia at Webster. Friday—Woodward at Cleveland.

Kopczak, Notre Dame Tackle Last Year, to Assist Jim Conzelman

By James M. Gould.

Frank Kopczak, one of Notre Dame's star tackles during the 1936 season and a June graduate at South Bend, has been named assistant coach at Washington University according to an announcement made last night by Jimmy Conzelman, the Bears' head football coach. Kopczak will act as general assistant to Coach Conzelman replacing Gale Bullman, recently appointed director of athletics at the Missouri School of Mines at Rolla.

Another assistant to Conzelman, to take the place of Percy Gill who joined Bullman at Rolla, will be named later.

Kopczak was strongly recommended for the post by Elmer Layden, once famous as a member of Notre Dame's "Four Horsemen" and, for the past three years, director of athletics and head coach at his Alma Mater. Washington's Bears uses a modification of the Notre Dame system and Coach Conzelman therefore feels that Kopczak will fit in nicely with the line as his special field. It is probable also that Kopczak will be an "all-year" man to help in coaching other sports as did Gale Bullman.

Kopczak, now 22 years old, prepped at Harrison Tech in Chicago, where he played with Pilney, Pupils and Pojman, also stars of Irish teams. He played but little in his sophomore year at Notre Dame but, in the middle of the 1935 season, replaced Michita soon after the start of the campaign and thereafter was "first-stringer." He weighs a mere 205 in playing condition which means that some of Washington's linemen are going to have a bit of trouble tossing their new coach around Francis Field.

One of Kopczak's famous feats at Notre Dame was his playing 54 minutes against Pittsburgh in 1935. In Washington's brilliant game against Notre Dame a year ago, Frank was on the sidelines with an injury.

Kopczak will report to Coach Conzelman for duty early in September. The Bears' practice opens this year on Sept. 7.

SUSPENSION OF MINOR HOCKEY FRANCHISE AT BOSTON IS EXTENDED

By the Associated Press.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., July 10.—Suspension of the Boston franchise was extended for one year by directors of the International-American Hockey League at their summer meeting here today.

The Boston club, formerly operated in the Canadian-American League by the National League Boston Bruins as a "farm" team, was dropped last season by the Bruins. The directors today decided to extend the suspension for a year in hope that operations might be resumed.

The directors also decided to open the 1937-38 season on Nov. 6 and close it March 26. They voted to recognize and respect the negotiation list of the National Hockey League.

Marry at Softball Park.

In a ceremony at the Sisler South Side Softball Park last night, John Zurfluh, manager of the Silver Seals girls' team which plays at the park, married Miss Marie Brozka, former player. The ceremony, witnessed by about 3500 persons, took place after the regular girls' game, in which Zurfluh's team lost by an 8-0 score to the K'mer Girls.

walked but this happened with two out and Hayes couldn't shove them plate-ward.

Hildebrand stepped to the plate with one out in the seventh and for the second time played a part in scoring a run. He singled to right and Cain helped him to second by perpetrating a wild pitch. Knickerbocker singled to right and Hildebrand was willing to stop at third but scored after taking a look into right and observing that Walker had fumbled momentarily. Knickerbocker stole second as Davis waved at a third strike and West flied to Kreevich.

Hildebrand worked himself into a wild state in the home seventh and the Sox accepted this as a good reason to pick up the one run needed for a 4-to-4 tie. Sewell walked with one out. Rosenthal batted for Cain and also walked. Knickerbocker picked up Radcliff's grounder and tossed to Carey to force Rosenthal at second. Then Kreevich peeled off a single to left, Sewell scoring. The inning ended with Bonura's smash to Knickerbocker.

BLATTNER WINS IN JUNIOR CUP TENNIS TRIALS

By Davison Obear.

The Junior Davis Cup tennis players will complete their week's training period with six final trial matches on the Triple A Club courts in Forest Park this afternoon. Four singles and two doubles matches will be on the program starting at 2 o'clock.

In the first two singles matches Sterling Lord Jr., Burlington, Ia., meets Henry Teiber, St. Louis District junior champion, and Joseph Carney, Des Moines, plays Jimmie Johnson, University City. The other two matches at 3 o'clock will bring Walter Pearson Jr., Muskogee, Ok., against Eugene Lindemann, St. Louis, and Robert Blattner, St. Louis against Allan Carvell, Webster Groves player.

Following the four singles matches the doubles contests will be played. Blattner and Pearson will oppose Johnson and Teiber in one, while Lord and Carney meet Lindemann and Carvell in the other. All matches this afternoon will consist of the best two out of three sets.

Blattner, who fractured his left wrist three weeks ago, won his singles and doubles matches yesterday. He was playing without splints on his arm for the first time since he received the injury.

Blattner defeated Teiber, 6—3, 6—3, then paired with Pearson to defeat Lord and Carney in the doubles.

Carvell won from Lord in the feature of yesterday's matches. The Burlington (Ia.) youth, however, gave his opponent a great battle before losing. The final score was 6—8, 6—4, 8—6. In the third set Carvell led, 5 to 4, in games and had 40-love in the tenth game when Lord won five straight points to take the game and bring the set to deuce.

Johnson and Teiber, district junior doubles champions, just did win from Lindemann and Carvell in their doubles match. This contest also went the limit of three sets, Johnson and Teiber winning, 1—6, 6—1, 6—4.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Singles.

Walter Pearson, Muskogee, Ok., defeated Jimmie Johnson, University City, Mo., 6—2, 6—2. Robert Blattner, St. Louis, defeated Henry Teiber, St. Louis, 6—3, 6—3. Eugene Lindemann, St. Louis, defeated Joseph Carney, Des Moines, 6—3, 7—5. Allan Carvell, Webster Groves, Mo., defeated Sterling Lord Jr., Burlington, Ia., 6—8, 6—4, 8—6.

Doubles.

Blattner and Pearson defeated Lord and Carney, 6—1, 6—2. Johnson and Teiber defeated Lindemann and Carvell, 1—6, 6—1, 6—4.

PRO GOLFERS RESUME $1000 MATCH TODAY

The second 18 holes of a $1000 golf match will be played this afternoon at Sunset Hills Country Club at 2 o'clock. Johnny Manion, who is Sunset's professional, and his partner, Walter Kossman, will be 2 down when they start today against Coleman Morse and Benny Richter, who took the lead at St. Clair last Sunday with a 67 bestball over the par 72 course. The final leg of the 54-hole match will be played over Norwood's Hills next Sunday.

Qualifying rounds at 36 holes for candidates for the team to represent St. Louis in the coming National Public Links Tournament, will be held over the 18-hole Forest Park course, Wednesday. Four men will comprise the team to be sent to San Francisco where the championship tournament will be held Aug. 9-16.

Jack Burns, secretary of the local P. G. A., announced 10 of St. Louis' professional golfers intend to compete in the $10,000 Chicago Open at the Medinah Club, July 23-25. They will play against such well-known competitors as Sam Snead, Ralph Guldahl, and Harry Cooper, who are listed in Chicago as the favorites. Ray Schirmer, St. Louis professional, has already left for Chicago to tune up for the big money event.

It is more than likely Freddy Haas and Paul Leslie—a Jefferson City (Mo.) boy—will be on next year's Walker Cup team. Only three tournaments count in the U. S. G. A.'s selection of a Walker Cup team. The tournaments are the National Amateur, the Western Amateur, and the National Intercollegiate. Leslie has been finalist in the Intercollegiate for the last two years and last year won the Western. Haas won this year's Intercollegiate last week. With these records, one or both of the boys will make the trip to England next year—if they both do well in the National Amateur at Portland next month.

Paul Jamison, young Glen Echo golfer, left last week with the Yale golf team for a series of intercollegiate matches abroad. Yale's squad consisted of 10 golfers and a coach. Jamison will captain the team next year.

With Leslie and Jamison president and secretary, respectively, of the National Intercollegiate Golf Association, it is not improbable that some St. Louis clubs will be approached for the college tourney next year.

Entries for the sectional qualifying round of the National Amateur close on July 14. If there is no more interest or entries from St. Louis this year than there was last, it is likely that St. Louis will no longer be a sectional qualifying center and those who wish to play from St. Louis will have to go either to Kansas City or Chicago to qualify.

The Normandie Golf Club last week issued a challenge to the Crystal Lake Club for a team match. The Crystal Lake players recently added the district junior team championship to their district and State 4-man team titles. The match will be a 36-hole home-and-home event with the first round being played at Normandie this morning.

With an early lead that was commanding, it was an easy day for big Paul Derringer, who always seemed to have plenty in reserve whenever the Cardinals became what might be nicknamed threatening.

It was a hot stuffy afternoon and there were several verbal clashes between Johnny Mize, who hit the ball hard all afternoon without dropping one in safe territory, and the Red dugout. In the ninth inning, after taking a throw from Durocher, Mize turned and fired the ball into the Red dugout. Owen was over there backing up the throw and of course it might have been purely accidental, but the way Mize stood out there after making the throw indicated that he was willing to let it stand as a challenge.

It is enough to ruffle anybody's temper. Lon Warneke pounded for 13 hits and 10 runs in four and two-thirds innings and the great Dizzy Dean suffering from big-toe trouble. Woe is the Gas House Gang.

BELLEVILLE MAN HAS HIGH SCORE IN DENVER TRAP SHOOT EVENT

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, July 10.—Bobby Van Schaack, 15, Denver, won the handicap event today in the annual Colorado State trapshoot.

The youngster smashed 95 birds out of 100 tries to dethrone another Denverite, Hugh Smith, who was second.

R. P. Christman, Belleville, Ill., also cracked 95 out of 100 birds, but was ineligible for the championship, open only to Colorado residents.

WRAY'S COLUMN

month or six weeks later in Chicago, and thereby give Max a 30 per cent cut of what should be the greatest gate of the season. It will be even more than a million dollar gate, should Louis win.

So say the guessers. The million dollar gate has been just around the corner in several fights—but it hasn't been realized since Jack Dempsey quit the arena.

And, while we are guessing, ours is that they'll never again have a million dollar gate, as long as they sell broadcasting rights and seats at binocular distances from the ringside.

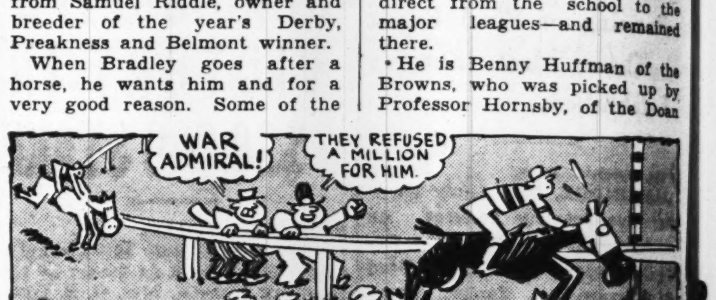
Another Million Dollar Matter.

If you didn't know it before, you know it now—War Admiral is the horse of the year, and perhaps of the last decade.

That fact was accentuated recently when the veteran breeder of racers E. R. Bradley sought to buy the son of Man o' War from Samuel Riddle, owner and breeder of the year's Derby, Preakness and Belmont winner.

When Bradley goes after a horse, he wants him and for a very good reason. Some of the Bradley sires are getting along in years and this War Admiral would be just the thing to keep the Idle Hour Farm up to the four-derby-winner standard which it already has established.



WAR ADMIRAL!
THEY REFUSED A MILLION FOR HIM.

THAT MILLION DOLLAR "GAIT"

Bradley offered a huge sum for War Admiral—but it wasn't enough. Owner Riddle, in refusing the offer, declared he 'would not take a million dollars for his colt."

"This is the best son of Man o' War that I have bred," was his comment. "He will enable us to continue the Man o' War line after that great sire is dead."

Now, don't laugh when Mr. Riddle suggests one million dollars as War Admiral's value. Aside from the possibility of his picking up another $100,000 or more in turf winnings, there is the breeding value to be considered.

Man o' War has given to Glen Riddle Farm almost one million dollars worth of produce in Crusader, American Flag, Scapa Flow and many, many other great performers, not counting War Admiral. In addition, the stud fees charged have brought in hundreds of thousands of dollars during the 17 years that have elapsed since the son of Fair Play retired from races.

Man o' War is only 20 years old and if he lasts as long as Broomstick he will be useful until he is in the thirties. It is likely that Man o' War's value to the Glen Riddle Farm will approximate $2,000,000 rather than $1,000,000, and there is no reason why War Admiral should not duplicate his sire's economic record.

Professors Diz and Carl.

The faculty of Jimmy Wilson's baseball school begins to take on the appearance of an all-star team. The roster today includes the famous pitching rivals Dizzy Dean and Carl Hubbell, Bucky Walters, Pepper Martin, Johnny Moore and Hans Lobert, with other distinguished lights of baseball yearning to join. Then there will be Doctor Weaver of the Cardinals and Professor Miller of the Phillies to teach the young idea how to develop and maintain the old soupbone at 100 per cent efficiency.

We were about to suggest the addition of Al Schacht to the faculty board as Professor of Baseball Clowning; but on second thought it is apparent that Al is not needed. Professor Dizzy, in fact, can triple in pitching, clowning and contract bargaining.

Baseball schools have become numerous in recent years, some have prospered—others have not. It has been charged that they are "rackets" and do little good for the players.

On the other hand we have at least one instance in which they produced a player who jumped direct from the school to the major leagues—and remained there.

• He is Benny Huffman of the Browns, who was picked up by Professor Hornsby, of the Doan School, at Hot Springs, and drafted for the Browns. He is still with the team and is doing fine.

It's a Trifle Late.

The State Athletic Commissioners have decided, after several years, that wrestling matches ought to be decided in the ring and not in the aisles or in spectators' laps. They have issued an order that wrestlers henceforth must confine their antics to the ring or suffer disbarment.

Throwing opponents out of the ring was one of the first of the modern stunts designed to lift the sport out of the doldrums of honest-to-goodness wrestling into the thrills of vaudeville.

Ed Lewis was the virtual originator of the stunt and it is more than 12 years since he introduced it into the championship field. That happened in 1925 when the late Wayne Munn tossed Lewis outside the ring, at Kansas City, and won the title. He became champion of something he knew little about, as was shown when Stan Zbyszko got hold of him in Philadelphia and stripped him of the title in a few minutes.

Lewis started throwing opponents and being himself thrown from the ring years ago. In seven matches this writer tabbed 22 times he was thrown out of the ring.

Now it all comes out officially: The ruling of the commission is a virtual admission that wrestling matches CAN be conducted with propriety and the principals remain within legal territory—that is to say, on the mat.

Some day they will bar the slapstick stuff that now passes for wrestling and restore the game to the real wrestlers. But "some day" seems distant.

DeMar, Barred by A. A. U., Denies He Demanded More Than Expense Money for Meet

KEENE, N. H., July 10.—Clarence DeMar, grand old man of marathoning who trains on nothing stronger than soda-pop, tonight was an exile from the American Amateur Athletic Union.

De Mar, according to the powers that be in official amateurdom, suggested to other American athletes that they should get more than expenses and transportation out of Texas for running in the Pan-American marathon at Dallas, July 18. And summarily, on advice from Dan Farris, New York A. A. U. secretary, DeMar's name was withdrawn as an entrant in the race.

Today it was not the heat-wave that made DeMar's blood boil. It was the aspersion he claimed was cast upon him by that charge, and he denied it vigorously.

Usually mild-mannered, the 50-year-old runner whose hobbies are teaching a Bible class and giving pointers to young running aspiranst, steamed up over the charges and declared:

"I like to run—but I don't like to get the runaround."

The man who has seven times in a quarter century von the classic Boston Athletic Association marathon, blasted the A. A. U. for its "Picayune policies" which have "seeped into the handling of athletes who apparently are expected to pay their own expenses for the honor of competing."

Telling of his arrangements for the trip to Dallas which he made with a man from Yonkers, N. Y., he had never heard of before, DeMar charged the man quibbled over his demand for Pullman transportation, and when he finally conceded, said the extra fare would have to come "out of the eats."

Furthermore, Clarence declared, the trip was planned with expenses paid from New York. "Here I am up in Keene," said DeMar.

"Was I supposed to pay my own way to New York before the A. A. U. would take on my expenses?"

And then Clarence made a suggestion of his own.

"He was supposed to be manager of the marathon team that was made up of Pat Dengis, Mel Porter and myself. To my mind a good solution to the problem would be to dispense with the manager, who will probably travel in style if previous events are any indication of how this trip will be handled. I guess Pat Dengis, Mel Porter and myself could very well handle ourselves without a manager who wants a free ride at our expense."

HUBBELL AND FRENCH GIVE OPPONENTS THREE SAFETIES

Bucky Walters, in Beating Bees, 4 to 0, Allows Only Four Hits—Cubs Retain First Place Margin.

Three shutout games were pitched in the National League yesterday which probably is an indication that hurlers' soupbones are ripening under the hot July sun. The victors were Carl Hubbell of the Giants, who trimmed the Dodgers, 4 to 0, Bucky Walters of the Phillies, who beat the Bees by the same score and Larry French of the Cubs, who humbled the Pirates, 2 to 0.

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, July 10.—King Carl Hubbell took sweet revenge on the Dodgers today, blanking them with three hits as he pitched the New York Giants to a 4 to 0 victory to even the current series.

Facing Brooklyn for the first time since the Dodgers broke his all-time high winning streak of 24 straight on May 31, "Old Squarepants" fanned only one but did not walk a batter. He pitched six innings of hitless ball, allowing only a single by Johnny Cooney in the first, a double by Cookie Lavagetto with two away in the second, and a single by Tony Malinosky in the eighth.

It was Hubbell's fourth straight victory in his comeback campaign, and his 12th of the year.

The Giants staked him to a two-run lead up to the sixth inning, and then Wally Berger made it certain with a homer with a mate aboard in the eighth.

Cavaretta Scores Both Chicago Runs.

PITTSBURGH, July 10.—Larry French muffled the Pirate bats in a three-hit pitching performance today to give Chicago a 2 to 0 victory which squared the Pittsburgh series.

The Cubs' southpaw star retired in order the first 18 batters to face him in contrast to the Pirates' display of 19 hits yesterday.

Three singles in the seventh again brought Cavaretta loping home.

Blanton yielded six hits and gave up five passes to first in the eight frames he worked.

The Buccaneers threatened only in the eighth when singles by Arky Vaughan and Al Todd and a walk for Pep Young filled the sacks. Fred Schulte, pinch hitting for Blanton, tapped an easy roller which retired the side.

The victory was French's first over a first division club this season. He has won five and lost the same number. The Cubs retained their first place margin of two games over the New York Giants, who also won.

A 49½-pound yellow flathead catfish, a fish of unusual but not unprecedented size, was caught on a set line in the Meramec River yesterday at Kieffer's Beach, Kirkwood.

William Poecker, cemetery sexton of Ladue, G. A. Mauller, a tinner, 3507 North Twenty-fifth street, and Harold Kaatman, 221 South Bemiston avenue, Clayton, who placed the trot line in the stream, took the fish from the water after a 20-minute struggle.

Kaatman's family will help Poecker's family eat the fish for dinner today. Mauller apparently lost his interest in the goujon (the fish's proper name), and he won't be over for dinner.

CITY AND STATE BICYCLE TITLE RACES WILL BE HELD JULY 18

The first races to select Missouri's representatives for the Amateur Bicycle League of America national championships will be held a week from today, July 18, on the course in Forest Park west of Jefferson Memorial where the national championships were held last August.

The races of five and 25 miles will be for the city championship with the outstading riders in those events being selected to compete in the State championships. About 50 seniors are expected to compete.

There will also be four events for juniors, one, two, five and 10 mile races, and two events for girls, one and five miles. This is the first year girls have been registered by the A. B. L. of A. It will be the first time they have competed for a national title.

Following the city title races, the successful riders will take part in the State event Aug. 1 over the same course.

The winners of State titles will compete in the national races at Humboldt Park, Buffalo, N. Y. The national events are: Seniors—two five-mile races, one 10-mile, and one 25-mile point race; juniors—one, two, five and 10-mile races; girls—one and five miles.

Those interested in entering the city event should contact Charles Forrest, 921 Locust street.

Leo Norris Paces Phillies' Attack.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 10.—Bucky Walters of the Phillies shut out the Boston Bees 4 to 0 today on four hits for his ninth victory of the season.

Walters hurled hitless ball for five innings in which only one Boston player, Debs Garms, reached first base. First batter, he received a walk.

While Walters was pitching his second shutout of the season in Boston, his teammates landed on Guy Bush for 11 hits and all their runs.

The Phillies punched home their first run in the fourth inning when Pinky Whitney singled to center after Morris Arnovich had doubled.

Four singles and Warstler's error gave the visitors three runs in the seventh. Walters provided the spark in this rally by driving in th first run.

Leo Norris led the Phillies' attack to even the current series by banging out three singles. Arnovich and Whitney each connected safely twice.

St. Louis Boys In the Minors

With Cedar Rapids so far ahead in the Western League race, league officials decided to inaugurate a split season with a new schedule beginning July 8. St. Louis boys had much to do with the success of the Iowa team with Justin "Jinx" Keenoy, playing a fine game at shortstop and hitting around the .300 mark all season. Howard Taylor and Al Krupski, pitchers, also came through in great style. Krupski is the league's strikeout king.

Johnny Kreevich, an outfielder, with Vicksburg of the Cotton States League, who was batting .300, has returned to his home for the balance of the season to recuperate from a leg injury. He is a brother of Mike, White Sox outfielder.

Tommy Canavan, a first sacker, made his debut with Lafayette of the Evangeline League after a 25-hour train ride. Canavan, a left-hander, is an East St. Louis boy.

Bob Scheffing, catcher for Houston of the Texas League, has been out of the game with an attack of tonsilitis.

When Houston beat San Antonio, 14 to 1, in a Texas League game, July 1, Johnny Keane, Buffs' third baseman, led the attack with two singles, a double and a triple.

Jim Powell, former Beaumont High School athlete, who has been catching for Hazelton of the New York-Pennsylvania League, has been returned to Memphis of the Southern Association.

Howard Taylor, pitcher for Cedar Rapids of the Western League, was fined $50 and suspended indefinitely after an altercation with Umpire Kelly on a close play at the plate in a game with Davenport, July 1. According to dispatches, Taylor came from the bench in the ninth inning to protest and in the scuffle that followed, the umpire picked himself up from the turf. Krupski took his place on the mound and was credited with a 4-to-3 11-inning victory.

Johnny Kyler, Bartlesville second baseman, and Rick Niemiller, Bartlesville catcher, were picked on the Western Association all-star team.

John "Red" Juelich, playing third base for Rochester of the International League, is batting .340.

Justin Stein, who alternates at first and second base for Columbus of the American Association, has a batting average of .323.

Nick Cullop, veteran outfielder playing with Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League, is hitting .333.

Gene Handley, brother of Lee of the Pirates, playing the outfield for Durham of the Piedmont League, is batting .307.

EAST ST. LOUIS TEAM AT COLLINSVILLE TODAY IN INTERCITY LEAGUE

Three doubleheaders and two single games are on the Southwestern Illinois Inter-city Baseball League schedule for today.

East St. Louis, co-leader with Venice, plays two games at Collinsville, while Venice goes to Lebanon for another twin bill. Belleville plays a doubleheader at Livingston; Edwardsville meets Glen Carbon, and Maryville plays Granite City in single games.

Ames Upsets Jack Gordon in County Tennis

The St. Louis County men's singles tennis championship opened yesterday afternoon on the Westborough Country Club courts. All first round matches with one exception were decided. Play in the men's doubles will open this afternoon with an entry of 24 teams.

In the first upset of the singles play Ray Ames defeated Jack Gordon, 8—6, 6—2, Gordon was seeded No. 4. Two other seeded players, Wayne Smith No. 3, and Talbot Murphy, No. 7, defaulted.

Edward King, eighth seeded player, had a close call in his match with Marc Carpenter. King won, 7—5, 6—8, 9—7, in a two-hour duel.

Richard Rosebrough, former county champion, moved into the second round through his 6—4, 6—3, victory over Tom Chapman. Robert Hereford also advanced by defeating Charles Dee, 6—1, 6—4.

RANGER WINS 12TH STRAIGHT VICTORY OVER U. S. YACHTS

ABOARD COAST GUARD CUTTER FAUNCE, off Newport, R. I., July 10.—Fleetly outdistancing her two rivals, the racing sloop Ranger won her twelfth straight victory today, defeating Rainbow by nearly four minutes. Yankee, far astern, dropped out of the race at the three-quarter mark.

The victory gave Harold S. Vanderbilt's yacht for the defense of the America's Cup a clean sweep of the series with Yankee and Rainbow for the Nichols Cup.

TYPOS TO HOLD PICNIC TODAY

The St. Louis Typo Athletic Association, sponsors of the Union Printers' baseball team which plays in the City League at O'Fallon Park, will hold a picnic and barbecue at Cardinal Park, Bayless avenue, just south of Gravois road, today. At 10 o'clock this morning a series of softball games will be played between the typesetters of the Globe-Democrat, Star-Times and Post-Dispatch. Athletic events of various kinds will also be held. The Union Printers' baseball team is a member of the Union Printers' International Baseball League, which will hold its twenty-seventh annual tournament in Washington, D. C., Aug. 15 to 21.

SPORT SALAD

by L. C. Davis

Sounds Reasonable

Beau Bell, who never has been put out of a ball game, says the umpires don't make any more errors than the players and have a lot more chances. Sound philosophy, we calls it.

So 'Twas

IT was a summer's evening, McCarthy's work was done,
And Joe's all-star Americans from Terry boys had won.
But all the experts now agree
It was a Yankee victory.

The fracas was supposed to be an inter-league affair,
And men in other uniforms were scattered here and there,
But any one could plainly see
It was a anYkee victory.

Syd Hulls, a London promoter, seeks an injunction to prevent Tommy Farr from fighting Joe Louis. Max Schmeling ought to get a good chuckle out of that.

The Jolly Injunction

THERE may be some way of compelling
Enforcement of legalized acts;
Why not get in touch with Max Schmeling
Who might put him hep to the facts.

Without any sign of compunction
In the ash can agreements are plunked;
Max knows all about the injunction
That does everything but injunct.

Of course, Syd might stop Farr and Louis from fighting in London but over here the injunction doesn't function.

Charley Grimm had better win that pennant or else. He has gone too far with this thing to back out now.

President Roosevelt got a break the other day. He had his picture taken with Clark Griffith, Bill Terry and Joe McCarthy, reading from left to right.

The ball tossed out by F. D. R. was retrieved by Dick Bartell of the Giants, but when Dick wanted to get it autographed he was stymied by the Secret Service department. He had to invoke the influence of an American League official to get the President's name on the horsehide. And you call this justice?

Only for this seeming slight to the senior organization Dizzy Dean might have autographed a ball for the President.

Before the big game the Nationals were supposed to have a decided edge on account of superior pitching. But the American batters happened to be on edge and resented the inference keenly and efficiently.

WHAM
BAM

A.W.

Dizzy Dean may be what is known to the trade as a nut but he wisely decided not to bolt the all-star game.

Nevertheless, the preponderance of home talent when the teams are picked by the pennant winning managers in their respective leagues is another argument in favor of giving the game back to the fans.

As we get it the game never was intended as a test of the superiority of one league over the other but rather to put a little folding money in the pockets of superannuated ball players who once had it but now have not.

ATHLETICS DROP TWO GAMES TO RED SOX

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—The Athletics lost both ends of a double-header with the Boston Red Sox this afternoon. The scores were 9 to 2 and 5 to 2, the second game going 11 innings.

Boston pounded out four homers in returning Lefty Grove, the winner in the opening clash. He quit after five innings because of the heat. Joe Cronin, who hit two homers, sewed up the game with his first one hit in the fifth inning with Chapman on base. Jimmy Foxx and Buster Mills hit the other circuit drives.

25 EXTRA BASE HITS AS TIGERS BREAK EVEN WITH INDIANS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, July 10.—Twenty-five extra base hits, including eight home runs, flew all over Navin Field today as the Detroit Tigers and the Cleveland Indians divided a double-header.

The Tigers extended their winning streak to six straight games with a 12-to-11 win in the opener, and had it ended there in the second when the Indians won, 8 to 7.

The Tigers outhit the Indians, 16 to 12, in the first game and won the contest with a five-run outburst in the seventh, climaxed by four-baggers by Chet Laabs and Hank Greenberg. Greenberg's was his nineteenth of the year. Jake Solters, Roy Weatherly and Hal Trosky hit home runs for the losers.

Trosky set the pace for the Indians in the second, getting two more four-baggers and bringing his season's total to 16. Three runs in the ninth, breaking a 5-5 tie, decided the game.

Solters, with a triple and a double, drove in three of the Tribe runs, while Trosky and Lyn Lary produced two each. Laabs homered again for the Tigers.

RUFFING HURLS YANKS TO 12-2 VICTORY OVER THE SENATORS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The Yankees teed off against Washington pitching for the second straight day today and walloped the Senators, 12 to 2, behind Charley Ruffing's steady hurling.

The big bats of Jo DiMaggio and Lou Gehrig, who led yesterday's big bombardment, were comparatively silent today, so the lower end of the batting order set the pace in the 15-hit attack. Jake Powell, sixth on the list, collected two doubles and a single, and Tony Lazzeri, batting seventh, hit two singles and a double and drove in three runs.

Ruffing, meantime, went along easily, blanking the Nats with six hits for the first eight innings, and then, with victory assured, slowing up enough to let Washington count twice in the ninth, when Buddy Myer's triple sent one run in, and Jesse Hill's single drove another across.

It was Ruffing's tenth victory, against two setbacks for the year, and gave the league-leading Yanks a six-game winning streak.

The Yanks belted Wes Ferrell, Washington starter, to the showers in four innings, after scoring three runs in the second and adding eight big ones in the fourth. In that scoring spree, 13 men came to bat, banked out seven hits, and put the game on ice for keeps. In the sixth, the Yanks added their final run on Powell's double, Lazzeri's single and Ruffing's double-play grounder.

THE QUEEN IS VICTOR IN 41ST RUNNING OF LATONIA OAKS

ANN JONES IS SECOND WITH RECUSSION 3D IN FILLY RACE

Illinois Bill Regulates Race Track Payroll

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 10.
By the Associated Press.

GOV. HORNER signed today a bill by Senator William J. Connors, Chicago Democrat, providing that Illinois residents must get 90 per cent of the jobs and 85 per cent of the payroll at race tracks in the State.

By the Associated Press.

COVINGTON, Ky., July 10.—Overlooked in the betting, the F. L. Battle's stable's The Queen won the forty-first running of the Latonia Oaks today, edging out C. B. Allen's Ann Jones by a nose in the closing feature of a curtailed 37-day Latonia race meet. Recussion, owned by A. B. Hancock, was third.

Time for the mile and a furlong $5000 added event, confined to three-year-old fillies was 1:51, over a lightning fast track. The race was worth $4315 to the winner.

Shatterproof, entered by Mrs. A. B. Letellier of New Orleans and installed early as even money favorite, got away poorly and speeded up enough to pass several horses on the back stretch, but tried and closed far in the rear, never a match for Perlette, an early leader.

The Queen paid her backers $37 to win, $17.20 to place and $8 to show.

Approximately 10,000 persons saw the race, for which a field of 11 originally was scheduled. D. B. Knox's filly, Joeno, was withdrawn, however.

Only 33 days of racing marked the meeting, following a mid-season decision to suspend activity on three Mondays and the Tuesday following Independence day.

Mad Money Takes $4000 Arlington Stakes.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Mad Money, from the Lemar Stock Farm stable, at Lexington, Ky., qualified impressively for the $55,000 Arlington futurity by winning the $4000 Hyde Park stakes before 20,000 sweltering spectators at Arlington Park today.

Showing a game performance, Mad Money, two-year-old son of North Star III-Knockout, raced to a head victory over Mountain Ridge and the heavily played favorite, C-Note, which ran third. Mountain Ridge and C-Note ran as an entry for Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago.

Mad Money, ridden by Jockey G. Smith, sprinted the five and a half furlongs in 1:06 1-5. The winner coupled in the betting with Mar Le paid $13. The race was worth $3015, going to Lemar Stock Farm.

In the secondary feature Infantry, entry of the Chicago owned Millsdale Stable, defeated Hal Price Headley's Whopper and four others in the $2500 handicap. Infantry was ridden by Jockey Charley Corbett. Whopper finished fifth.

Strabo, Diamond State Victor.

By the Associated Press.

DELAWARE PARK, Del., July 10.—Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin's Strabo, backed into the shortest-priced favoritism of the meeting at 30 cents on the dollar, won the Diamond State Stakes here this afternoon but not by the margin his odds indicated he would triumph.

It was only by a neck that Strabo managed to take $6125 first money from Myron Selznick's Pasha. The latter was the leader throughout most of the mile and an eighth journey, yielding only in the final sixteenth of a mile. F. Kahn's Little Sleeper was third, five lengths back.

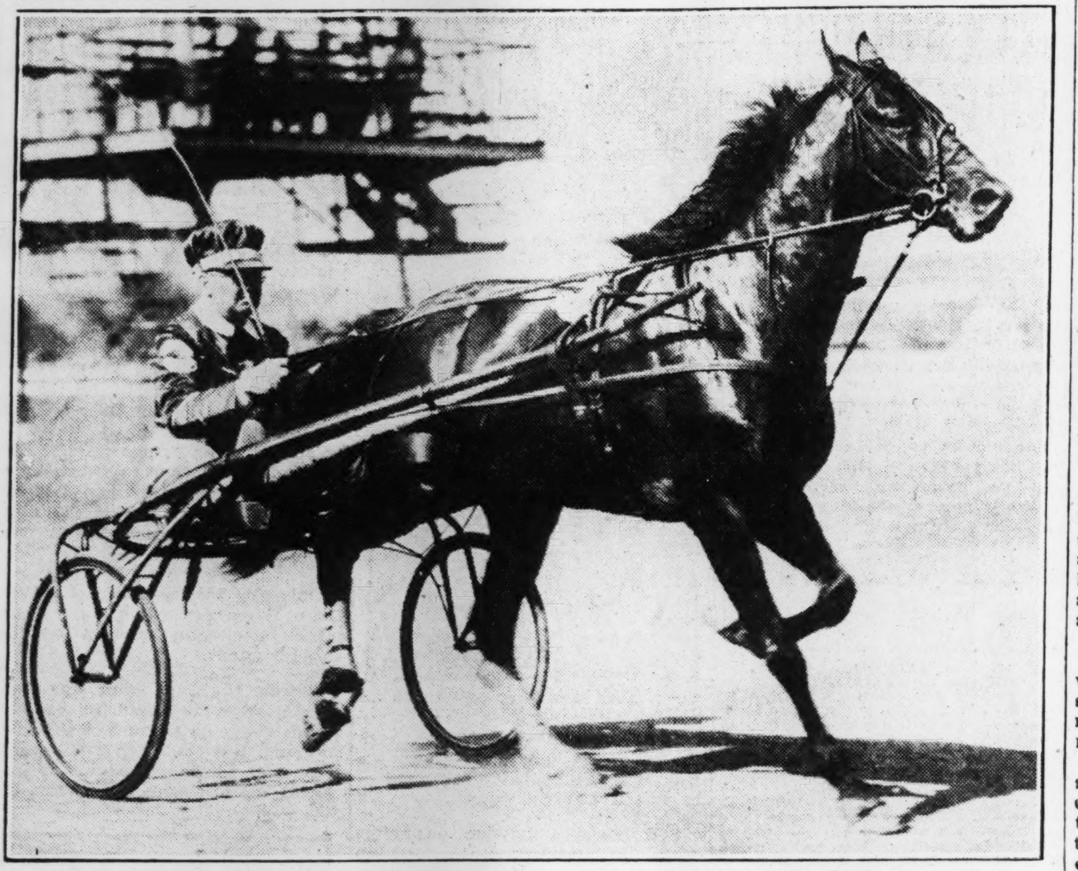
Memory Book Wins First Race of Year.

SALEM, N. H., July 10.—Memory Book, the Greentree Stable's sluggish son of St. Germans, equalled a track record today as he raced to a three-length triumph in the $10,000 added Rockingham Park Handicap, mile and an eighth feature of the closing-day program.

The four-year-old chestnut colt, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, covered the nine furlongs in 1:49 4-5, tying Sweeping Light's mark, in scoring his first victory in seven starts this year.

Blackbirder, Ned Reigh, Singer's Folly and Tugboat Frank were the also rans.

Europe's Hope in the World Title Race



Muscletone, American-bred trotter, now champion of Europe, which will arrive in the United States Aug. 1 to compete with Greyhound, the American harness monarch, for the world title. A return race in Europe will follow the one in America. Premier Mussolini of Italy is regarded as the real owner of Muscletone, although Give Maiani is the nominal proprietor of the great trotter. Greyhound will make his last appearance before the world title event in a race July 15.

aMrs. E. Denemark entry.
Overweight—Caught, 2 pounds.

Seabiscuit ran a remarkable race. He gamely stalled off all challenges and in final furlong drew away. He was bothered just after the start by Renick on Caught, going over to the inside rail. Thorson was crowded out of it just after the start was forced to go very wide all the way, came around three horses entering stretch and finished fast. Corinto moved up with a determined bid going into far turn, was also botherd by Caught and tired in final furlong. Esposa was caught in a jam around turn and stopped badly. Caught was ridden all over the track. Finance was being eased up at finish.

SOCCER GAMES AT GERMAN CLUB FIELD

Many of St. Louis' leading soccer players will be engaged today in a doubleheader at the German Sport Club field, on Lemay Ferry road at the Meramec River. In the first game, the Shamrocks oppose the German club, and in the second game the Burkes meet an all-star team. The winners will meet next Sunday for the German Sport club trophy. Play today starts at 3 p. m.

GASTANAGA IS EASY TO HIT IN SPARRING WITH IRWIN STRIEBEL

By W. J. McGoogan.

Isidro Gastanaga, Spanish heavyweight who meets Otis Thomas, Chicago Negro, in a 10-round match at the Auditorium Friday night, evidently believes that the best defense is a strong offense, if you can take his workout at the Business Men's Gymnasium yesterday as a criterion.

Gastanaga boxed two rounds with Irwin Striebel, South St. Louis heavyweight, whom Thomas stopped in five rounds some time ago. Irwin had no trouble at all in hitting Isidro with lefts and rights as Gastanaga waded in for shots at Irwin's head and body.

Evades Spaniard.

Half crouching, Isidro swung wildly with both hands. He landed some punches but Striebel usually managed to evade the Spaniard's rushes.

Those watching, remembering the straight way Thomas punches, predicted that Gastanaga would have to get home a telling blow early in the fight, for if Otis finds him as easy to hit as did Striebel, Isidro, would appear to be in for a rough journey.

Gastanaga is fairly fast on his feet and in the use of his hands which should be an advantage over the slower moving Thomas.

Isidro plans a longer boxing session at the Business Men's gym starting at 12:30 today, while Thomas is expected to arrive here today or tomorrow to finish his work. He probably will go through his practice sessions at the Pine Street Y. M. C. A.

Except for the selection of an opponent for Monroe Harrison, the six-bout program is complete.

Billy Jones on Card.

In addition to the Gastanaga-Otis Thomas contest, there will be two other ten-rounders. In one, Harry Thomas, Chicago heavyweight, is to oppose Billy Jones, Philadelphia Negro, while in the other Leo Rodak, Chicago, boxes Young Simington, Poplar Bluff, Mo.

Al Brendel and Terry Hudspeth, local lightweights, are to box one five-round event and in another Kayo Garden, Kansas City, meets Nathan Logan, St. Louis middleweight.

APARTMENTS FOR HANLEY ROAD TO COST $450,000

Syndicate Concludes Negotiations for Site on East Side of Thoroughfare North of Clayton Road.

STORES PLANNED ON UNRESTRICTED LOT

Freund Bros. to Build on Lake Forest Frontage Reserved for Business—Oil Concern's Purchase.

By Berry Moore

A syndicate has closed contracts for the purchase of 209 by 400 feet of ground on the east side of Hanley road, between Clayton road and Wydown boulevard, as a site for an apartment group to cost $450,000, including the site. Negotiations for the site were handled by Leon Katz, real estate agent.

Plans contemplate the erection of two 12-unit buildings and one 18-unit building, each to be three stories in height, with five, six and seven-room suites. There will be two and three baths, sumptuously appointed.

The buildings will be replete with innovations, including air-conditioning systems, with unit control. Designed with courts, the proposed structures will be of fireproof construction. The 12-unit buildings will occupy the Hanley road frontage of 209 feet. The 18-unit structure will stand on the east half of the plot, with a spacious side drive from Hanley road.

Plans for the buildings are being drawn by C. Cay Weinel, architect, and construction is to be started as soon as the blue prints are available. The VanRaalte Mortgage Co., of which Julius R. VanRaalte is president, is scheduled to finance the project.

Opposite Davis Place.

Opposite the Central Presbyterian Church at the southwest corner of Davis drive and Davis place, and just west of Moorlands Addition, the site is regarded as one of the most eligible in this area for an apartment group on a pretentious scale.

A 16-story apartment building, involving an estimated cost of $1,000,000, was projected several months ago for this site by its present owner, J. H. Preiss, of Preiss-Wibbing & Co., stock and bond brokers, with offices in the Security Building. Construction of the building, which would have set a new high standard for apartments in this area, was enjoined as being in violation of the Clayton zoning ordinance, which restricts the height of buildings in this block to 10 stories. The proposed structure was similar in design to that of 625 Skinker, a 16-story apartment building, overlooking Forest Park. Preiss had acquired the Hanley road tract several months previously, with the capital available for the lofty project.

Business Buildings Planned.

Eugene A. and Harry Freund, composing the Audrey Realty Co., have had plans drawn for a modernistic structure of eight stores on the south side of Clayton road, west of Hanley road. Wiedermeyer & Son are the architects. The one-story building will occupy the east 140-foot frontage of the only unrestricted parcel in Lake Forest, a high class residential development at the southwest corner of Clayton and Hanley roads. The parcel has

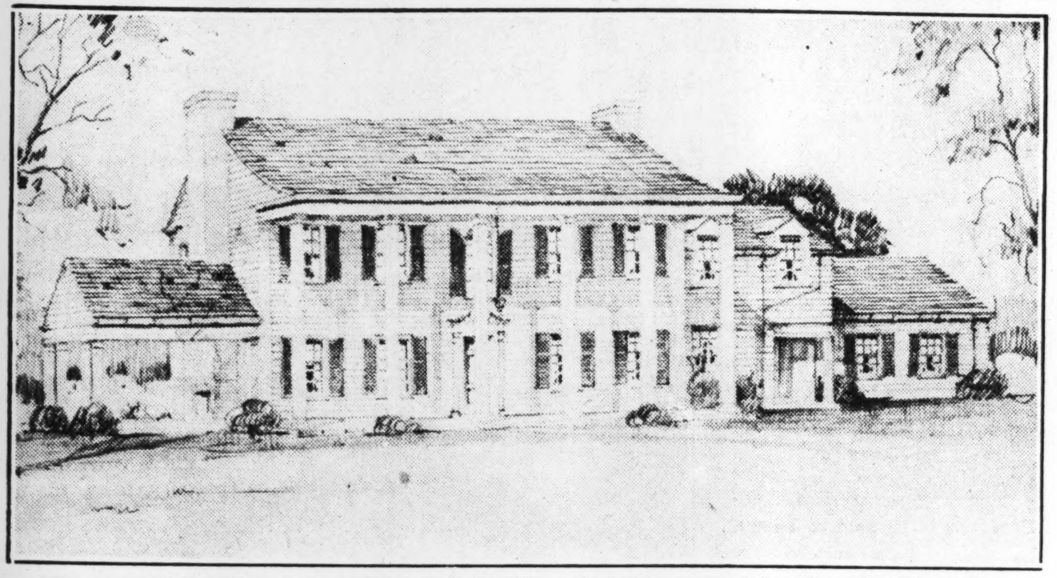
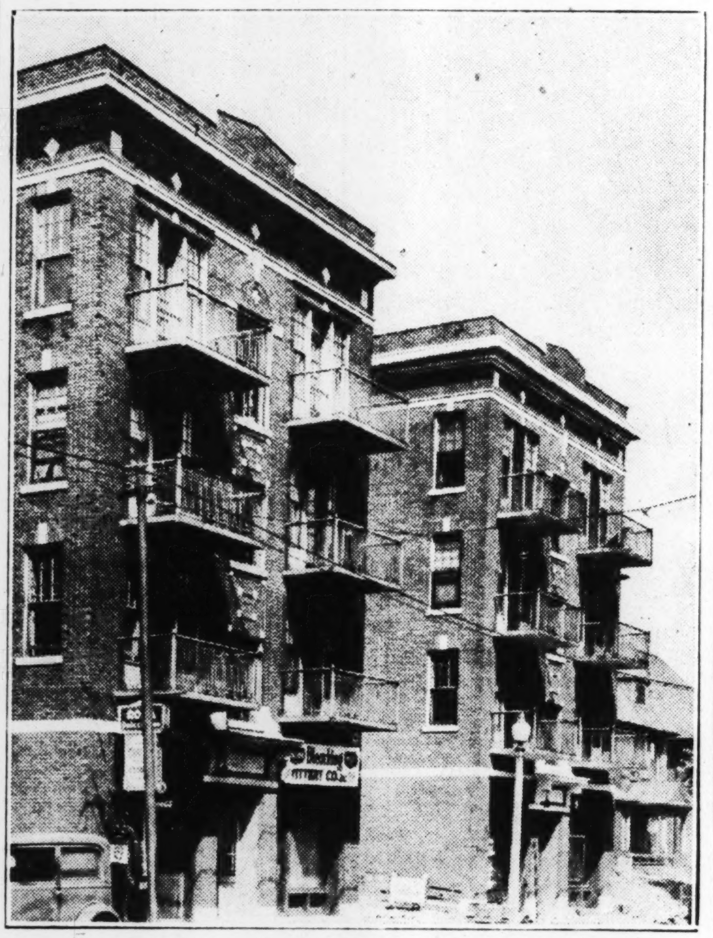
House Under Construction; Apartment Acquired



Drawing of residence in the Virginia Colonial style being erected for Sam D. Capen Jr., on a site off Mullanphy road, near Shackelford road, on the bluffs overlooking the Missouri River. Architects, Gray & Pauley. The site is part of a 35-acre tract recently purchased by Capen and A. B. Lambert Jr., through Cornet & Zeibig.



Eugene Field apartment building at 4333-37 Olive street purchased by Morris Steinbaum from the Prudential Insurance Company of America, represented by Franciscus-Maginn, Inc.

BUILDING ACQUIRED FOR FACULTY HOUSE

Taylor School Buys Two Residential Structures at 228 North Central Avenue.

A two-story brick residence at 228 North Central avenue, Clayton, has been purchased by The Taylor School, occupying adjoining ground. It occupies a lot 85 by 175 feet.

Mary Potter Love, Inc., handled the transaction.

The building, a modern residence, completely insulated, contains four bedrooms, a sitting room, a dining room, a modernly equipped kitchen and a bathroom. Servants' quarters are located in the basement. Heating is supplied by gas.

The structure is being converted into a faculty house for the teachers of The Taylor School. It will also be employed for informal receptions and gatherings. Since the residence adjoins the school on the north side, two driveways between the two buildings will be consolidated. The acquisition will enable the school to enlarge the present school building by widening it both to the south and to the north. The facade is to be completely remodeled.

The two buildings, together with the gymnasium in the rear, will thus form a unified group of school buildings with a front extending 185 feet along Central avenue.

WHOLESALE HOUSE LEASES QUARTERS ON WASHINGTON

The west store of the new building at 1523-25 Washington avenue has been leased by Cornet & Zeibig, Inc., for a period of years to Brown's Wholesaler's, Inc., for the display of women's and infants' wear.

The concern now occupying quarters on lower Washington avenue, will move to the new location on or about Aug. 1.

Sidney Ginsburg is president, Dorris Ginsburg, a former buyer for a large department store, is vice-president, and Henrietta Brown is secretary of the concern, which has had to obtain larger quarters twice within the last two years.

DUBINSKY & SONS BUY HOWARD ST. REALTY

Buildings comprising 23 flats and one store, with lot 225 by 105 feet, at the northeast corner of Twentieth and Howard streets, have been purchased by Jack Dubinsky & Sons, real estate operators. Henry J. Brinckwirth and Mrs. J. Reynolds Medart, the former owners, were represented by Edward L. Bakewell, realtor, in the transaction.

There are five double and one single building each two and one-half stories in height. The corner building consists of stores and flats. Annual rentals approximate $4000. The purchase was made as a speculative investment.

Two double and one single flat building at the southeast corner of Goodfellow and Ridge avenue, has been acquired by the Glick Realty Co. of which Nathaniel Glick is president. The former owner was the Insurance Company of Virginia, which had acquired the property under a deed of trust for $22,000, made prior to 1929. The price paid in the present transaction was not divulged.

The buildings comprise 10 three and four room flats. The site has a frontage on Ridge of 65 feet, with a depth of 140 feet on Goodfellow. The buildings have been reconditioned by the Insurance Company, which has also refinanced them with a 10-year loan with interest at 5 per cent, payable semi-annually.

NEW YORK LIFE LENDS $42,000 ON MAPLEWOOD BUILDING

The New York Life Insurance Company has made a loan of $42,000, secured by a first deed of trust on a two-story block comprising stores and offices at 719-71-73-75-77-79 Manchester avenue and 2287-89-91-93-95 Yale avenue, in Maplewood. It occupies a site 130 by 140 feet. The loan is for 10 years, with interest at the arte of 4½ per cent, payable semiannually. It was negotiated by the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co., local loan correspondent for the New York Life Insurance Co. The block is in the heart of the Maplewood business district.

CAPEN COUNTRY HOME UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Virginia Colonial Structure Is on 35-Acre Tract Overlooking Missouri River.

The country residence being erected on Mullanphy road near Shackelford road, on the bluffs overlooking the Missouri River for Sam D. Capen Jr. is Virginia Colonial in design. It is of frame construction with columns forming a veranda at the front of the house.

The first floor consists of living room, dining room, entrance hall, kitchen, pantry, lavatory, two screened-in porches and a two-car garage. The second floor has master bedroom with dressing room and bath, two regular bedrooms with connecting bath, and a maid's room with bath. A feature of the screened-in porch is a built-in fireplace for cold evenings.

The site is part of a 35½-acre tract recently purchased through Cornet & Zeibig, Inc., by Capen and A. B. Lambert Jr. Lambert also expects to build on this plat in this tract.

AGENCY LENDS $125,000 FOR APARTMENT PROJECTS

The Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Real Estate Co. has made a loan of $62,500 for five years for construction of a 15-family apartment building at 7534-36 York drive in Moorlands Addition. It will occupy a lot 130 by 110 feet.

The company has also advanced $62,500 for construction of a 15-family apartment building at 703-05 Westwood drive, a north and south street of Moorlands Addition. It will stand on a lot 140 by 110 feet.

Each building will contain six apartments of five rooms and six of four rooms. Construction is now under way with contracts calling for completion by fall. The buildings will be three stories in height.

Both are five-year loans secured by first deeds of trusts on the buildings and sites. As source of capital, Anderson-Stocke-Buermann have been a factor in apartment house construction in this addition.

RECENTLY COMPLETED HOUSE IN SUMMIT PARK SOLD

A residence of striking design, recently completed on Summit avenue in Summit Park, has been purchased by Marshall Whitcomb, accountant with the Kroger Grocery and Baking Co., from the Fairfax Construction Co., which erected it.

APARTMENTS AT 4335 OLIVE SOLD

Four-Story Eugene Field Structure With 72 Units Purchased by Morris Steinbaum.

The Eugene Field Apartment Building at 4333-35 Olive street has been purchased by Morris Steinbaum, real estate speculator and hotel operator. It was owned by the Prudential Insurance Co. of America, which was represented by Francis-Maginn, Inc., in the transaction. The price paid was in excess of $100,000, it was announced.

The building is a four-story fireproof structure, occupying a lot 100 by 152 feet. There are four stores on the first floor. The upper floors contain 70 three-room efficiency apartments. The equipment includes an electric elevator and steam-heating plant.

Steinbaum announced that the building would be reconditioned and modernized at a cost of $25,000. The original cost of the structure was around $250,000, it was stated.

The Prudential Co. acquired the property under a loan through foreclosure action in 1936. The loan, originally for $140,000, had been reduced to $98,000.

You Make the Final Decision
Before you build a home, buy a new home or modernize, give the heating system the serious consideration it deserves. Check these vital points, they are important to your comfort, the cost of operation and maintenance, and the future value of your property.
● Is it modern Air-Conditioning Heating?
● Does the manufacturer accept full responsibility for its proper design, installation and operation?
● Based on past experience, can you be assured of service in the future, or will you own an orphan?
Put "AFCO" to the Test

TRACTS NEAR BOONE BRIDGE PURCHASED

Robert C. Glenn and Bryan Coffman Buy 96 and 106 Acres on Highway 40.

A tract of 96 acres, lying on both sides of Super-Highway 40, two miles west of the new Daniel Boone Bridge, in St. Charles County, has been purchased by Robert C. Glenn, secretary and treasurer of the Gilliam-Glenn Motor Co. The improvements include an old farmhouse which it is understood will be replaced with a modern residence. William Weyzauch was the former owner.

Another purchase was that by Bryan Coffman, with the Lafayette Industrial Loan and Investment Co., of 106 acres on the same highway, just east of the tract purchased by Glenn. The seller in this instance was Ann Subrock.

Oliver G. Vrana, real estate agent, handled the negotiations in both instances. Valuations established were not disclosed. Negotiations are soon to be started for other tracts in the region of the bridge.

NEW YORK PAGEANT TO DEPICT NORTHWEST TERRITORY ORIGIN

Passage of Ordinance in 1787 Led to Formation of Five States; Pigeons to Carry Message.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—America's pioneers, of the Middle West, will be commemorated here next week in elaborate pageantry.

The occasion will mark the 159th anniversary of the passage of the ordinance of 1787, providing for creation of the Northwest Territory, out of which came five states and part of a sixth.

On the site of the old New York City Hall where Congress was in session at the time the ordinance was passed, 130 actors will take part in a pageant depicting eight critical periods during the formative period of the nation. The public ceremonies will open at 3 p. m., Tuesday with a message from President Roosevelt.

Figuratively, thousands of pigeons, released at the height of the ceremonies, will carry the news of the ordinance's passage to the West—to the states which came out of the territory—Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and part of Minnesota.

The pageant will open a year of commemoration. Dec. 3, an ox team will leave Ipswich, Mass., to retrace the route of pioneers into the "Ohio country." The team will visit the six states.

A special stamp has been engraved and will be on sale Tuesday. At Marietta, O., a massive memorial will be erected, executed by Gutzon Borglum.

Apartment and Bungalows Sold.

The Bellis Realty Co. reports the following sales for the past 15 days: No. 2848 California avenue and 2747-49-51 Pestalozzi street, a 12-family apartment building for C. Thole to a client of the Harry Shapiro R. & Inv. Co.; 6917 Julian avenue, bungalow for Mr. and Mrs. Otto R. Steger; 3531 Henrietta street, cottage by Mrs. Emma M. Steele; 4542 Cote Brilliante avenue, residence for Alfred Edwards; 4830 Cupples place, bungalow purchased by W. J. Boos from Frank William Tegeler; 3132 Vine Grove avenue, for Charles C. Fillingham.

Agent for Ladue Terrace.

Norman W. Pemberton has been appointed exclusive sales agent for Ladue Terrace, a new subdivision at the northwest corner of Ladue and McKnight roads. The tract, heavily wooded, comprises approximately 50 lots. Houses of three and four bedrooms are planned for the development with Raymond Kilgen as builder.

The Horn Real Estate Co., a corporation, of which Walter E. Horn is president, Fred Klein vice-president and William E. Horn secretary, has been admitted to active membership.

Ploeser-Moseley-Watts, Inc., general insurance brokers, has been admitted to affiliated membership.

Printing Company Renews Lease.

The Mendle Printing Co. has renewed its lease on the six-story building at the southwest corner of Third and Locust streets. It contains 42,000 square feet. It is being modernized and altered. The property is owned by the Parkway Apartment Co. Arthur S. Martin & Son arranged the renewal.

a total frontage of 265 feet on Clayton, with a depth of 110 feet along the west line of Lake Forest. It extends west from the ornate rock fence, distinguishing the development. The parcel was purchased a year ago by the Audrey Co. which resold the west 115 by 110 feet to the Continental Oil Co. for a filling and service station.

Plans were disclosed several months ago for the improvement of the northeast corner of Hanley and Clayton roads with a striking business block which it is believed will eventually materialize. The site has a frontage of 716 feet on Clayton road, extending from Hanley road to Westwood drive. It has a depth of 212 feet. It is owned by Daniel L. Kerckhoff, president of the Pevely Dairy Co., who purchased it in 1933 through John Franciscus of Franciscus-Maginn, Inc., from E. C. Simmons, represented by Shaw & Francis, Inc. Facing Hampton Park and diagonally opposite Lake Forest, it occupies a rather commanding position. It is available for business purposes under the zoning ordinance.

Project in Abeyance.

Undisclosed interests represented by the Henry R. Weisels Co. recently closed contracts for the purchase of the wedge-shaped lot at the northeast corner of Clayton road and Cromwell drive, as a site for a modern business structure, designed by Saum, Architects, Inc. An injunction obtained by the trustees of Moorlands Addition, however, halted the project now in abeyance. The wedge is at the point where Clayton road and Cromwell drive converge. It is the only unrestricted lot in Moorlands Addition, which is given over to apartment houses.

THE SIGN OF

GOOD USED CARS

From our large stock you can take your choice of many different makes. Every car must measure up to our standards before it is offered for sale. It is a pleasure to give full particulars as to condition, previous owner, etc., as the great majority of our used cars are traded by original owners, who, in many cases, own several cars.

ACTION

The cost is not the only thing to consider when buying a Used Car. The condition of the car is what makes satisfied customers. For 20 years Welfare has satisfied over 100,000 customers with both top mechanical condition and extremely low prices. The condition and prices of these cars should give us plenty of real action. 200 to pick from.

IN MEMORIAM

ABELN, JOHN—In loving memory of my dear husband and father, who passed to the better land July 10, 1934.
WIFE AND FAMILY.

IN MEMORIAM

BEWIG, ROSE GINOCCHIO — In loving memory of my dear sister, our dear aunt, who passed away July 4, 1932:
Five years today our dear Rosie was called away;
Call was short; shock severe; silent the voice we'd love to hear.
We miss your smiling face; there's none on earth can take your place.
'Tis sad but true, we wonder why the best are always the first to die;
We cannot, Lord, Thy purpose see,
But all is well that's done by Thee.
Sadly missed by
SISTER MAMIE, ELVIRA AND CHARLES ROLLER JR.

BUSALACKI, TONY—In loving memory of our dear son, who passed away July 11, 1935.
There is a link that death cannot sever;
Love and remembrance last forever.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER AND FAMILY.
There will be a second anniversary mass at St. Patrick's Church Monday morning at 8 o'clock.

CARNEY, LEO—Who passed away July 10, 1936. It was sad indeed the way my pal, Leo, died one year ago today.
Without a chance to say good-bye
His spirit flew before we knew
That day from us had gone.
If he had raised a dying hand
And bid us all farewell,
The blow would not have hurt us so,
To those who loved him so well.
Sadly missed by
EBERHARDT FAMILY.

CASSIDY—Lovingly remembrance of our dear son and brother, Maurice Cassidy Jr., July 9, 1927.
DAD, MOTHER AND JEAN.

CREZENIA, PAULUS—In loving memory of our dear mother, mother-in-law and grandmother, who passed away July 10, 1934.
Her memory is as dear today as in the hour she passed away.
Sadly missed by CHILDREN,

HEAD, ANNA M.—Our beloved mother, who died July 10, 1936.
The depths of our sorrow we cannot tell,
At the loss of our mother we loved so well.
ANN, SARONA, ISABEL AND MARY.

NICKEL, EMILIE—In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, who passed away July 14, 1936.
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days;
Sincere and true in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she left behind.
CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

NIEHAUS, SOPHIE—In loving memory of our dear mother, grandmother and sister, who departed this life July 9, 1936.
We find comfort and reassurance in these words of Scripture: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that heareth My word, and believeth on Him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation, but is passed from death unto life."

PFEIFER, JENNIE ADELAIDE—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away July 9, 1936.
Sadly missed by
DAUGHTERS AND SONS.

RAINING, MARY—In loving memory of our dear mother who passed away one year ago today, July 11, 1936.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

ROTHERY, MARY A.—In loving remembrance of our dear mother, who died July 11, 1930. Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

SCHMIDT, JOHN—In loving memory, who passed away July 8, 1934.
There is a sad but sweet remembrance;
There is a memory fond and true;
There is a token of affection,
And a heartache still for you.
Sadly missed by
WIFE.

SEHR, JOHN SR.—In loving memory of my dear father and grandfather, who passed away July 11, 1932. Sadly missed by DAUGHTER, CARRIE AND GRANDCHILDREN, GUS AND CAROLYN.

SLATEN, HAROLD R.—In loving remembrance of our dear son who departed this life July 8, 1936.
The depths of our sorrow
We cannot tell.
In the loss of our dear Harold
We loved so well.
Sadly missed by FAMILY.

SMITH, FREDERICK—In loving memory who passed away one year ago, July 12, 1936.
God knows how much we miss him,
And never shall his memory fade,
A loving thought ever wanders
To the spot where he is laid.
MOTHER AND FAMILY.

STROHMEYER, JOHN—In loving memory of my dear husband and father, who departed this life July 13, 1936.
The face we loved is now laid low;
His loving voice is still;
The hand so often clasped in mine
Lies now in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of him,
When I am all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

STUEBER, EDWARD M.—In loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away July 6, 1934. Sadly missed by HIS WIFE, GERTRUDE STUEBER.

TRISKA, MARY—In loving memory of my dear wife and mother, who departed this life, July 13, 1934.
Not dead to us who loved her,
Not lost, but gone before;
She lives with us in memory,
And will forevermore.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

WALSH, BERNARD—In loving memory, who passed away July 7, 1934:
Sadly missed by
GRANDPARENTS, SISTERS AND AUNT.

The Peerage Situation in Fort Worth

Billy Rose Has It Well in Hand at His Show

By Lucius Beebe

NEW YORK, July 10.

A PERSONAL investigation of the peerage situation in Fort Worth, where Billy Rose, sometimes Mad Mahout of the Hippodrome and more latterly a fur-trousered frontiersman, has imported a box-car load of genuine, pasteurized noblemen for the delight of the cow hands, indicates that the assorted Earls and Dukes are even more enchanted with Texas than the Texans are with them. All except one, at least, who claims his family has disowned him because of his fiesta affiliations and wants a $2 rise in salary to compensate.

The Effendi Rose took a week off from his Cleveland and Fort Worth shows to rifle the Almanach de Gotha and Burke of half a dozen indisputably authentic Counts and Pashas, any one of whom could, if he had the membership fee, join the nobleman's union here in Manhattan. There also is a hallmarked and certified Countess.

The imperial septet were shuffled into drawing rooms on the Missouri Pacific's Sunshine Limited at St. Louis, and next morning were firm in their belief that Fort Worth is the last stronghold of the Esperantists. They included a Marquis, three Counts, a Pasha, a Baron and the above-mentioned Countess. Not a Romanoff in the carload. Their function is that of refined hoofers at Rose's Casa Manana, where between shows of an evening, the Texans are urged to gallivant to Paul Whiteman's music on a three-acre stage.

Not all the hands respond even on the insistence of their respective squaws, so the dance-mad cowgirl has only to call a waiter captain to have a beautiful young man, mustache, eyeglass and all, at her elbow. Thereafter the schottische-shy cowman gnaws his knuckles as his lady swoons in the embrace of the transplanted Count. Don't let there be any eyebrow lifting. Rose has traced three of them back to the Ark and has irons in the fire for an unhorsed Hapsburg at the moment.

● EDWARD HUNGERFORD'S excursion around Manhattan by train, organized for a curious lunch-club run by George Bye and known as the Wednesday Culture Club that Meets on Friday (the junket was on Thursday), was what the fashionable French would call a success foolish and revealed angles and vistas of the city unfamiliar even to the most knowing authority on local color.

When the de luxe special turned down the old Eleventh Avenue tracks, with a mounted cowboy riding ahead with the red flag required by ancient statute, New York Central officials estimated that it was the first passenger train to pass over the rails since 1871. It certainly was the last that will ever do so, because the tracks are coming up this week as part of the city's West Side improvement plan.

It gave accustomed rail enthusiasts the same inexplicable thrill that riding down Washington street, in Syracuse, aboard the Century used to. Topers in adjacent bars turned pale and grabbed at the adjacent thirsty, to see if they saw it too, when the first observation car in nearly 70 years swam into Eleventh avenue ken.

—o-o—

Lunchers in the restaurant car exchanged dumb show salutations with bemused urchins on the sidewalks and whole neighborhoods turned out to salute the first and last passenger train. It was an epic occasion and moved the railroad enthusiasts present almost to tears. It took three full hours to run up the Park avenue tunnel, along the Harlem ship canal and down the West Side yards to St. John's Park, or almost as long as it would take making the same trip across town in a taxi in 5 o'clock traffic.

—o-o—

EXPERIENCED sensation seekers such as F. Britten Austin, Gelett Burgess and Ursula Parrott agreed that the biggest thrill was when the engine turned south from Spuyten Duyvil into the George Washington bridge cut, instead of continuing north up the Hudson toward Albany. All their lives every one aboard had seen the freight tracks crossing the bridge there, but never ridden over them, and the emotion evoked was that of any experience unique and unduplicated

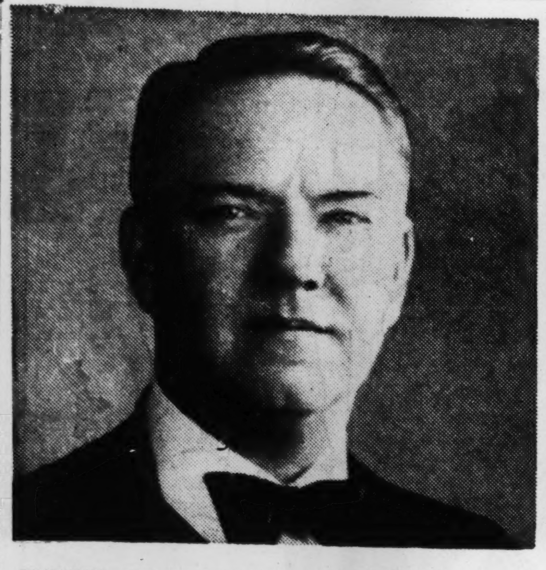
A GAY OLD RASCAL MAKES GOOD AGAIN

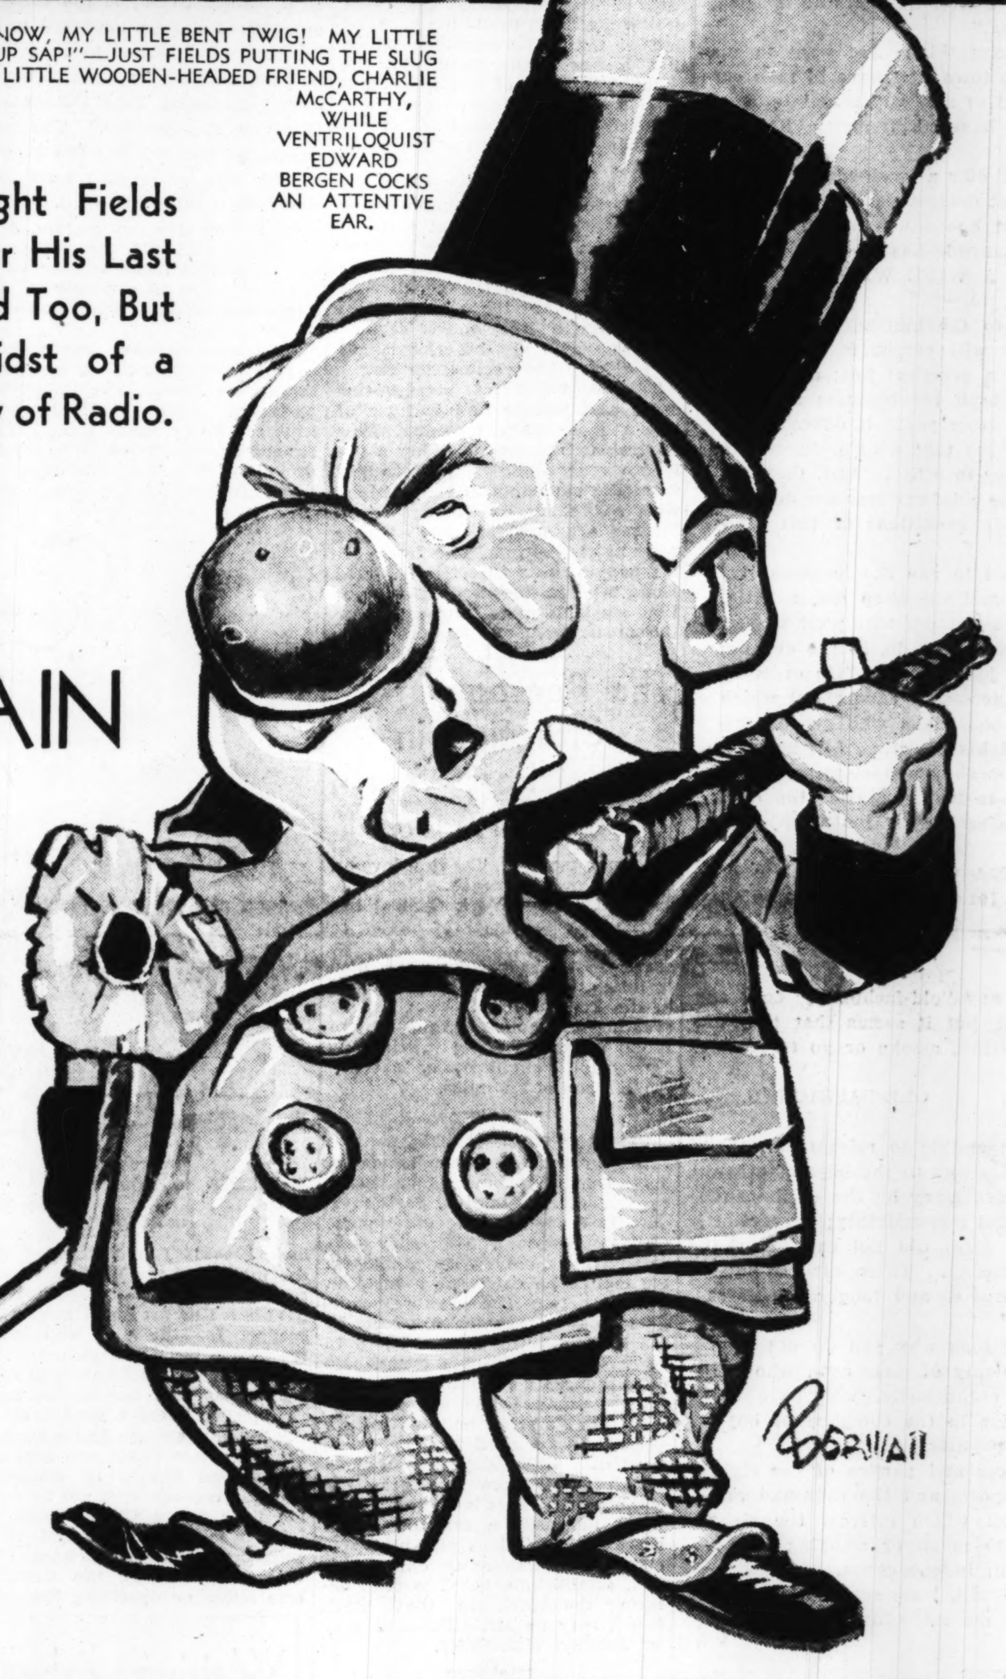
They All Thought Fields Was Through After His Last Movie, and He Did Too, But Now He Is in Midst of a Comeback by Way of Radio.



THE BILL FIELDS OF LONG AGO, WHEN HE WAS IN HIS PRIME AS A TOP-NOTCH JUGGLER IN VAUDEVILLE.

AS FIELDS APPEARS TODAY IN FRONT OF A MICROPHONE ON A COAST-TO-COAST HOOK-UP.

"HOW NOW, MY LITTLE BENT TWIG! MY LITTLE DRIED UP SAP!"—JUST FIELDS PUTTING THE SLUG ON HIS LITTLE WOODEN-HEADED FRIEND, CHARLIE McCARTHY, WHILE VENTRILOQUIST EDWARD BERGEN COCKS AN ATTENTIVE EAR.



HOLLYWOOD, July 10.

"A RADIO," said William C. Fields, "is a thing that you turn on when you haven't anything else to do—something like trimming your corns. I have many other things to do, such as harrying the soil on my ranch where I am now engaged in watering my orange trees with gin so that when I want a drink I merely squeeze an orange into a glass."

That statement was made when Bill Fields was the top-flight funny man of Hollywood, and he was telling the radio moguls that he would have no part of their business. What, he asked himself, would an old, juggling, face-making medicine show man do on the air? And besides, Bill never had a reputation for being what the actors call a "quick study." In fact, he was practically no study at all. In other words, he just simply could not learn lines. On the stage he remedied that deficiency by substituting lines of his own—they were usually better anyway—and in the movies he resorted to muttering when his memory failed him. He studied the part of Micawber in David Copperfield—his greatest hit—for a month without getting to first base. When he came upon the set, the director howled and tore his hair. Fields, in a fine rage, threw his part upon the floor. "Tell it to me," he roared. They did, and the comedian stole the picture.

So, Bill Fields would have none of this radio stuff. He avoided the subject with fanatical hostility and once chased an advertising agent out of his rancho for suggesting that he appear on the air.

Then he became ill—so desperately ill that he made the last scenes of "Poppy" in a stupor. His movie contracts vanished to the tune of $5000 a week and he was left alone at his rambling ranch house with two sources of comfort. One, so his physician, Dr. Jesse Citron, later testified, was two quarts of whisky a day. The other, so Fields now testifies, was a portable radio.

"It was with me day and night," he says, "and what a pal it turned out to be. Really, it's quite a little gadget."

—o-o—

WHEN Fields got back on his feet, was sued for his doctor bill and ordered by the Court to pay $12,000, he cast about for something to do to keep the wolf off the front lawn. The picture producers looked upon him with a jaundiced eye. He was, they said, just an old man in poor health. They did not want him. So the jolly braggart who had come up from the streets of New York to be the star of Ziegfeld's Follies and had later remade his fame and fortune in the movies, was through.

It was at this juncture that the advertising agent who had fled before the threat of Fields' gold-headed cane, appeared upon the scene again and persuaded Bill to do one act over the air with Edward Bergen and his dummy, Charlie McCarthy.

"And so," says Fields, "I went to the broadcasting station, the first one I had ever seen, and found myself teamed up with a red-cedar mug who popped out of a suitcase. I felt that my worst fears were realized. Then I thought that if a ventriloquist could get across on the air so could William Claude Dukenfields."

He was right. William Claude did his stuff, exchanged a few uncomplimentary remarks with Charlie McCarthy, tossed in some of his old vaudeville gags and managed in a general way to project his pompous-old-rascal personality over the air to such good effect that by the next day he was acclaimed as a sensation. Converted, Fields signed a contract for 16 weeks and the rest is radio history. Right now he is ranked close to the very top of the ether's comics—up there with Jack Benny, Fred Allen and Eddie Cantor.

"What a boob I was," said Bill when he found out what had happened. "Look at all the time I wasted out there at the ranch, watching that spider construct a fly trap."

There was no wasted time from there on out. Bill, who had always imagined himself to be a visual actor, now found himself hailed as a new star of the kilocycles, and the contagion of radio enthusiasm got a good grip on him. Instead of being dragged into the studio by his heels, he now bounces in, rubbing his hands and chewing an ancient toothpick, to inquire:

"What do we do today, boys?"

Two of Fields' standbys on the radio these days are wisecracks about his father and gags built around the $12,000 suit by the doctor. Both of them, naturally, have some basis in fact, although Bill vigorously denies that he drank two quarts of bourbon daily. Not even in the good old days.

Bill's father was a Philadelphia baker and his name was Dukenfields. He earnestly desired that young Bill be a baker and when the youngster objected there was a family row in which William came off second, with an ax handle applied to the seat of his pants. He got even by socking the old man when the baker wasn't looking and fled from his home and Philadelphia.

Our hero was then 11 years old. He took a boxcar for New York and arriving there joined a crowd of ragamuffins on the lower East Side. He made his living by his wits and was often quarry for the cops. In some manner—Bill does not remember all the details of his early life—he became interested in juggling and by the time he was 15 he was proficient enough to get a job in a Bowery music hall. That was the beginning of the long, hard pull. For years he was a tramp entertainer, working in cheap dives, sleeping in alleys and doorways, eating in hash houses.

FIELDS RESTING WHILE MAKING HIS LAST FILM, "POPPY."

During all this time he practiced stubbornly and, at last, his great trick was perfected. It consisted of juggling 25 cigar boxes, end on end, with a rubber ball on top. Fields was made. He became the most popular vaudeville comedian in the country and went from the two-a-day circuits into the Follies, Earl Carroll's Vanities and other musical shows. He was sitting on top of the world.

His early life left its mark upon him. He longed for peace and quiet and sleep. In fact, he spent most of his money in those days for fine rooms with great, soft beds where he reclined all day long. Then came the decline of the stage and Bill declined along with it.

—o-o—

FRIENDS told him he should go to Hollywood and do some of his stunts for the camera.

Bill snorted. But in the end he came and found all doors closed to him. A juggler? The wise boys of the movies laughed and laughed. They knew that a juggler could not possibly be a success in pictures. Bill Fields became an embittered man. He had worked hard all his life; he could do tricks that no other person could duplicate and yet the world did not appreciate his art. He offered to finance a picture himself and pay the losses if it failed to make money. There were no takers. But Hollywood is a crazy place and he finally got a chance to do his stuff—minus the juggling—and in a movie. A few weeks later Paramount was paying him $5000 a week. Old Bill was on the top again.

He still craves privacy, sun baths and thick, juicy steaks.

Bill has spent many thousands of dollars in hotels for the largest, softest, most luxurious beds available. Before he would start out on a tour of the country with a musical show he always spent many hours writing letters to hotel proprietors all over the United States, demanding this and that in the way of sleeping accommodations. Bill loves his sleep.

"I never got any as a kid," he says, "and I am still away behind."

When affluence overtook him in Hollywood he went to New York and purchased a magnificent French bed for his ranch house.

"But it's not the type," his friends told him. "It doesn't fit in with the other furnishings."

"I don't care," said Bill. "It cost $2000 and it's swell."

It is related that an early morning golfer, stumbling through a field in San Fernando Valley one day, came upon a sleeping figure. The man awakened, leaped to his feet and shook a gold-headed cane vigorously.

"Drat it!" yelled Bill Fields at the retreating golfer. "What's the matter with this country? Can't a man have a little privacy?"

Waistlines Are Getting Lower

OVERBLOUSES and waistband types of blouses are further indications that waistlines are getting lower. The overblouse which is advocated for early fall fits the hips snugly and often has a belt which ties at the side. The belt may be adjusted to suit the wearer who places it high or low according to her belief in the dictates of fashion.

Waistband blouses have belts which are considered wide and so must be shaped to fit the figure. These blouses usually are of the tailored shirtwaist type and are being made of crepes and satins as well as shirting materials.

The trend toward a well defined waistline is a feature of the skirt and blouse mode, a trend which is apparent in the number of basques and shirred waistline treatments as well as tailored overblouse and waistband styles mentioned above.

White for Evening

WHITE is considered smarter than colors for late summer evening dresses now that black has received so much early summer indorsement. Satin and sheer crepe are two fabrics to consider, while taffeta is a choice for youthful models.

A wide girdle of gold beads, red suede embroidered with white beads, or metallic finished leather of gold or silver will supply a striking accent.

Trouble Can Lead You to Larger Life

But You Must Learn Always to Take It in Stride

By Elsie Robinson

TROUBLE? No use kidding yourself that you can duck it.

You may read a How-to-Be-Happy Book daily and follow all the rules—yet Life will continue to be the same old pain-in-the-neck.

However, there's a way of "beating the rap" — if you're smart enough to take it; a plan by which you can turn ANY trouble, however big or black, into a lasting profit. Interested? Then come along—

Trouble — as we said before— crashes every party. So what? How are you going to take it when it crashes yours?

There are just two ways. You can take it personally—or impersonally.

You can regard it as a purely private misfortune—

Or you can accept it as an admission ticket into a larger, wiser life.

The vicious thing about trouble isn't the trouble itself—but the way we take it.

—o-o—

IF YOU TAKE trouble personally, there's simply no end to the Cain it can raise. For you immediately add to the original trouble a lot of reactions which shouldn't come into the picture at all. You add self-pity . . . and resentment . . . and fear, in every form. Worst of all, you add egotism.

You refuse to realize that thousands of other human beings have had exactly the same misfortune. You DON'T WANT to realize this. You want to feel that YOUR misfortune is the cruelest blow on earth . . . that no one has ever suffered as you are suffering.

In no time at all, your trouble becomes an obsession which blots out all other considerations. You lose your imagination . . . your sense of values. You isolate yourself . . . become impossible to approach. Presently you begin to use your trouble as an alibi to escape things you do not wish to do . . . or as a means of obtaining attention or consideration you would not otherwise receive. Trouble has become a racket—it has made a hell out of a once decent human being.

—o-o—

THIS IS NOT vague theory, but grim reality. We all know people who have made a racket out of their grief or loss. Our insane asylums are filled with people who took trouble personally until they could not take it otherwise . . . until it became a Frankenstein which destroyed them. The distance between a fit of pouts and a padded cell is far shorter than you imagine!

That's the first, the easiest, the commonest way to take trouble. But there's another way which— believe it or not—turns trouble into a privilege instead of a pest.

You want to know a wider life, don't you? You envy those sophisticated people whose spirits are at home on any trail. You wish that you might share their exquisite poise and control. You may. And trouble is your chance!

—o-o—

FOR TROUBLE isn't merely an individual misery . . . it is also an initiation into the Big Game. It is a challenge . . . the proof of what-have-you. Nor is trouble an accident. It is as normal a part of growth as cutting our teeth or growing a regular chin instead of baby dimples. And if you can remember this—the world is yours.

For nothing gives power and poise so quickly, so thoroughly, as a spell of misery, gallantly borne. Nothing opens the door of experience to you so surely . . . nor binds your fellow man to you so completely . . . as mastered grief. For if you can remember the sting of your own agony, yet translate that sting into terms of universal misery, you hold the key which will unlock every heart on earth.

If you can take grief in your stride, as all normal growing creatures do, you'll not only gain control over your own childishness but you'll have the bulge on all the other cry-babies.

Pockets in Sleeve

You can carry your 'kerchief in your sleeve if your new shirtwaist frock happens to have its pockets placed so oddly. One cleverly styled frock on display this last week has slashed pockets in either sleeve, half way between the shoulder and the elbow. One of these contains a contrasting 'kerchief. The dress is made of aqua colored shantung, while buttons and handkerchief are of wine-colored linen.

MY OPINION
by Martha Carr

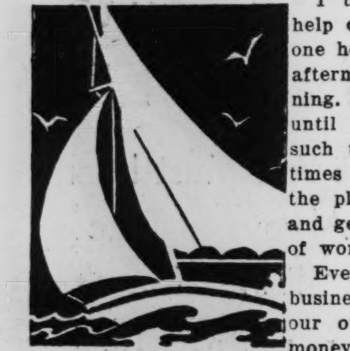
My dear Mrs. Carr:

EVER since your column began, I have been an admiring reader. And so, I should like to submit my problem. My husband holds a political job which takes part of his time, but not half the time he spends away from our business.



I take care of the business with the help of a boy; my husband giving it just one hour in the morning, one hour in the afternoon and two and a half in the evening. Then he leaves home and stays until after midnight. Our business is such that someone should be here at all times to answer phones and take care of the place. But I do all my housework, and get around to an unbelieveable amount of work.

Everything we have is tied up in this business; we have a good income double our output, my husband pockets the money and I have to ask for every cent for groceries and my clothes. And we have nothing to show for the results of this business but two vacant lots. I even worked and helped my husband through school; now after 20 years he is spending income on "wine, women and song."

I have wanted and worked for great things and want to conserve so that neither the State nor the town will have to take care of us when we are old. I have thought of a separate maintainance, but soon there wouldn't be any. We have no Domestic Relations Court in this town.

My husband tells me that a four-dollar a week girl could take my place. I have tried all the tricks of domestic problems but now I want you and others to tell me just how much of a fool I am. I want intelligent, helpful solution, if anyone has one.

A WIFE WHO HELPS.

I would say that you belong to the long-suffering class of wives who are, so long as they will permit it, taken for granted. A man of this type needs a practical jolt; and if he is not careful the jolt will finish both his business and his political career without intervention from you. It doesn't take long in a small town for people to see that a ne'er-do-well is not to be trusted either in business or in office. And, they are not slow to realize that his wife is the chief sufferer nor do they hesitate to criticise her for allowing conditions of this kind to continue.

Tell him it is impossible for you to run the business and the home, too. Neglect the house and the shop too, a little, and go out and have some good times yourself with your women friends. Have some special work you must do, in the evening or about the time he is obliged "to join the boys," in order to keep the political suavity he thinks necessary (and about which other, sharper and more practical politicians who get big offices, often sneer and laugh behind his back). Ask and demand a salary for your work in the shop and suggest selling out, unless he can give more time to it. Look after the cash register yourself and when he starts taking out too much, hold out your hand for more money.

There is no "rabbit's foot" that will take the place of firmness and a reasonable demand for your rights; even if a storm uproots the trees for a while.

Dear Martha Carr:

● I AM WONDERING if there are any "old-fashioned" boys any more? I have been out with several, but it seems that they are all alike. I am twenty and do not drink, smoke or go to parties. I do enjoy a good picture show.

OLD-FASHIONED.

Why "old-fashioned"? It is impossible to relegate all the decency, the courtesy, the proper interests to the boys of other days. While boys now may be carried away by the excitement of cars, drinking and laxness in moral responsibility; we cannot say that these things (except the cars) did not exist in the "old days" (whatever that may mean). There always have been men who were short on character and long on foolishness.

Again, there may be other reasons why you do not take so well with the boys, there are plenty of girls now, who are full of attractiveness, eager and enthusiastic, who have too much sense to be footballs and rags in the company of boys, in order to make a hit and to be popular.

What is the matter with dances and parties of the right kind? What is the matter with sports and the thousand and one interests you should have and which interest the right kind of boys; without drinking too much or smoking like a chimney and without giving up your independence.

Get busy and do things; there will, I am sure be boys you can know. If you want it, send me self-addressed, stamped envelope for my "Popularity."

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● I WOULD APPRECIATE it very much if you would ask some one to lend me a wheel chair for a time. I am in great need of one temporarily as I cannot walk or get around without one. Even when I walk with crutches, it gives me great pain. I am an elderly woman on relief, so have no money to rent one. Please print this as soon as you can. I am enclosing references.

ARTHRITIS.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

MAY I COME to you again? I have great faith in you. A flower-loving aunt took my grandfather a gardenia plant. I am especially proud of it and want to give it the best of care. Will you tell me where I can get literature on the care of this plant?

Will you also tell me some boys names beginning with "R"? We have already used "Raymond" and are not so fond of Robert. And maybe you would give us some girls' names beginning with "R."

And would you give me the names of some hotels, not the large expensive ones, where a girl visiting St. Louis, might stop?

ALWAYS THE SAME.

If you have no florist in your town, write the Missouri Botanical Garden, 2315 Tower Grove avenue, sending self-addressed, stamped envelope, asking for instruction about gardenias.

I cannot give the names of hotels in the column; but, knowing how difficult it is for a young girl alone in a city always to find a suitable place, I shall be glad to help you out if you will send me self-addressed, stamped envelope.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

New Dresses Give Hint of Fall Fashions

Braid Trimming Vogue Is Emphasized on Several Sheer Black Frocks.

NEW frocks of dark fabrics arriving in St. Louis during the last few days give a hint of the new silhouette and other style trends of the autumn. Smooth surfaced materials, including sheers that resemble woolens and sleek synthetic jerseys are featured most extensively, although there are also satins in the collections. Black appears to the exclusion of colors.

The vogue of braid trimming is emphasized on several new dresses made of sheer black materials. This braid is of the old-fashioned soutache type and is applied in the form of ornate bandings. One frock uses white braid to outline neckline and to mark the waistline which dips lower at the front and the back. The skirt of this model follows the lines of the figure with inverted pleats released at front and back to provide the necessary hemline fullness.

The popularity of shirring is revealed by a black synthetic jersey frock which has vertical rows of the shirring on the bodice and the sleeves. One row extends at the center front from the neckline to the hips so that there is a draped line through the waist section. Sleeves which are bracelet length also display the vertical gathers.

Talk is heard of straight-line coats and jackets and because of this a sheer black ensemble takes on greater interest. This has a full-length coat which hangs straight from the shoulders and is edged with a binding of black braid. Sleeves are straight and rather wide at the bottom. The frock accompanying this jacket is designed along tailored lines and has sleeves that are little more than caps over the shoulders.

in human memory, like first love or, for that matter, death. Next season, if the New York Central has gotten over the shock of having so many people so gratified by its service, Bye and Hungerford plan to take a train from Grand Central to the Penn Station. That can be ever more complicated, and they've found a way of doing it, via New Jersey and Poughkeepsie, that will make a run of 225 miles.

Sherman Billingsley eats at the Stork only when necessary. He claims he can't eat a meal in peace there. The waiters, overanxious to please the boss, get in his hair and the chefs incline to be too fancy with his order. He once ordered a peanut butter sandwich and the elaborate arrangement that arrived had his initials beautifully pricked out on it in truffles. Billingsley has barred Ralph Hitz from his premises, claiming that Hitz is up to no good when he visits a restaurant and borrows innovations and lures specially good waiters to one of his own establishments. The man entering the Stork in that black beard may be Mr. Hitz or it may be Johnny Weismuller.

IF YOU WANT to have mad fun at the dinner table, try to insert into the conversation a casual reference to barratry. Unless there's a lawyer or shipping insurance man present, the chances are 10 to one nobody will know what the word means, and it has a leer about it that is fascinatingly wicked. The suggestion that anyone is a barrator will make grandma suspect the worst until she gets her paws on a dictionary.

DRAMATIZED Dinners--BAH!

Potatoes With Their Jackets on, Ham, and Corn on the Cob Are Much More Appealing.

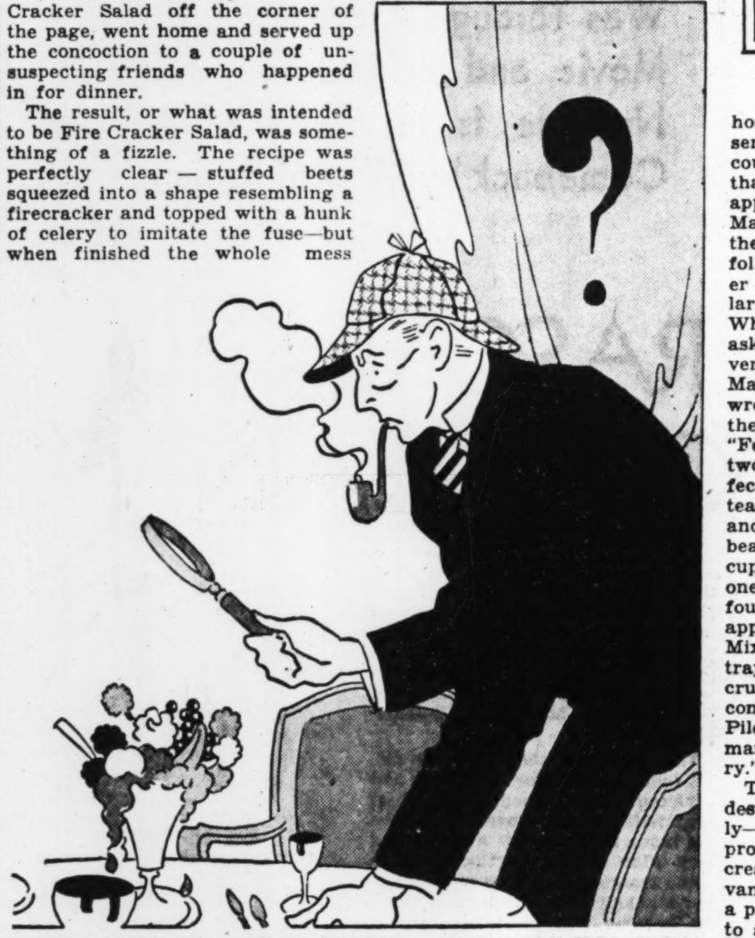
By Virginia Irwin

WHILE sitting in the hot room of a local emporium that has guaranteed to reduce my midriff by boiling off the bulges, I picked up one of those battered old magazines that seem to be stock fixtures in every ladies' turkish bath. Since eating is the thing I enjoy most and am supposed to do the least of, I turned to an article on food entitled, as I remember it now, "Dramatize Your Dinner by Honoring the Holiday." The holiday to be honored was the Fourth of July and although I realized I would be a little late with my salute, I tore the recipe for Fire Cracker Salad off the corner of the page, went home and served up the concoction to a couple of unsuspecting friends who happened in for dinner.

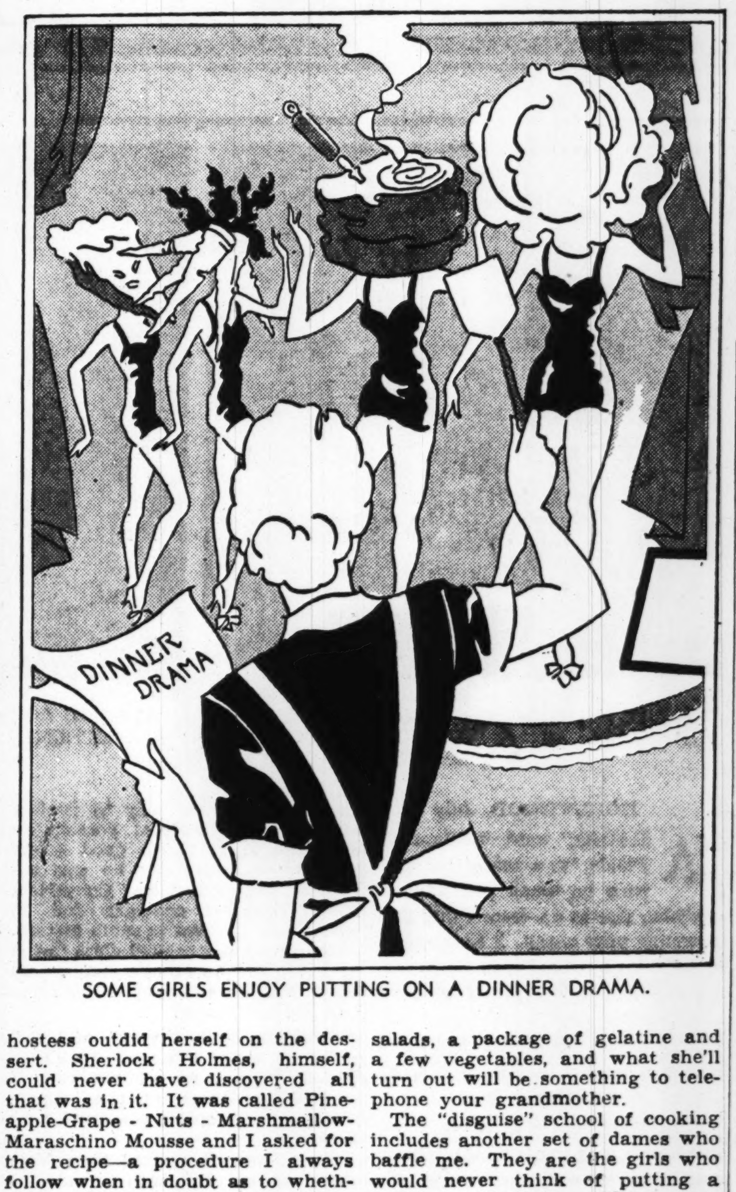
The result, or what was intended to be Fire Cracker Salad, was something of a fizzle. The recipe was perfectly clear — stuffed beets squeezed into a shape resembling a firecracker and topped with a hunk of celery to imitate the fuse—but when finished the whole mess looked as if I had dropped it in the middle of the kitchen floor. I realize now that dramatizing dinners is a fine art and I have a new respect for the girl who invited me to one last Christmas.

The food at this dinner was slightly sketchy but the dramatization was perfect. On a card table in the living room she had a string of Chrismas tree lights and miniature sandwiches hidden in watercress. The sandwiches were cut to resemble little Santa Clauses and the trick was to paw around in the watercress and snare a Santa Claus without disturbing the Christmas tree lights or upsetting the bridge table. There were other dramatized tidbits served later—marshmallows on toothpicks to resemble snowballs and a few other knickknacks which I fail to remember, probably because I had my mind on the six hamburgers I promised myself on the way home.

This particular dinner I am sure was entirely original, but for the woman who wants to make a drama out of her dinner and just hasn't any ideas, the ladies' magazines are a big help. In a recent issue one magazine tells you how to make high drama out of a ham, a prima donna out of a potroast, and a matinee idol out of mulligan. "After all, there's nothing very radical in the idea," insists this article and infers that with a little practice you can even make a hero out of a herring.



SHERLOCK HOLMES HIMSELF COULDN'T HAVE DISCOVERED EVERYTHING IN THAT DESSERT.



SOME GIRLS ENJOY PUTTING ON A DINNER DRAMA.

Personally I don't give a whoop for prima donna potroasts and herring heroes. Give me potatoes with the jackets on, ham in generous slabs, corn on the cob, a hunk of apple pie topped with a piece of cheese, and a cup of coffee, and the girls with the gift for dramatization can take all the romantic liberties with their own food they want to. I'd rather have a good old saloon lunch anytime than the mysteries some dames serve up for party fare.

Recently at a swell soiree, the hostess outdid herself on the dessert. Sherlock Holmes, himself, could never have discovered all that was in it. It was called Pineapple-Grape - Nuts - Marshmallow-Maraschino Mousse and I asked for the recipe—a procedure I always follow when in doubt as to whether I want to tackle some particularly terrifying-looking concoction. Wholly unsuspecting my reason for asking the recipe, the obliging inventor of Pineapple-Grape-Nuts-Marshmallow-Maraschino Mousse wrote down the instructions. Here they are—guaranteed to get you: "For four servings, beat yolks of two eggs, add one-third cup confectioners' sugar and one-sixteenth teaspoon of cinnamon, fold in one and one-half cups coffee cream beaten well, and one and one-third cups cream beaten stiff. Then add one-fourth cup grape-nuts, one-fourth can crushed canned pineapple, and one teaspoon of vanilla. Mix well and put in refrigerator trays and then sprinkle with more crushed grape-nuts, cinnamon and confectioners' sugar, and freeze. Pile in tall glasses and top with marshmallow and maraschino cherry."

This same hostess has another dessert of which she is inordinately—and I think unreasonably—proud. She calls it ice-tea-ice-cream, but personally I'll still take vanilla. Another girl I know has a passion for adding strange things to all manner of drinks. She puts peanut butter in milk and a stuffed olive frozen in an ice cube in the tomato juice. She says this olive-in-the-ice-cube-business makes such a pretty prelude to the dinner.

Salads are another field in which the women run riot, and finding a hostess who is willing just to toss a few greens in a salad bowl, add a little dressing and let it go at that, is something like finding a drunkard who doesn't drink. The temptation to "capture the glorious color symphony of the fruit and vegetable markets," as one food article reads, is just too great and the result is usually a rainbow gelatine mold imprisoning a lot of ill-assorted and defenseless vegetables. Give any woman who prides herself on "different" salads, a package of gelatine and a few vegetables, and what she'll turn out will be something to telephone your grandmother.

The "disguise" school of cooking includes another set of dames who baffle me. They are the girls who would never think of putting a radish on the table without carving it up to resemble a rose, who arrange the onions in a form of a bouquet, and get up the peas and beans in things resembling birds' nests. One such girl recently gave a dinner at which the dessert was an electrically lighted catfish made out of orange ice. The effect, I am told, was "simply divine," but I'm sure even if I'd seen it, I'd still think the idea was silly. Illuminated ice cream catfish and Easter lilies made out of mashed potatoes leave me strangely unmoved.

WHY the men upon whom such horrors are foisted do not rebel is, to me, a major mystery. After all, there can be no more ridiculous sight than a member of the alleged stronger sex toying with a Pineapple-Grape-Nuts-Marshmallow-Maraschino-Mousse or picking around in a fire-cracker salad. And certainly nothing could be sillier than some six-footer pawing around in watercress on a bridge table after a sandwich that's gone in one nibble. But the boys don't seem to mind. In fact, most of them seem rather to incline to the idea that it takes a smart girl to think up some trick like hiding sandwiches or making a gelatine salad in the form of Bluebeard's castle.

Once upon a time the best cook was the girl who could turn out the tastiest four-layer-chocolate-cake, but nowadays the best cook is the one who knows how to dramatize her dinner, make Easter lilies out of mashed potatoes and wire an ice cream catfish for illumination. It may be an art—this business of dramatizing food—but some of the results, in my opinion, belong in the garbage can instead of on the table. And, if you're planning on having me to dinner, you can cut the fancy work and have potatoes with the jackets on, lots of gravy and a thick cut of old-fashioned round steak.

Waiting, Always Waiting -:-

By Helen Rowland

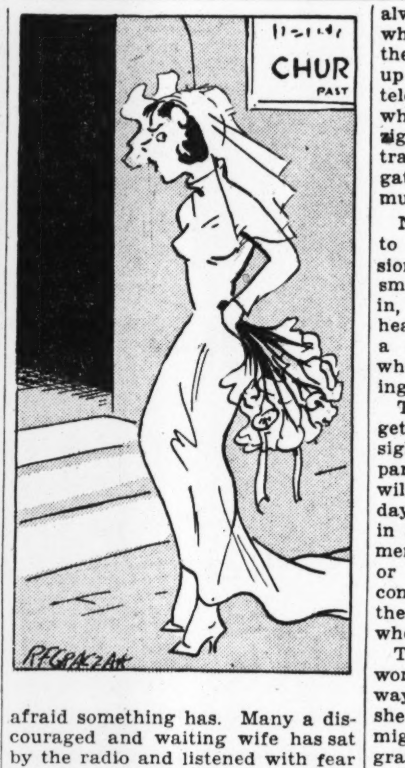
MOST women spend the best years of their lives in a state of suspended animation—waiting for some man! Waiting for him to show up—or waiting for a show-down. Waiting for him to go home—or waiting for him to come home!

Before marriage, a girl gets enough preliminary practice to prepare her for the long endurance test that's coming. She begins by waiting for a man to call her up; waiting for him to invite her out; waiting for the love-idea to break through his "armor-proof" defense-mechanism—and sometimes, waiting at the church until the best-man has braced him up and got him there.

After marriage comes the post-graduate course in the gentle art of waiting. Any woman not born with the resigned and placid soul of a "waiter," was not born to be happily married. It's a case of waiting for him to come to breakfast in the morning; waiting for him to get home to dinner at night; waiting for him to grow up and stop playing games—and finally waiting for him to slow down, remember his rheumatism, and stop thinking of himself as a Don Juan. And that's SOME wait!

The most foolish thing a girl can do is to lie awake nights wondering what has happened to her current man—just because he hasn't shown up or called up for a week. Nothing has happened to him—except possibly a new blonde. Or his old gang has "got him." Or he's gone fishing.

Nothing ever DOES happen to them! Especially, when you're afraid something has. Many a discouraged and waiting wife has sat by the radio and listened with fear and trembling—dreading to hear her "wandering boy's" name listed in some dreadful casualty. But it's only the good husbands who die young and suddenly. The other kind seem to be endowed with immortality!



Men are perverse that way. It is always the sober, steady-going man, who drives carefully and watches the traffic lights, that gets angled up with a truck or skids into a telegraph pole. While the gay boy who is three sheets in the wind, zigzags airily and safely through traffic and lands at the old garden gate without even scratching a mudguard. Immortal—that's what.

Nothing so outrages a woman as to sit up half the night, with visions of her husband mangled in a smash-up—and then have him walk in, hours and hours late, hale and hearty and cheerful—instead of on a stretcher. That's the moment when even the most patient of waiting wives yearns to throw things.

The truth is that a man just forgets a woman when she's out of his sight, as he forgets where he's parked his pipe or left his hat. He will leave her waiting around for days and days while he is absorbed in a business deal, or a little summer flirtation, or a golf tournament, or a trip out of town—and then come back and expect to pick up the friendship or the affair right where he left it.

There is an ancient joke that a woman is never on time; she is always keeping a man waiting while she primps. That alleged joke might have been side-splitting in grandmother's day. But in these modern times of feminine efficiency, a woman can make a quick change of three garments in five minutes, assemble her complexion in a jiffy or two, and be all dressed and ready—while a man is still hunting for his other shoes. Dressed and ready—and waiting.

Colorful 'Kerchiefs

Colorful linen 'kerchiefs are being sold in sets of three or more, all to be worn at once and attached at surprising places on summer play suits. A white pique suit, consisting of shorts and shirt, looks very patriotic when adorned with the 'kerchiefs made of red, white and blue linen. One is pulled through the belt strap and tied at the side, another protrudes from a shirt pocket and the third is twisted around the hair. If this arrangement doesn't satisfy, try the method of one gay cyclist who is seen in Forest Park with a scarf around her neck, another around a wrist and the third around an ankle.

Pearls in Style

Pearls are coming into the style limelight once more and are being featured for wear with late summer costumes. Necklaces, bracelets and earrings are included in the recommendations of jewelry types to supply the decorative note for white as well as black and navy costumes.

New Footwear Shade

A NEW shade called "thrush," which has the same spicy brown hue as the feathers of the bird by that name, has been added to the important ones for autumn footwear. Style authorities are recommending it for wear not only with the new golden brown apparel but with green and black. As it is primarily a shade for use with sports apparel, it is featured in the spectator sports type of footwear.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Dorothy Coleman

RECENT excursions into the surrounding country, and dinner conversations, have convinced us that there is an active urge to get back to the land among city-bred young folk. It isn't for frivolous or purely bucolic motives, either, they explain gravely. Sure, it's swell to have a cabin on some hilltop for week-end parties. And it's good for the soul to be able to rusticate occasionally beyond the roar of motors and somebody else's radio, out where it is cool enough for sleep of nights.

But the real reason these far-slighted young men—enough of them to be considered straws in the wind—are taking to the hills and plains is a practical one: they want a comparatively safe retreat out of the scope of ravaging mobs when the revolution finally breaks, as they are sure it will. You may think they show the unreason of alarmists. But to them the arguments are more than plausible; they are infallible.

It doesn't relieve their suppressed anxiety that now they have secure jobs, the apartment rent paid up, a car that's good for another three years, and a wife who is no stranger to a budget. They feel it especially when they have young children.

—o-o—

THE STATE OF MIND is apparently foreign to their fathers, who think son is simply indulging an extravagant whim when he puts money in a plot of scrub land 50 miles from town. But son figures differently. He doesn't need rich land. In the first place, he knows it costs too much. In the second place, he doesn't want it. His idea is not to be a gentleman farmer dabbling in fancy poultry. Nor is it to cultivate on a large scale. He realizes he is no farmer, by instinct or training. All he needs is enough ground for a kitchen garden that will supply vegetables for his own use, in case he is marooned. If a few Rhode Island reds can be managed, all right. But what he is looking for primarily is a piece of property that won't attract the notice of pillagers either by its crops or buildings, assuming they get that far beyond the city, which he thinks very improbable. That's why he goes so far out, even though 50 miles is hardly commuting distance to an office.

Call this urge panic if you like, but certain young men about town who are only typical, feel it sharply. They will cite historical precedents to justify their fears. One young man of our acquaintance has gone even farther. For years he has been building up a personal arsenal for use when "that dreadful day" arrives. He engages in regular target practice. He's going to be in the country by that time, but he wants to make sure no freebooter invades his little kingdom.

—o-o—

THE OLDER generation, which seems to be out of step with this back-to-the-sod procession, is on the move, none the less; whither bound, it's hard to say. But just watch the For Sale signs go up on houses as the sons and daughters marry out of them. The rush of weddings in June must have caused quite a flurry in the real estate market. Parents make no bones about suggesting to guests at the wedding reception that they better take a good look around the house: They'll be able to buy it at a sacrifice price as soon as the striped canopy is dismantled and the rice swept out of the corners. One June bride returned after a month's honeymoon to find the keys to the quarters she and her bridegroom were planning to occupy temporarily under the parental roof, along with those to the rest of the house, in the hands of a new owner.

WALTER WINCHELL IS ON VACATION. WHILE ABSENT HIS PLACE WILL BE TAKEN BY GUEST COLUMNISTS. HIS GUEST TODAY IS TYRONE POWER, YOUNG MOVIE STAR.

TYRONE POWER.

T'S amazing how wonderful dirty, old New York looks on a rainy day while lying out here in the Hollywood sun thinking about it . . . Can't make up my mind whether I like working or loafing [illegible] . . . When I'm doing one I always want to be doing the other . . . I wonder if Marion Pierce and Bobby Bard are ever going to get married . . . How long can Gordon and Revel keep turning out musical scores—each one better than the last . . . Wonder if I'll ever find anything to take the place of those wonderful moments I used to have sitting in Frank and Jack's kitchen next to the Martin Beck Theater, watching the chef with those Mack Sennett sideburns mix spaghetti for me while he listened to a Mozart concerto over the radio . . . Wonder if I'll ever have a chance to play summer stock again . . . Funny how devoid the movies are of that romantic aura which surrounds the theater . . . Their fascination springs from a different source . . . Why don't some of the radio visionaries in New York give Evelyn Abbott the break she deserves . . . There's a girl who really has it on the ball . . .

—o—o—

I WONDER WHY MORE STARS aren't as nice to autograph-seekers as Loretta Young . . . It's a pleasure to watch her . . . And she's been doing it for a long time . . . Wonder if Janet Gaynor ever found out who used to keep her dressing room supplied with roses . . . I hope I've paid all the debts of gratitude I owe to people who have helped me since the day out here in Hollywood when I couldn't afford even to buy tickets to a movie show . . . How I'd like to take that trip on a tramp steamer down the coast of South America.

—o—o—

It's funny how some of the people out here kick up an awful fuss if they don't get a de luxe suite for a dressing room . . . And just a few years ago they would have been overjoyed had they come into a theater and been assigned one with running water . . . Tommy Dorsey's "Song of India" recording is a masterly job of arranging . . . I think the most romantic figure in show business today is Eddie Cantor . . . It's edifying how much more you can get through quiet co-operation than you can through temperamental raving and ranting.

—o—o—

● I THINK ONE OF THE greatest thrills I could experience would be to see my name on the marquee of the theater where I used to usher . . . How few people there are in the world who really appreciate the great romance of just living . . . Wonder what ever happened to that dream princess of mine . . . Although I never knew her name, she used to turn my heart into butter whenever she came into the drug store where I jerked soda . . . And when I had to make deliveries I would hope against hope it was to her house . . . It never was . . . Could there be any thrill, even remotely, comparable to that day when I got my first job in New York?

—o—o—

WONDER WHAT'S HAPPENED to miniature golf, vaudeville, chain letters, knock-knocks and the music goes 'round? . . . What a glorious evening it would be if you could go into a theater again to see a feature picture, a newsreel and a comedy, and still get out in time for breakfast . . . What a thrill it is to see some of my classmates like Bill Walsh, Bobby Lindsay and Wilbur Wright, make good in a big way . . . More power to you . . .

—o—o—

It's funny how few women realize that men would rather see them as they really are . . . Wonder why they don't abandon that ridiculous habit of pounding their faces with powder puffs every five minutes, and slathering their mouths until they look as though someone had given them the back of his hand . . . Wonder if anybody has noticed the remarkable resemblance between Burgess Meredith and Bobby Lindsey, the boy whom Universal has just brought out here . . . I hope Bobby knows as much about acting as "Buzz" . . . and I guess Universal hopes so, too.

—o—o—

● I WISH I COULD WRITE like Dorothy Kilgallen . . . She has a knack of making the most commonplace things seem interesting, and what's even more difficult, amusing . . . Funny how often it works out that the people who work the hardest get the least money . . . and vice versa . . . My stand-in, Tommy Noonan, for instance . . . What a difficult and disappointing job that boy has, having that shiny apple continually dangling in front of him and then having it snatched away without getting even so much as a nibble.

—o—o—

WONDER IF some of the movie mag writers wouldn't like to know the names of the few members of their profession who make it so difficult for the majority, who are swell . . . When the things you say are completely hashed around to suit the purpose or whim of some individual writer, you really pull in your horns the next time . . . It's tough on everybody . . .

—o—o—

Funny how people often unconsciously voice a thought in times of mental excitement that in saner moments they would be scandalized to hear uttered . . . That highly successful actor who, the other night, during a mass meeting of the Screen Actors' Guild, said in speaking of the cause of the extras and bit players, "It is up to us to help them, we who are able. For every day you see them on the sets, some of them great actors of yesterday, directors, former friends . . .". . . And so it goes—tomorrow we may all be "former friends."

—o—o—

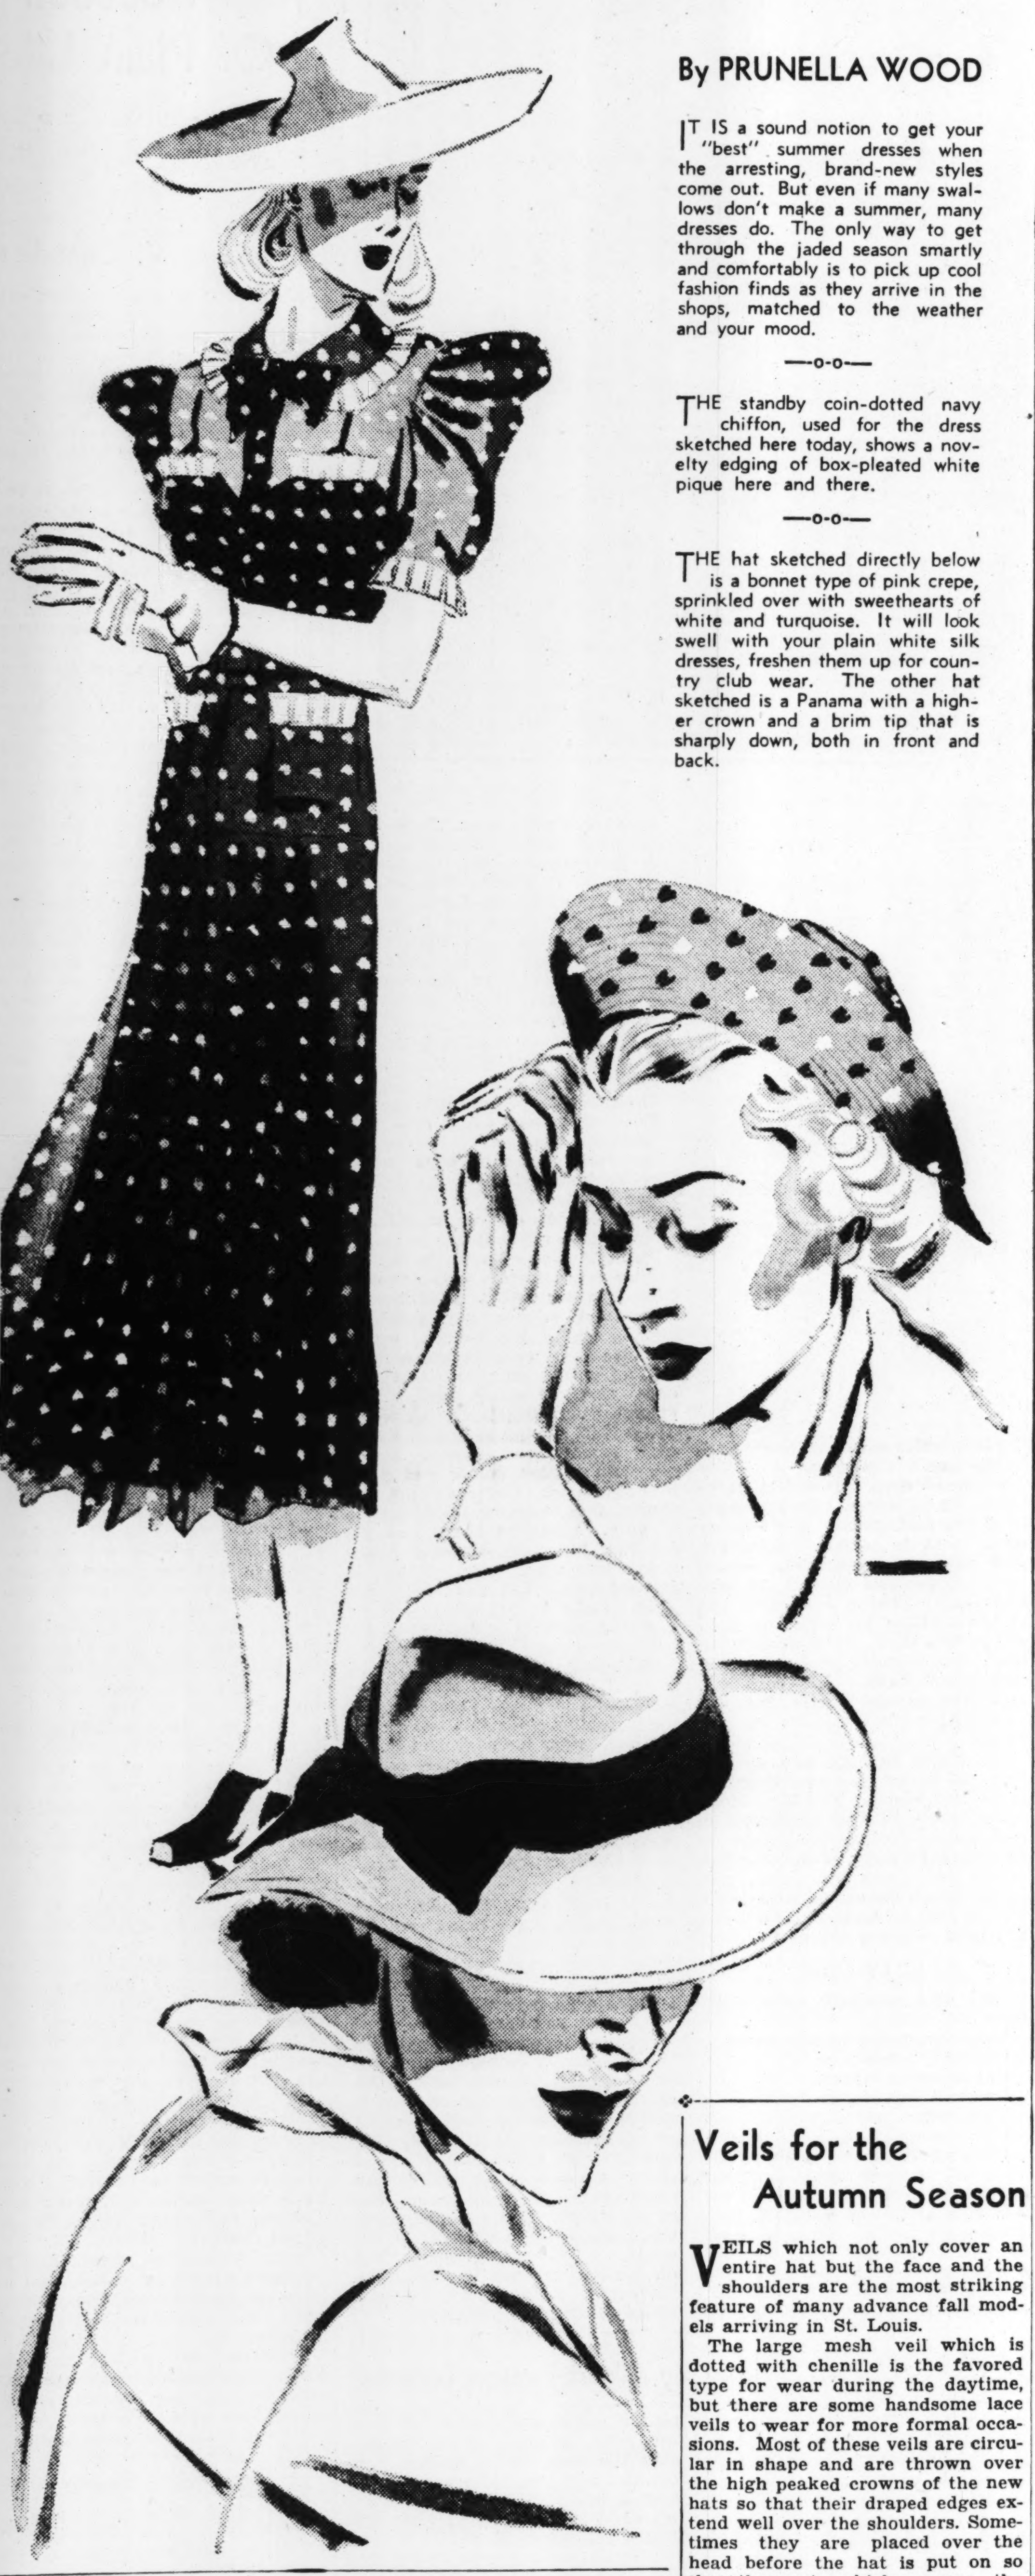
● IT'S STRANGE suddenly finding yourself meeting the people that you used to see only in the headlines . . . Of all the things I have to be thankful for, and there are certainly many, one of the greatest is that I have had the pleasure of playing with Katharine Cornell . . . Wonder where I would be today if it weren't for "Uncle Frank" Adams . . . He has been father, brother, legal adviser, helper and banker during the lean years . . . And that's a big order to fill for, as he would say, "a darned young upstart." . . . I can only hope that my friends who are struggling along the same grim trail have an "Uncle Frank" somewhere to help them as he helped me.

—o—o—

IT'S FUNNY HOW, when something happens to you that puts you a little ahead, so many of your contemporaries turn out to be contemptoraries. . . Wonder if Walter Winchell will ever ask me to do this again. . . . It's pretty hot out here in the sun. . . . And, anyway, there are too many flies. . . . Guess I'd better go in the house.

CLOSE-UP of ST. LOUIS FASHIONS

HOT WEATHER FINDS



By PRUNELLA WOOD

IT IS a sound notion to get your "best" summer dresses when the arresting, brand-new styles come out. But even if many swallows don't make a summer, many dresses do. The only way to get through the jaded season smartly and comfortably is to pick up cool fashion finds as they arrive in the shops, matched to the weather and your mood.

—o-o—

THE standby coin-dotted navy chiffon, used for the dress sketched here today, shows a novelty edging of box-pleated white pique here and there.

—o-o—

THE hat sketched directly below is a bonnet type of pink crepe, sprinkled over with sweethearts of white and turquoise. It will look swell with your plain white silk dresses, freshen them up for country club wear. The other hat sketched is a Panama with a higher crown and a brim tip that is sharply down, both in front and back.

Lower Line in Coats

New coats of soft finished woolens that have the casual appearance which travelers like indicate by their cut that waistlines are definitely lower. Many of the coats have a semifitted waistline extending downward at the back. Panels and gorings emphasize the lower line while pockets placed much lower also contribute a similar impression.

Hat of Embroidery

One of the most interesting of all the novel hats to appear this summer is made of eyelet embroidery. Its wide brim has a scalloped edge which resembles a glorified paper doily. The white fabric has been starched so that the brim keeps its fashionable dips while a black velvet ribbon supplies a note of contrast.

Handbag Trimmings

The all-white handbag is losing some of its popularity now that alliances of dark and light or light and bright are figuring so prominently in the midsummer fashions in accessories. Natural-colored linen bags, for example, usually have dark or novelty colored leather trimming and when worn with sandals or open-toed ties which supply the same interesting alliance offer a striking accent to a summer costume. Likewise, white bags that are trimmed with black are chosen for the all-black midsummer frock, as is the black bag, which has a clasp or flap that is white.

Unbleached muslin is a splendid material with which to cover the ironing board as there is no lint to come off in pressing suits or woolen materials.

Veils for the Autumn Season

VEILS which not only cover an entire hat but the face and the shoulders are the most striking feature of many advance fall models arriving in St. Louis.

The large mesh veil which is dotted with chenille is the favored type for wear during the daytime, but there are some handsome lace veils to wear for more formal occasions. Most of these veils are circular in shape and are thrown over the high peaked crowns of the new hats so that their draped edges extend well over the shoulders. Sometimes they are placed over the head before the hat is put on so that the part which covers the crown of the head serves as a crown for the hat.

Another type of veil, also circular in shape, has the center cut out so that the veil fits around a crown or edges the brim of a hat. It usually is worn to give a downward sweep at the back, frequently extending halfway to the waistline.

Dress Hemlines

Creators of late summer evening frocks are determined that slippers shall show. This doesn't mean that all of the skirts are short but it does mean that if they are long they have transparent hemlines. A striped satin frock which is short in front dips almost to the floor at the back while a striking blue taffeta model has a wide hem of starched net. The hem which zigzags all around is another evidence that footwear is important in the evening mode.

New Fashions Defy Calendar, Hot Weather

They Indicate That Autumn Season Is Just Around the Corner.

DARK felt hats with high crowns and abruptly turned brims, black suede footwear, antelope bags of novel proportions, satin frocks and fur-trimmed coats are flaunting their defiance at the high temperatures and the calendar. Judging by their appearance summer styles are back numbers and autumn is just around the corner.

Hats and accessories to dress up summer costumes are the first forerunners of the fall to be displayed in great numbers and to convince every woman that a change in trend is dooming their wardrobes. The hats are the most startling innovations, their peaked and soaring crowns replacing the low or crownless types of the summer and their wealth of feather trimming reminding of another era.

BRIMS ALSO take unexpected courses, some of them rolling up from bandeaux that are wide at the front and practically disappear at the back or pulled as high at one side as they are low at the other. Felt is used for the majority of these hats, although a few velvet and faille models are to be noted. Black likewise is more popular colors of which brown is the early favorite.

The new styles in footwear which are on display in the St. Louis shops indicate that suede is the most fashionable. The subject of high or low cut models seems to be disputed because there are many of each in the collections. Some sleek-fitting shoes which come up well over the insteps relent by having their toes cut out, while the low-cut pump styles cover the toes and add rather large tailored bows as trimming. Perforations are plentiful and large, and obviously are the most popular mode of decoration.

A tendency to match the material of bags and footwear is increasing in fashion importance. Many of the bags that are made of suede or antelope use perforations for decoration. If the shoe displays bow trimming or applications of contrasting leather, a bag can be obtained to carry out this same theme.

—o-o—

AN ALLIANCE between hats and shoes also is apparent, some being made of antelope, and adding matching bags. Grosgrain is being employed as trimming. It frequently is applied in the form of stitched bands. Patent leather bandings and rosettes also are attractive in combination with antelope or suede.

Tongue effects, saddle straps and many other trimmings which are associated with footwear appear on the new autumn bags and indicate that there is harmony between the two regardless of whether they match in color or in material.

A GIRL ABOUT TOWN

but gives them a worse thirst the morning after.

—o-o—

AT A PRIVATE celebration after the ceremony opening the new Daniel Boone bridge over the Missouri River a fortnight or so ago, we had a chance to exchange a few words with the Governor's lady, who carried off top prize for amiability on a hot afternoon after a dusty cross-country ride behind a motorcycle escort. Reminded of her vow, taken last fall, to renovate the kitchen of the Governor's mansion if Maj. Stark were elected, she exclaimed, "Yes, and, more than that, I'm moving it, too. You know it used to be in the basement clear across the house from the dining room. All the food had to come up literally piecemeal by a dumb waiter. But that's all being changed."

High time, too, Mrs. Stark thinks. As Missouri's first lady she has to entertain officially on too lavish a scale to put up with poor equipment.

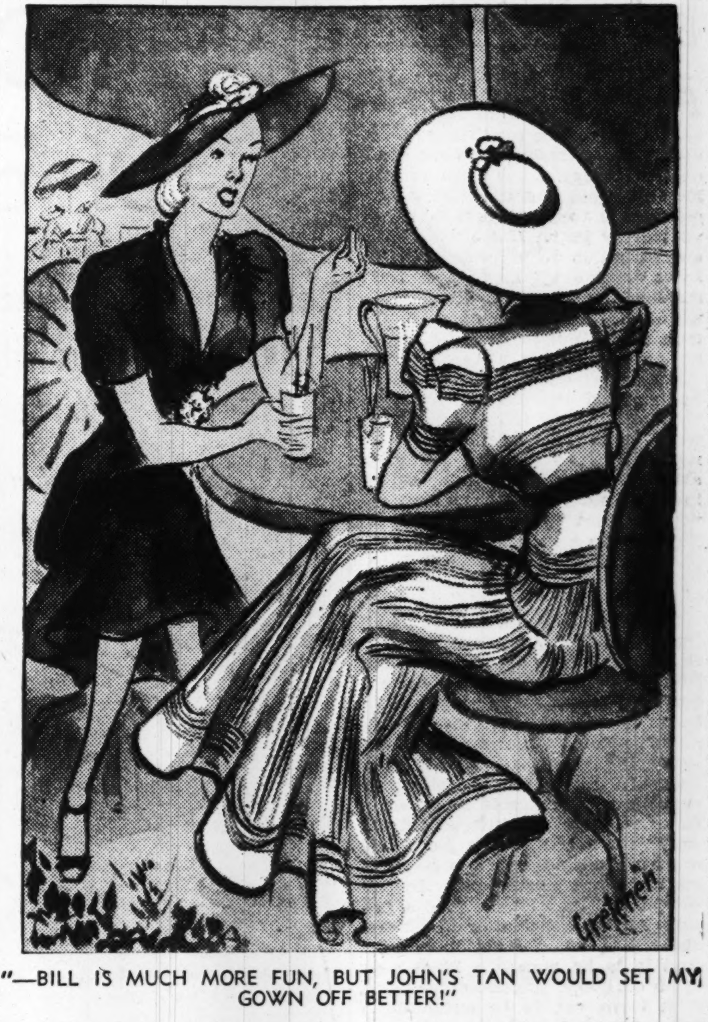
On the closing day of the Legislature she served the entire Senate—there are 34 of these senior Legislators—at breakfast; and invited all 150 Representatives in for luncheon later in the day. With the relish of small boys on a school picnic, they stripped the buffet table of all the provisions twice over, and made away with the reinforcements their anxious hostess had to send out for.

One of their number, thinking an apology was in order or recognizing a chance to get in a good lick for himself and his colleagues, approached Mrs. Stark. "I guess you think we fellows have pretty big appetites," he said, "the way we went after that lunch. But, you see, Mrs. Stark, if you had been on a dollar-a-day as long as we have, you'd have one, too."

Hair Braid

Old-fashioned hair braid is again used extensively for summery hats of the garden party type, especially when colored hats are wanted to complete an ensemble. In addition to the wide-brimmed variety, there have been some striking turbans with airy bow trimming and open tops worn by well-dressed St. Louis women.

STYLE-SMILES -:- -:- -:- By Gretchen



"—BILL IS MUCH MORE FUN, BUT JOHN'S TAN WOULD SET MY GOWN OFF BETTER!"

John's in luck for she's a gorgeous creature, as you can see. For tea on the terrace she wore a black sheer trimmed solely with self-fabric ruching accenting the bodice and the deep raglan sleeves. A white flower at her waist and on her black sheer picture hat. Her companion's dress calls for ecstacies—no less. Vivid stripes on white mousseline de soie, fashioned shirtwaist style; back and front identical except for tiny buttons down the bodice. The skirt hung full from the hips.

BLACK AND WHITE FROCKS FOR LATE SUMMER WEAR

MORE of those black and black and white frocks continue to arrive in the shops and convince the stay-at-home St. Louisans that these are ideally suited to the success of a late summer wardrobe. Vacationists, also, are finding it advisable to include one of these dark dresses in their traveling cases.

Noted among the new collections on display in St. Louis are several types of synthetic jersey dresses that stress new lines. The jersey is being featured extensively and should prove satisfactory for wear here because it is comparatively light of weight and does not muss easily. One point to consider, however, is that of careful fitting because the clinging material must fit the figure well or the entire costume loses its effectiveness.

One jersey frock that may be used for daytime and informal evening, too, has the new shirred detail on the three-quarter length sleeves and on the blouse. The rather high V shaped neckline is trimmed with a brilliant clip. Skirt fullness is subtly introduced by means of a pleated front panel, the pleats graduating and unpressed. The panel is cut so that the dress is moulded at the hipline in the new fitted manner.

—o-o—

THE VOGUE of black and white accents is expressed in a group of sheer crepe frocks, the texture of the fabric resembling serge. White faille is used for collars, cuffs and bandings. Illustrative of the collection is a black shirtwaist dress which has a sleeveless jacket edged at the front with the white ribbed material. There is a trim bow of white at the neckline of the dress. Wide turn back cuffs on the short sleeves also are white. The use of white faille rather than pique is typical of the late summer trend and stamps the all-purpose frock as being identified with newness.

Interesting also among the alliances of black and white are sheer black crepes which are embroidered in white. One St. Louis store has a variety of styles, most of the materials featuring small white designs. There is a shirtwaist type included in the group and another copy of an Alix original which has tricky sleeves open on top of the arm, a skirt with moulded hemline fullness, and a halo turban to match the frock.

—o-o—

BLACK AND WHITE printed satins also are forerunners of the earl autumn. Satin looks warmer than the dull finished fabrics so does not attain great popularity here in July and August but there are some exceptions among the printed versions. One striking frock of black satin has tiny white stripes placed an inch apart. The dress is made to emphasize vertical lines and has a trim turnover collar of white at the high neckline. The effect is cool and striking.

When the black or black and white dresses for late summer are worn with white hats and gloves they assume a summery appearance that rivals the all-white costume. By the substitution of black felt hat, and of shoes, gloves and bag of suede they step into the fall season with smart assurance.

White Satin

WHITE satin no longer is the exclusive property of brides. It is being worn this summer at all times of the day and night by smart cosmopolites who find its icy shimmer and its sleek surface excellent in creating an impression of coolness.

For summer dancing there are cleverly styled shirtwaist frocks with long skirts and covered shoulders or more formal frocks of satin which adopt the draped silhouette and display suntanned backs to perfection. For lunches and teas, satin again adopts a trim tailored aspect, the shirtwaist models buttoning all the way from hemline to neckline.

Housecoats and pajamas for wear at home and play suits for wear on the beaches all indicate the vogue of the glistening white material. In fact, bathing suits also have adopted the vogue, the white satin suit being one of the most striking and most popular this season.

New Shades in Chiffon Have a Cool Appearance

JUST about this time of year we are faced with an old annual summer problem. We have been pretty smart, so we thought, and brought enough evening gowns and informal dinner dresses to carry us through these warm nights. But already these fragile chiffons, nets, organdies and mousselines are beginning to get that "tired look" and we are beginning to yearn for something fresh and new.

Why not adorn yourself in a delicately shaded pastel printed chiffon evening gown? There is nothing so charmingly cool and refreshing and particularly are they lovely this year with so many subtle new shades.

One young woman, who is always impeccably groomed, looked stunning the other evening wearing a chiffon gown printed in muted shades of rose, pink, gray and white. Cut flatteringly low in back, the decolletage of the dress was daintily appliqued with dainty leaves which also formed a flattering back panel. Another lovely blonde noted recently wearing a delicately printed chiffon gown chose hers in floral pattern of shaded lavender tones splashed against a white background. The very attractive rounded decolletage had wide angel wing shoulders that Schiaparelli favored in her last collection.

Another smart filip for your more informal summer evening wardrobe is white sharkskin cut on very slim lines. The sharkskin white quality of this fabric is flattering against your summer tanned skin, and there is nothing more practical for you can tub the dress along with your hardest sports clothes.

LET ME SUGGEST

by
Josephine Walter

A GROUP of people were sitting around the other night saying good-by before starting in various directions for their summer vacations. A lucky few were headed for Europe, some were touring New England and the others were going back to the resorts that they visit every year. But almost without exception they intended to do some "antiquing" as part of their summer's sport. And, though they were a little sheepish about it, the men turned out to be more ardent antiquers than the women.

But one question seemed to bother most of them and that was "how could they tell whether they were buying genuine antiques or merely articles of the copyists' art?" None of them was an expert in any field of collecting and yet none wanted to be duped. Could I give them a little advice on the lore of collecting?

—o-o—

I WAS QUITE FRANK to admit that I am pretty much a "babe in the woods," just as they, when it came to antiquing. I told them I had also known many experts to be taken in. Personally, there is only one rule that I try always to follow in buying antiques and it has proved a great boon to the family exchequer. My secret is never to pay more for an antique than I would for a comparable piece that is not supposed to be old—or at least not very much more. In this way, I feel that I have paid a fair price for the article and do not feel cheated if, when I get it home, I find it to be merely a good copy of an old piece. On the other hand, if it turns out to be authentic, I can pat myself on the back for getting a real bargain.

—o-o—

This rule, of course, does not apply to pieces which are absolutely authenticated and which I can be sure are bona fide antiques. There is no true market value on pieces of this nature and the owner is justified in charging whatever price he feels the piece is worth. Pieces of this nature are those that have an unquestioned pedigree accompanying them or those that are bought from dealers whose word can be taken as gospel.

—o-o—

● ANOTHER rule that I try to follow is to take my critical sense along with me. So many people, in viewing an old piece, become blinded by its age and forget to look at it from the viewpoint of its lines or beauty. Not everything that is old is lovely or even desirable and it is always wise to question the beauty of a piece before you question its age. I have known people of usually impeccable taste to come home from a trip and triumphantly display a set of chairs for their dining room which are undoubtedly old but which could never have been intended for any place other than a farm-house kitchen.

—o-o—

Some people have the misguided notion that an antique cannot be an antique unless it is so old and dilapidated that it must go through a face-lifting operation before it can be presented to company. This is decidedly a false notion. Most authentic antiques have been treasured possessions of the family who originally owned them or of people who bought and paid good prices for them, and, therefore, have been given excellent care. Of course, it is true that the overheated modern houses have worked havoc on some fine old pieces, but this is more often true of the inlay or veneering than the structural parts.

THERE ARE supposed to be certain tips for gauging the authenticity of antiques and I will pass them on to you, but you must not blame me if the piece you purchase conforms to all these requirements and you still find yourself duped. After all, if either Washington or Lincoln had slept in all the beds they were supposed to, they must have been suffering from severe cases of sleeping sickness.

First of all, look on the inside of the drawers. Does a gluey odor come from them? For even after 25 or 30 years an odor of glue will cling to the drawers. Also, see if the varnish or finish of the outside wood has run into the corners. In fine old pieces the workmanship was too careful to allow this to happen. And, finally, look at the dove-tailing. Small, even dove-tailing is almost always a sign of modern construction, while that which has very wide dove-tails alternating with very narrow ones is supposed to be the finest.

The polish or finish of an old piece should be smooth to the touch and should have a certain depth to it which is termed patina. Also, all edges, either of the piece itself or the carving on it, should be rounded and softened by years of wear and polishing.

Most pieces made in this country are not signed. If, however, you are purchasing a really expensive piece, especially of French origin, there are certain places to look for the markings. Usually, under the marble top, it will be found in one corner or at the back. If not, look underneath the carcass, at one of the corners or on one of the cross pieces. Occasionally a marking will be placed in a drawer.

FINE FOODS Of Early Days

Recipes Which Delighted Founders of the Republic Still Being Used at Williamsburg.

By Mary Lindsley

ABOVE—BRUNSWICK STEW HAS A FULL-BODIED SAVOR.

OLD-STYLE Southern hospitality that flourished with such vigor in the Colonial town of Williamsburg, Va., has been restored in all its pre-Revolutionary day splendor.

In the past eight years while the miracle of restoration has raised a slumbering village, once a capitol metropolis, to its former glory, the good living of its people has been brought to life again in the kitchens of the Old Travis House and the Williamsburg Inn. Just as the archeologists excavated 150-odd Colonial foundations, exhuming tons of junk and treasure, so food historians mulled through old books, ransacking family recipe collections to recover the secrets of those collations that piled the tables of the Washingtons, the Randolphs, and the Lees.

No idler's job adapting these old menus and recipes to modern appetites. Here, for example, is a three-course home dinner, copied from "The Art of Cookery"—a familiar cookbook of the period and section.

THE ORDER OF A MODERN BILL OF FARE

First Course

Jugged hare.
Cod and oyster sauce.
French patty chickens.
Neck of veal.
Broiled salmon.
Almond soup.
Small puddings. Tongue and udder.
Torrent de veau.
Fillet of beef, roasted.

Second Course

Stewed pears. Pheasants.
Roast lobsters.
White fricasse. Apple tarts.
Custards. Jellies.
Mushrooms. Turkey.
Oyster loaves. Pippins.

Third Course

Fried artichokes. Sweetbreads.
Almond cheesecakes. Potted eels.
Amulet potted lobsters.
Fruit. Larks. Forced celery.
Pig's ears. Apricot puffs.

Virginia hams were so prized in the colony that they and greens had a place of honor as "standing dishes," baked ham being given honor place in every menu from breakfast through supper.

Ensconced in dignified state it was skillfully carved by the head of the house. These hams were one of the most genteel presents a Virginian could send home to England, with waterwitch skins and rattlesnake root to those who had sent him Gloucester cheese or antimonial drops. Of their hams the Rev. Hugh Jones said, "their bacon is execllent, the hams being scarce to be distinguished from those of Westphalia."

The cooking of the dish amounted to a ritual. It is no unusual thing to find a family recipe kept with the family Bible.

BAKED HAM

Twelve-pound smoked ham.
One-half cup firmly packed brown sugar.
One-half cup vinegar.
Three cups dry bread crumbs.
One-half cup water from ham.
One-fourth cup melted butter.
One-half cup finely chopped chow-chow.
Cucumber pickle to garnish.

Wash ham. Cover with cold water. Add vinegar and sugar. Simmer four hours or until tender. Remove skin. Score fat in diamond shapes. Combine bread crumbs, water from ham, butter and chow-chow, making a thick paste. Pat this into cuts of fat, and make a layer over it. Garnish with slices of cucumber pickle. Cover and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) two hours. Approximate yield: 30 portions.

Brunswick stew in a huge tureen was the warming dinner welcome when colonial fathers arrived home on frosty nights. A hearty stew for big appetites, a standard dish in the inns during those "Public Times" in Williamsburg when the assemblies convened and the courts sat, and the town turned from being a quiet center college town into a boiling metropolis, notable for "the prodigious number of coaches that crowded the deep and sandy streets."

BRUNSWICK STEW

Five-pound chicken, cut for fricassee.
Five quarts cold water.
Two teaspoons salt.
Two cups fresh string beans, cut.
Four potatoes, peeled and diced.
Two cups okra, cut.
Three medium-sized tomatoes, quartered.
One (No. 2) can corn kernels.
One-fourth cup flour.

Wash chicken. Place in large kettle. Add water. Bring slowly to a boil and simmer one hour or until meat is tender. Skim fat. Add salt and vegetables, except corn. Cover and simmer 30 minutes longer. Blend one-fourth cup of the chicken fat with the flour and add to stew. Cook until thickened, five minutes or longer, stirring occasionally. Add corn and cook five minutes longer. Serve at once. Approximate yield: six portions.

One finds as long ago as 1724 that hot bread was established as a Virginia staple. The Rev. Hugh Jones wrote of the Virginians at that time: "And as they brew, so do they bake daily, bread or cakes, eating too much hot and new bread, which cannot be wholesome, tho' it be pleasanter than what has been baked a day of two."

SALLY LUNN

Two and one-half cups sifted flour.
Three teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half cup butter.
One-half cup sugar.
Three eggs, well beaten.
One cup milk.

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cream butter until soft. Add sugar gradually and beat well. Add eggs and blend well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating until smooth after each addition. Turn into greased loaf pan (8"x8"x2") and bake in hot oven (400 degrees) 35 minutes or until done. Serve hot. Approximate yield: Six portions.

In Williamsburg is the Custis place where Martha Washington and her first husband kept house about 185 years ago, and it was in this kitchen that she first made these potato light rolls. Later she cajoled the father of our country with this same delight which he ate—six at one meal.

MARTHA WASHINGTON'S LIGHT POTATO ROLLS

Two large potatoes.
Three tablespoons butter.
Two tablespoons sugar .
One teaspoon salt.
One and one-half cups water drained from potatoes.
One yeast cake.
Three-fourths cup warm milk.
Seven cups sifted flour.

Peel and cook potatoes in rapidly boiling salted water until tender. Drain, saving water. Add butter, sugar and salt to hot potatoes, beating well. Add potato water. Dissolve yeast cake in warm milk. Add to potato mixture. Add four cups flour, beating well. Add enough remaining flour to make a dough stiff enough to knead. Knead until smooth and elastic. Brush top with melted butter and place in large bowl. Cover and let rise slowly, five hours or until doubled in bulk. Place on board and pat out flat, but do not knead again. Shape into small rolls. Place in greased pan. Let rise until very light. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees) 20 minutes or until done. Approximate yield: Four dozen rolls.

Such desserts! A meal in themselves if you counted the calories. Molasses and maple sugar supplied the sweetening, for this was before the beet sugar industry had gotten under way. Sturdy homely recipes that were for every day occasions, Indian boiled pudding, boiled batter pudding, curds and whey. For company dinners, no dessert could be too elaborate to please a prideful cook.

QUEEN OF PUDDING

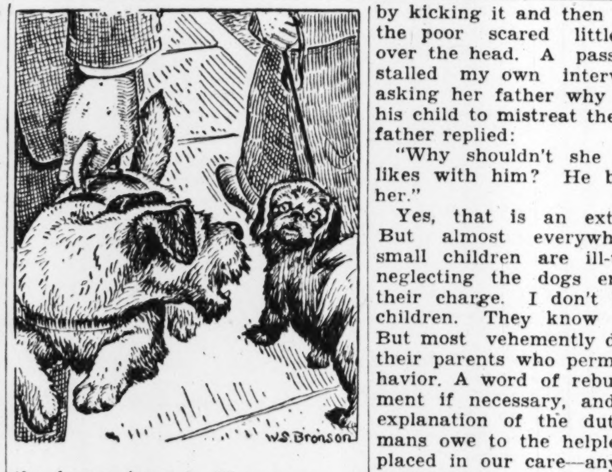
One cup fine dry bread crumbs.
One pint milk.
Two tablespoons butter.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
Three eggs, separated.
One pint raspberries.

Combine bread crumbs and milk. Let soak five minutes or until mixture is thick. Cream butter. Add one-half cup sugar and cream well. Add well-beaten egg yolks. Add to crumb mixture and mix well. Turn into greased casserole. Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) one hour or until firm. Place raspberries on top. Make a meringue of egg whites and remaining sugar. Heap on berries. Brown in oven. Cool thoroughly before serving. Approximate yield: Six portions.

CALLING ALL DOGS -:- -:- -:- By Albert Payson Terhune

AND now it's the handbag dog. Here is the idea:

Fido's harness is arranged with two girths instead of one. The first girth is far forward. To this the leash is attached. The second girth is farther back. The two are connected on top by a leather handle, like that on a valise. (Naturally, this apparatus is only for small dogs which can be lifted with ease.) The owner crosses the street in heavy traffic. He stoops down and picks up the dog by the valise-handle; and carries it safely to the opposite curb.



The weight is so balanced as to make the trip comfortable for the canine passenger. Moreover, he is safe from traffic and from all other street-crossing perils.

Here is another advantage of turning your dog into a temporary handbag: suppose you are leading him along the sidewalk and some larger and fiercer dog approaches. Instead of yanking at the leash or trying to interpose your own body between your little dog and his possible assailant, all you have to do is pick him up by the handle strap and tote him at your side or under your arm, till the danger is past. The same easy method prevents a fight, in case he is pugnacious and goes for some dog of his own size. The battle is averted, with ridiculous ease.

—o-o—

THE SIX-YEAR-OLD CHILD was leading a scampering three-months puppy on a leash, she stubbed her toe. I suppose it hurt. And she vented her pain on the puppy, by kicking it and then by clouting the poor scared little creature over the head. A passerby forestalled my own intervention by asking her father why he allowed his child to mistreat the pup. The father replied:

"Why shouldn't she do as she likes with him? He belongs to her."

Yes, that is an extreme case. But almost everywhere many small children are ill-treating or neglecting the dogs entrusted to their charge. I don't blame the children. They know no better. But most vehemently do I blame their parents who permit such behavior. A word of rebuke, punishment if necessary, and a careful explanation of the duty we humans owe to the helpless animals placed in our care—any father or mother can and should administer this kind of lesson.

A dog is an ideal playmate for a child. But too often a child is a horrible playmate for a dog. And the child is the greater sufferer thereby. For it will acquire traits of bullying and cruelty and injustice toward the weak, which may continue through life and may cause misery to many another human.

A Method for Reproduction Of Plant Life

Layering Is Reliable and Easy Way to Start New Shrubs, Vines.

By Harriet W. Chandler

LAYERING is another method nature has for reproducing itself. In the wild many vines that fall to the ground will be found rooting at the different nodes along the stem. In the same manner many different sorts of our woody stemmed vines and shrubs can be induced to root along their canes and start new plants.

Layering is perhaps the most reliable way to increase one's stock and certainly the easiest, and is often used successfully on those plants where cuttings have failed. There are several different forms to use, the simplest being to bend a long shoot to the ground, covering a part of it with soil to the depth of about two inches and allowing the end to stand out. To induce quicker root growth slit the bark at the buried node and peg it down; then turn the tip up and tie to a stake. The tip must be six to 12 inches long to draw sap to the new root.

A plant from which others are to be propagated should be heavily pruned at the beginning of the season to induce the sending up of strong new shoots, as canes of the same year's growth are preferable for layering, though old ones may do. As early in the season as the cane gets long enough will be a good time to start this work. Though layering can be done later in summer, very dry weather is of course unfavorable to new root growth and demands regular waterings to save rootings made earlier in the year.

—o-o—

WHEN TUFTS of vigorous looking new leaves show that a root system has developed, the new growth can be cut away from the mother plant and in fall can be transplanted to the nursery row to grow until shapely enough to warrant a place in the border.

Almost any of the shrubs or vines that can be bent to the ground can be propagated by layering. The Wisteria, grapes, English ivy, honeysuckle and many of the climbing roses are particularly good subjects.

What is called the serpentine method of layering will produce a number of new plants from one long supple branch. By this method sections of stems are alternately covered with soil and left exposed. Each buried section will make a new root and the separate plants can be cut from the parent vine, just as in simple layering.

Some shrubs with long arching branches will root when they touch the ground. The forsythia and berry plants are easily increased this way. As the tips are about to take root they should be anchored with clods of earth or pegged down so as not to be whipped out of the ground by the wind. Both roots and new shoots should develop by fall, but must not be severed from the parent shrub until the following spring.

—o-o—

STIFF SHRUBS such as the spireas, Japanese quince and hydrangeas, which refuse to bend to the ground, can still be propagated by mound layering. This is a slower way than the others but produces strong, stocky plants. Shrubs to be so layered should be pruned heavily the fall before to encourage full new growth around the base. In spring nick or slit each shoot close to the ground to induce rooting and heap light, loamy soil high enough around the base to cover several of the leaf nodes. Each shoot should root nicely and a dozen new plants might be obtained from the old one.

Many herbaceous plants can be layered as easily as shrubs, but as they are more brittle, the sprawly sorts lend themselves best to such propagation.

Layering is easy, reliable and calls for little or no attention from the time the branches are covered until the new growth is ready to be cut away from the parent stock.

Egg Milk Shake.

Three cups milk.
Three eggs.
Four tablespoons sugar.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Few grains nutmeg and cinnamon.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.

Beat the eggs until very light; add the sugar, salt, vanilla and spices, then the milk. Stir until the sugar is dissolved, then heat well. Serve cold.

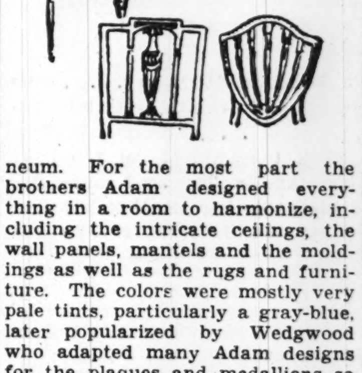
COMBINING DIFFERENT PERIODS OF FURNITURE

By Elizabeth Boykin.

"I'M all mixed up," confessed a young bride involved for the first time with the intricacies of selecting furniture and deciding on designs for this and that. "I know Chippendale furniture when I see it, but I can't get straight what else is meant by the terms Georgian or Nineteenth century English."

That's a big order! The word Georgian usually applies to the styles in furniture prevalent during the reigns of the four Georges who were rulers of England during much of the eighteenth century. Chippendale was only one of the furniture designers whose work was popular during this period. There were also Sheraton, Hepplewhite and the brothers Adam who created quite a different type of furniture, most of it very lovely. These styles of furniture are usually quite congenial to use with Chippendale as well as with each other.

Robert Adam, the most famous of the Adams, found his inspiration largely in the classical designs excavated at Pompeii and Herculaneum. For the most part the brothers Adam designed everything in a room to harmonize, including the intricate ceilings, the wall panels, mantels and the moldings as well as the rugs and furniture. The colors were mostly very pale tints, particularly a gray-blue, later popularized by Wedgwood who adapted many Adam designs for the plaques and medallions so familiar today. There is a delicacy and formality in Adam designs but they aren't particularly comfortable. Nowadays when used, we are inclined to prefer single pieces rather than entire Adam rooms.



Hepplewhite first worked in the Adam tradition, but later developed a style of his own, though he always retained something of his classic heritage. The Hepplewhite chair is distinguished by a shield of oval shaped back and a sweeping curve at the top. The chair arms join the legs in an unbrok sweeping line and chair legs a usually square. The Hepplewhit sideboard often had concave co ners. Hepplewhite worked chiefl in mahogany and satinwood, fr quently inlaying the former wit the latter. He also employed pain ed decorations.

Sheraton chair backs most co monly have a series of vertica lines supported by a bottom rail Though he did make some shield shaped backs, he usually broke th curve at the top with a straight line. The arms joined the leg pedestal-fashion with a break and joining. Some of Sheraton's side boards had convex corners—some were very similar to Hepplewhite's Sheraton often added a brass rail ing at the back for plates to re against.

Generally Sheraton furniture w more elaborate than Hepplewhite having the added influence o Louis XVI styles in its conception He likewise worked mostly in ma hogany. The work of Hepplewhite and Sheraton is often confused, and because of the similarity between the two, it sometimes takes some time before a person can differentiate between them.

Porch Gadgets

If your porch or summer cottag has a slightly jaded or outmoded look, perhaps it needs to be dressed up with some of those new gadgets of wire and tole. Flower pots and vases to attach to the wall, fruit dishes, candlesticks, Cape Cod hurricane lamps that won't leave you in the dark, and numerous other attractive pieces are on display in the St. Louis shops. Most of them are painted white but occasionally a flash of deep blue appears, such as the square container for fruit, flowers or rolls which reposes in a white wire frame.

Russian Cocoa.

Three-fourths cup rich cocoa made with milk.
One-fourth cup coffee.
One-fourth teaspoon vanilla.

Combine cocoa and coffee while hot. Chill, add vanilla and serve with cracked ice and sugar to taste. Whipped cream may be added if desired.

Sergeant's DOG MEDICINES

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, July 10.

WELL, the list of the world's 10 best-dressed women has appeared, and I note that three American women made it this time. Mrs. Gilbert Miller, Mrs. Harrison Williams and Her Grace the Duchess of Windsor. By the merest chance, I came upon the newspaper announcement of this list as I was sitting with two fashion editors, Emmy Ives and Esther Lyman, gasping with amazement over the beautiful creations designed by Miss Leslie Morris of Fifth avenue's most exclusive shop. A year or so ago Emmy Ives was on this list. She is indeed a well-dressed woman, always, of course, in fashion. But at this moment she was gazing ruefully down at her feet, incased in adhesive taping. One of the world's 10 best-dressed women of—was it 1936?—was suffering from falling arches, even as you and I.

Then, to solace myself further for failing to have made the list, I remembered Elsie de Wolfe—possibly you call her Lady Mendl. She's a 10-best-dresser alumna of the year 1935, I believe. And at this moment her Fifth avenue interior decorating shop has her loaded down with business worries. So, what does it get you to be the best-dresser? Fallen arches? Worries? I'm content to stay a newspaper drudge, wearing my neatly tailored models—worn thin where I sit at the typewriter, lost for words.

—o-o—

Speaking of the Duchess of Windsor—and the whole world still continues to speak of her—my friend Lily Dache, the milliner, came back from Paris on the Normandie, and says that Paris is still agog over the jewels the Duchess sent to Cartier's for resetting. They were that magnificent. All nice and polished, they were returned to Her Grace in time for the wedding. The bill for their resetting was sent to—and paid from—Buckingham Palace.

—o-o—

● ANOTHER WORD about the Duchess, and we will let her rest for the present. Antoine, the coiffure king of Paris, was asked to do Mrs. Warfield's hair for the wedding. As he is often called upon to dress the hair of peeresses and ladies in waiting in London, he felt he had better steer clear of the Windsor nuptials. He sent, instead, his best man, Antonio, and Antonio proved to be a master hair architect. The moment he returned, he was besieged by women wanting their hair done by the same hand that had curled the Duchess' tresses. In no time he had resigned from Antoine, and now has a place in Paris called Antonio and Fernando, which I hear, is turning patrons away, for lack of time and place to put them.

—o-o—

Almost knocking me over as she ducked into an alley on West Forty-seventh street to escape autograph hounds was cute little Anita Loos, whom her friends call "the bug." She is her own best brunette denial of the tradition that gentlemen prefer blondes, even though she wrote the book. She now lives in Hollywood, but comes to town each season to see the shows. She also does a little shopping while here, and complains bitterly because her feet are too small and her head too big. Size 1½ for the former and 23 for the latter.

—o-o—

● I RAN INTO Mignon Bushel, a fiery little newspaper girl, just as she was leaving the police headquarters, where she had been assigned to seeing Robert Irwin, the Easter Day triple murderer. Mignon, 100 pounds of frail little white-faced girl, is the last person one would dream of sending to cover a blood-curdling murder story—which this certainly is. But she can take it, and she socks the point home in the story every time.

HELEN HAYES came to town with an inky imprint on her wrist the other day. Her husband, the prankful Charley MacArthur, had found a rubber stamp bearing the printed sentiment, "I love you." All their week-end guests and Helen, as well, had been thus stamped on all exposed areas.

They both seem to do very well. I entrust my all to a typewriter keyboard—47 little inanimate circles of metal spell success or failure for me.

SCARLETT FEVER

ILLUSTRATIONS
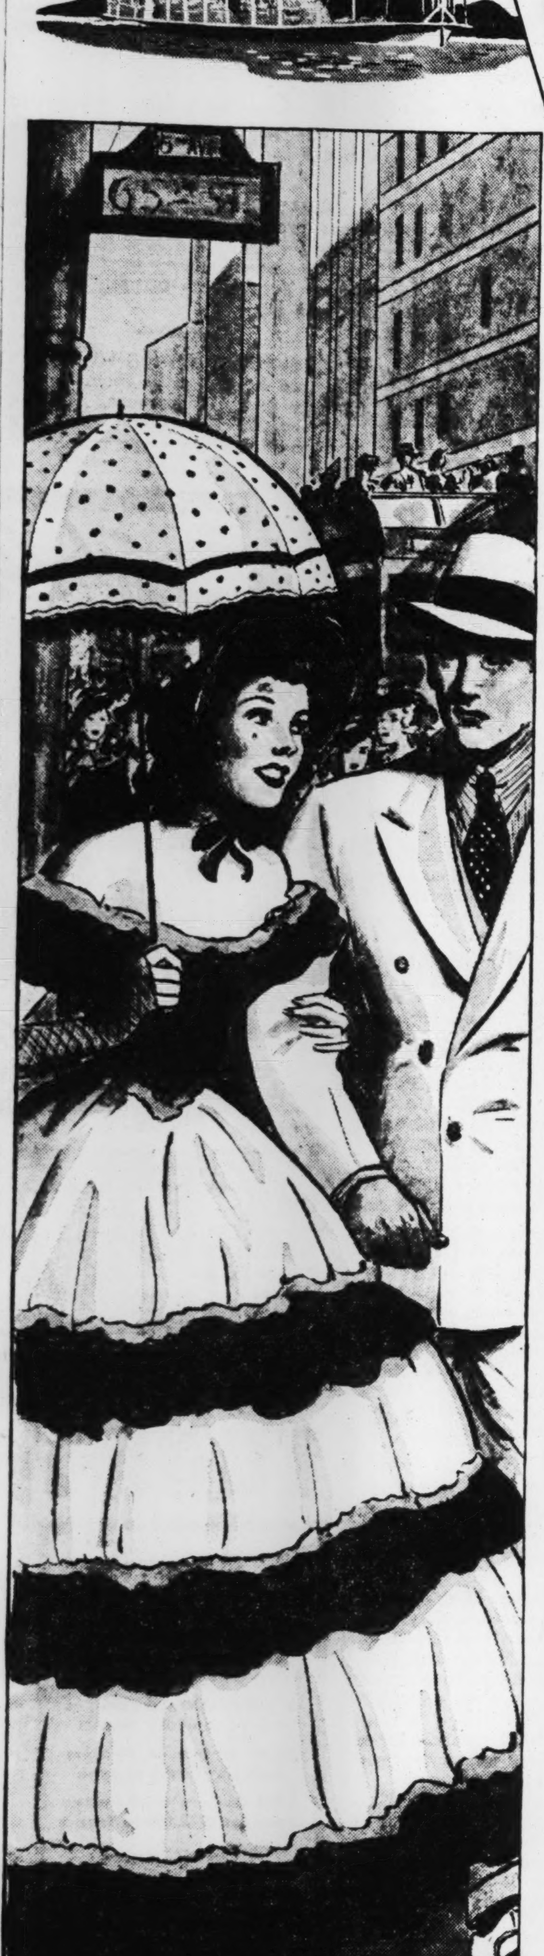
STUART
HAMILTON

By George Jean Nathan



SHE DRAWLINGLY INQUIRES IF HE AIN'T THE HANDSOME COUSIN OF LUCY MAY CULPEPPER.

NEW YORK, along with any number of our other Northern cities, is currently suffering from a bad case of Scarlett fever. The symptoms are unmistakable. They take the form of a rash of suddenly adopted Southern accents, one of them recognizable to a man who has ever drunk so much as a single mint julep, a couple of artificial gardenias (masquerading as magnolias) in the hair, and the kind of white summery flowered-print dresses seen in Dixie only on Northern stenographers who have gone down there on their vacations.

The enormous popularity of the O'Hara hussy in "Gone With the Wind," is unquestionably the bacillus immediately responsible for the present conversion of Northern girls into funnels for the projection of indiscriminate "you-alls," "honey-chiles," "Virginias" and "South Carolinas" with no r's in them, coyly dropped handkerchiefs, demands for fried chicken and waffles three times daily, and other such affectations. Nevertheless, the phenomenon has been of gradual growth. Before Margaret Mitchell's heroine captured the imitative inclinations of the female proletariat and even before Hollywood's Mr. Selznick persuaded every other girl this side of the Arctic regions that she stood an excellent chance of getting the role in the film version if only she could train herself to wear a crinoline skirt without looking too much like a Zeppelin upside down—before these final influences capped the situation the road was paved by a plethora of Southern novels, Tin Pan Alley speculations on the truth of what people said about Dixie, operettas, plays and movies about romantic Mississippi show boats and old pre-Civil War Southern manor houses full of 1937-model Steinway grand pianos and Loew colored tap dancers, and $1.98 wide-brimmed, floppy straw hats with ten cents worth of daisies and bluebells on them.

The weakest part of these performances, however, isn't the accent, which generally sounds like Miriam Hopkins or one of the Pickens Sisters playing the role of Mama Cohen in "Abie's Irish Rose" (with slight overtones of Stepin Fetchit), nor is it the costume, which in turn looks like what an inebriated husband conciliatingly fetches home from the florist's. It is what we may call the amorous approach.

For some inscrutable reason, the moment a Northern girl conceives of herself as a Southern belle she enters into a routine of promiscuous love monkeyshines that no real Southern girl, in or out of a lunatic asylum, would think of employing against even Jefferson Davis' or Gen. Lee's richest and most eligible grandson. To the Northern girl's mind, apparently, it is the invariable custom of all Southern girls, immediately they encounter anyone in trousers, whether young or old, to sidle up close to him with an air of strained-violet modesty, lay gently hold of his hand, drop a head softly upon his shoulder, sigh, and drawlingly inquire of him if he ain't the handsome cousin of Lucy May Culpepper of Richmond who roomed with their brother Beauregard at the University of Gawgia. The Northern girl, accordingly, pursues the strange technique forthwith, thoroughly confident that what is good enough for 30,000,000 Confederate boys can't fail to captivate and overwhelm even the vice-president of a Newark exterminator company. After experiencing several such Northern conceptions of Southern amorous technique the average man born this side of the Mason-Dixon line feels much as if he had suffered a body massage with wet gravel.

Only three best-seller novels over a span of 30 or more years have previously exercised the influence upon the female imagination that "Gone With the Wind" has. One was George Du Maurier's "Trilby"; the second was Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks"; and the third was Ethel M. Dell's "The Sheik." "Trilby" persuaded the girls to change the style of their coiffures (who of us older boys doesn't remember the sudden spectacle of women with their side hair hanging down flat over their necks?) cauesd them to rush out and buy broad-striped skirts, and raised the rent on side-street attics. It was a rare house with a young daughter in the family that in those days didn't have its attic divested of trunks and didn't see the introduction of an easel.

The Glyn epic brought in its wake such a demand for tiger-skins on the part of the girls that the Ringling brothers were said at the time to be seriously considering converting their jungle cats into parlor rugs by way of cashing in handsomely on the fad. Mrs. Glyn also succeeded in getting nine-tenths of the girls to go in for long green earrings, slinky dresses and makeup suggestive of a slow convalescence from prolonged immersion in a flour barrel, the tout ensemble accompanied by strange guttural noises theoretically suggestive of the passionate longings of an exotic and mysterious Russian princess.

—o-o—

THE influence of "The Sheik" was largely psychic and emotional. It didn't have any effect on girls' wardrobes or outward conduct, but—perhaps more than any popular novel of recent times—it got to them, as the phrase is, where they lived. Almost overnight they began superciliously to appraise their husbands and their boy-friends and to sniff their contempt. Or if not quite their contempt, certainly their dubiety. Their dreams promptly envisaged magnificent and ruthless desert lovers, dark of countenance and dressed up like tempest-tossed cozy corners. Their desires, wandering afield, centered upon the starlit sands of the Saraha and upon passion under the desert moon. And while they continued dutifully to go about their daily household chores there could be no mistaking their vast inner urge to be seized up on a dashing charger under the Egyptian night skies by some devilish brunet and to be carried like the wind, past the Sphinx and the Pyramids, to some good old-fashioned, knock-'em-down-and-drag-'em-in un-American love.

Today it is Margaret Mitchell's and Scharlett O'Hara's turn. All we poor men can hope is that some day it may, please God, again be Mrs. Rorer's.

PLEASE DON'T 'SETTLE DOWN'

By Marjorie Hillis

THERE are, of course, two kinds of older people in the world. One kind has grown so wise and charming with the years that everyone likes to see as much of them as possible, while seeing the other is distinctly a duty. And the chief underlying difference, it seems to me, is that the first group changes its point of view to suit the times, and the other "sets," like jelly, at some point in its career. After that, everything about the world that is different, is wrong.

We all know the ladies of 70-odd whose opinions must have crystallized when they were about 60 and who still have the manners and morals, not to mention the styles, of the period. They are the ones who are in a continual dither, wondering what in the world every one and everything is coming to. They disapprove of current life, laws, literature, fashions and their own grandchildren, who see as little of them as possible. For no one is amused very long by being disapproved of, and the fact that these inflexible ladies are occasionally right doesn't help in the least. The world goes right on changing in spite of them, and fortunately, it changes for the better in at least a good many respects.

My words won't have the slightest effect on the die-hard school—who must thoroughly disapprove of me too by now. But there's just a chance that I might have some effect on some of my own generation, who can still keep their minds, like their muscles, flexible through plenty of exercise. If they will look around at the most attractive older people they know, they will find them the most attractive people of any age they know. They will also find that they have adapted themselves to the age in which they live, keeping up with its advancements, studying its problems sympathetically, and viewing its defects with tolerance.

—o-o—

I HEARD THE OTHER DAY of just such a woman who lives in the South, and is about 80. Recently a petition in regard to some civic improvement was circulated in her town, but her children and grandchildren thought they wouldn't ask her to sign it, as it was so progressive that it might upset her. It seems that they hadn't been informed that it was Grandmother who got the petition up! The granddaughter who told me the story was just starting South to spend her vacation with the old lady and had written ahead to ask what she could bring from New York as a present. But she found that she couldn't bring anything. If Grandmother was going to have a present, she wanted a permanent wave.

ONE OF THE MOST pleasant discoveries about life is that it keeps on being exciting as one gets older. When I was growing up, I got the impression that I'd better make the most of everything before it lost its freshness. Once I got to be, say 30, I thought I'd be blase and nothing I did would be much fun.

But I find that one does different things in every phase and stage of one's life, and each is as much, if not more of an adventure than the things one did at 18. I don't think I'm an exception in this respect. The people who don't agree are the exceptions. They are the ones who keep on doing the same thing over and over in the same way. And this is really too bad—not just because the things cease to be fun, but also because the people in question miss so many other things.

Please don't "settle down."

Mexican Wares Gain Popularity

THE cactus, the sombrero and the burro have assumed new artistic values now that a fad for Mexican crafts is sweeping the country. Gourds, peppers and colorful baskets, likewise, are important in the mode.

These Mexican wares are especially popular during the summer season when outdoor dining is so prevalent and informal entertaining gets new impetus. What to do with all of the bright pottery and glassware as well as those big picnic hampers once the summer season has passed need not be a problem, either, because all of them will find becoming quarters in the basement playroom or rathskeller.

Hammered silver and other metals have been added to the Mexican collections and look much older than they are. Cups, mugs, pitchers and vases are featured most extensively and most of these have been made by hand.

How Curiosity Of Clergyman Aided Medicine

His Work Is Foundation for Present Knowledge of Blood Pressure.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

TODAY FROM London I drove out to a little suburb called Teddington. Here was a little parish church of which the Rev. Stephen Hales was curate during the eighteenth century.

The Rev. Stephen Hales was a curious kind of clergyman. He was more interested in making scientific experiments than in spiritual matters. In particular, his curiosity was aroused by the movements of the juices in the bodies of plants and animals. What made the sap rise in the spring and how much pressure was it under? What about the blood coursing through the body—how much pressure is it under? He made some experiments to determine this, and these are the foundation for our present knowledge of the subject of blood pressure.

The little church of Teddington sits sedately in the center of a busy district on the outskirts of London. In Hales' time it was far out in the countryside. Not far away was Twickenham, the home of Alexander Pope, the poet. From his country seat at Twickenham he wrote those verses which satirized and stung his great contemporaries. Pope probably never heard of modest little Dr. Hales, but the work of the latter was of more importance than that of the misshapen little cynic.

—o-o—

FOR MANY YEARS the church of Teddington fell into a state of decay. Then a minister was appointed, who, with a great energy, set about restoring it. In the vestibule they found an old neglected gravestone. With difficulty they deciphered the inscription. When they did, it read:

"Here is inter'd the Body of Stephen Hales, D. D., Clerk of the Closet to the Princess of Wales, who was minister of this Parish 51 years. He died the 4th of January, 1761, in the 84th year of his age."

The subject of blood pressure has made notable strides since the days of Stephen Hales. For a while the dangers of high blood pressure were overemphasized. Now a more sensible view is held about such things. High blood pressure in itself is simply part of the ageing process of the body and causes no symptoms. Many unpleasant feelings are ascribed to blood pressure which have nothing to do with it. Simply because one has high blood pressure, it is not necessarily the cause of unhappy bodily sensations, as is illustrated by an anecdote told me the other day by a London specialist.

—o-o—

"I SAW A COUNTRYWOMAN of yours the other day," he said, "she came to see how her blood pressure was. And to cry on my shoulder. She had been told she had high blood pressure and she was feeling very sad. She came over for the Coronation and it had rained every day she had been in London and she wanted to see her son in America. I said to her, 'Madam, it isn't blood pressure that is your trouble. It's homesickness. You take the next boat home and that will cure you.' I didn't even measure her blood pressure."

Stuffed Artichokes

Six French artichokes.
One clove garlic.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One cup fine soft bread crumbs.
One-half cup grated cheese.
Two tablespoons olive oil.
One-eighth teaspoon paprika.

Wash and remove the tough outside leaves of the artichokes. Cook them until tender, then drain and press the leaves loose from the heart, so that they will stand apart, but do not break them off. Meanwhile, blend the salt, paprika, grated garlic and oil. Also combine the bread crumbs and grated cheese. Stuff between the artichokes leaves with this cheese mixture and pour the oil mixture over all. Bake in a moderate oven for 15 minutes. Serves six.

Raffia Holders

Coasters are being regarded with less favor now that there are so many interesting raffia holders for beverage glasses. Closely woven cups of natural shade are among the most popular because they are of very sturdy structure. Decorated types introduce flower and fruit motifs and give colorful variety to a tray of glasses. Besides protecting the hands from the extreme cold of icy drinks these raffia holders eliminate dripping.

Baked Bean Sandwich

Prepare a well-seasoned white sauce and add baked beans and grated cheese. (Use commercially baked beans.) Heat this mixture until the cheese melts. Serve on slices of toast. Serve with bacon and sliced tomatoes with French dressing.

NON-CREASING FABRICS FOR VACATION TRAVELERS

SUMMER vacationists are learning that the problem of travel clothes has been simplified with non-creasing fabrics, air-cooled trains and swift modes of reaching a destination. The question to be decided is not how many clothes to take but how many costumes can be eliminated.

First choice for travel this summer is a dark shirtwaist frock, either printed or plain and matched by its own little cape or jacket. Many women prefer sheer prints and choose a black and white alliance although a brown and white combination has become more popular as the season has advanced. Conventional designs not only look well for continuous wear but are appropriate for restaurant dining as well as for train, plane or car. The redingote style of coat is especially attractive and satisfactory when it matches a print or repeats the dominant tone.

SHANTUNGS and similar materials are being used extensively this summer for travel suits and dresses as are the alpacas and cotton challis fabrics. One smartly dressed traveler arriving in St. Louis from a cross-country trip by train looked exceedingly cool in a shirtwaist frock of black shantung employing white stitching as its only trimming. Her brimmed hat was of the same stitched material and over her arm she carried a trim shantung jacket. She said that she had a duplicate of this dress and planned to wear the two alternately on a month's sightseeing tour. Knitted things for sports needs, a fleecy topcoat and a lace evening ensemble made up the bulk of her travel wardrobe.

Devotees of the suit for traveling are choosing this summer the feminine versions of the men's summer suitings, available of dark as well as light colors. Printed blouses and vestees of sheer cottons and linens accompany most of these suits while a net blouse is included for dressier occasions. Gray and black are the favorite suit colors, the light shade being preferred by many who wear it with black accessories.

Now that modes of travel have been modernized and one often is more comfortable on a train or plane than at home, there is no need of purchasing special travel clothes which stand abuse. About the only way that a fair traveler can get a taste of dirt or soot on the 1937 trains is to haunt the observation car and even there she finds too many conveniences to cause much havoc to a good frock or suit.

—o-o—

THE FIRST ESSENTIAL of a successful travel wardrobe seems to be in the choice of a color scheme. Everyone travels light these days so two sets of accessories should be sufficient for all daytime needs unless the trip develops into a world-wide expedition. If black is the choice, then black footwear and hats should be worn throughout most of the trip. If brown or blue should be preferred, the wise traveler abides by the choice and doesn't deviate to the extent of including an ensemble of a different color.

Fabrics such as have been mentioned here because they do not crush easily, a collapsible hat and a brimmed one, shoes that are built for comfort as well as style, easily laundered lingerie, a casual topcoat for cold weather, toilet articles compactly packed and bags that are light of weight all contribute toward a successful vacation.

Flower Bracelets

ARTIFICIAL flowers — and real ones, too—are as likely to adorn a wrist as they are a head or a dress. The shops are featuring bracelets which are made of colorful posies, some of fabric, some of metal and others of glass. Usually they stick to one type and color but there's no rule against mixing your shades and your petals.

For those who would be especially swanky a new gadget has been introduced to hold fresh flowers in bracelet formation. It works on the same principle as the little vases to keep flower headdresses and corsages from acquiring that second-day look. One of these bracelets consists of glass loops which are filled with water before flower stems are inserted.

Girls' Beauty Is Marred by Bulky Ankles

ANKLES of slenderest mold and feet as dainty as Cinderella's! That's what every girl is after. She'd give her eye teeth for them. When the human trotters are large there is nothing to be done. To have shoes too full of feet is to be one large perambulating pain. But something can be done about bulky ankles. The condition is seldom due to the formation of the bones, which are usually in proportion to the rest of the frame. There are other reasons.

Spiked heels and badly fitted shoes weaken the ankles. There is a relaxation of tissues that should be strong, a warping of the leg muscles that should be elastic. All because the heel is lifted too high and the foothold is not steady.

All these troubles lead to ankles that are formless. The trim inward slant between the calf of the leg and the foot disappears. Adipose tissues accumulate.

—o-o—

IF YOU WOULD have neat ankles, pay heed to body balance. Stand straight, walk briskly, don't amble or take quick, jerky steps. Don't get into the habit of standing with the weight of the body on one foot. You will not only have ankles out of form, but you'll have one hip and one shoulder out of alignment. Might as well keep the old head working along these lines. Most of our beauty griefs are self-inflicted. Be wise and avoid them.

When enlargement of the ankles is caused by fat or by tissues that have lost tone, massage is helpful. Smooth up and down, front and back, with flattened palms that have been anointed with cocoanut oil. Make a bracelet of the hand, go skipping up and down between ankle and knee. Good for fatted calves and skinny shanks because it is a normalizing movement.

—o-o—

LIFT ON THE TOES slowly, come down slowly. A good exercise to keep the feet well and strong. Be barefoot or wear heelless slippers when doing it.

Swollen ankles are sometimes due to internal disturbances. Bandage them, keep the feet elevated, as much as possible. If the swelling does not disappear in a few days, see a physician.

JUST THE TYPE

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD, July 10.

THE easiest rut for an actor to fall into is that of perennial officer of the law. Once a policeman, always a cop—unless the actor's lucky.

They tell it on Robert Emmett O'Connor, so often seen as the detective, that his big chance to break with the role was nixed by an executive who saw the tests. O'Connor was trying for a priestly part.

"Every time he talked to the condemned man in the cell," the executive said, "I expected him to whip out the handcuffs from under his cassock."

O'Connor doubtless has played other characters, but he's typed in my mind, too. Offhand, I can't think of a single film in which he hasn't had the bracelets ready. That's how movie-typing works on casting directors.

E. E. Clive, who has contributed bright moments to some 30 films, almost fell into the copper's mold. His first picture, "The Invisible Man," had him in policeman's uniform for the first time in his long stage career, but he was a cop in five films after that. The old Judge in "A Tale of Two Cities" started him on a variety of cinematic costumes. Now they "see" him in practically any character role, which is how a real actor should be seen.

—o-o—

THE POLICEMAN'S ROLE in "Dead End" is played by James Burke, but Burke is counting on it to step up his career rather than settle it. "I'm in the picture even before it starts," he grins. (You'll see him strolling down the dead-end street before the title flashes on the screen.)

Right up with the law as a typing agency ranks the butler role. First screen butler I remember was Sidney Bracy (in that early serial "The Million Dollar Mystery") and he's buttled in countless films since, right up to the present. Edgar Norton varies buttling with the role of prime minister or foreign diplomat, and is acceptable in a variety of parts, but somehow he still represents the polished essence of screen buttling.

Eric Blore's buttling debut in "The Gay Divorcee" naturally called for encores, but he's been just as funny in the rare non-serving roles he has had. He, at least, ought to make the casters think twice.

—o-o—

Mary Boland, screen-typed in comedy after a varied career on the stage, is convinced there is no hope for her to do anything else in pictures. Miss Boland made one dramatic picture, "A Son Comes Home," after long pleading for the opportunity. She's been told the public doesn't want her in drama. It wants to laugh.

But she is bearing up under the sentence. At least she has sold the house she first bought out here and is planning to build another. Says she wouldn't live anywhere else but California.

After watching her do a scene or two, very funny, I couldn't agree with her that typing was too bad. If she wants to emote and be sad she ought to take another name for the occasion—and save Mary Boland for the comedy roles. Then the laugh-hunting fans would never be disappointed.

—o-o—

IF THERE'S any better way to find out about an up-and-coming star than this, I don't know it: Simply arrange a reunion for him with a lady who knew him when—and sit in on the meeting.

Mrs. Florence Evans, a charming white-haired visitor from Cincinnati, mentioned that a former voice pupil of hers named Miller Everson was in Hollywood. That had me stumped for a moment, but you learn to translate fairly rapidly out here, and I gave her John King, the tall and handsome lad of "The Road Back."

There were affectionate greetings and embraces, and a good time was had by all.

—o-o—

"You were a lazy thing, Miller," said Mrs. E., fondly. "How I used to scold you! You couldn't read a note and you didn't seem to care. But you were sweet, Miller, really you were!"

Miller, or John King, owned up to the charge, blushed at the tribute. He does not look delicate now—he's trying to raise his 187 pounds to 190, the better to cover his stalwart 6 feet 3 frame.

—o-o—

"REMEMBER, I thought you were so bad I forbade you to try for that Atwater Kent audition—and you tried anyway. Bless you!"

Then to me: "I didn't even go to the audition. So I was surprised when Miller telephoned and said to come right over. I went, and was amazed to receive congratulations. 'Congratulations? What for?' I asked. Miller had won!"

Miller Everson came to Hollywood with Ben Bernie's orchestra.

He had a tough time impressing Bernie in the first place. After meeting the old maestro in Cincinnati, the boy followed him to New York.

"Remember me, Mr. Bernie?" he asked. Bernie said. "No." But Miller kept trying, and when Bernie came again to Cincinnati he did remember—and took him on.

In Hollywood he has played in two serials, in "Three Smart Girls," and in "The Road Back."

Fleecy Fabrics Gain Popularity For Topcoats

Vogue Is Also for Straight Lines and Long-Haired Fur Trimmings.

TOPCOATS which are practical for summer travel and will continue on duty throughout the autumn indicate the vogue of fleecy fabrics, straight lines and long-haired fur trimmings. Practically all are dress length, although a few youthful toppers of finger-tip length are included.

St. Louis shops featuring these between-season coats to please vacationists who are going to cooler climes for the remainder of July and August stress natural colorings and materials which withstand rough treatment. Beige is the most satisfactory shade, although it varies in hue from a golden tan to a stone shade. The shaggy surfaced fleece woolens are especially attractive in the beige tones and are shown also of navy blue in more youthful models.

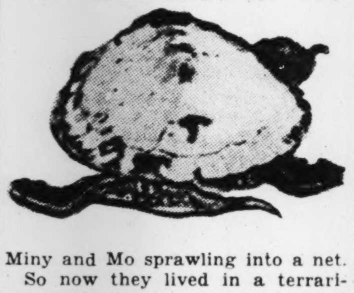
Hints of the coat silhouette for autumn are obtained from a view of these sports coats which are forerunners of the coming season. Instead of a decidedly swagger line, many of the coats are straight and may be worn with or without a belt. The addition of a belt gives them a fitted emphasis which is typical of many of the dressier coats for autumn and winter. There also is a tendency to stress a lower waistline which is apparent from the lower manipulation of back fullness and from pleats which are released below the normal waistline.

TURTLES MAKE FINE PETS

By Peggy von der Goltz

EENY, Meeny, Miny and Mo sat on a rock and looked at the world. It was a world of wicker and chintz, of laughter and tinkling glasses, a world that few turtles ever know. But Eeny, Meeny, Miny and Mo took it in their stride.

They had known very little of the turtle pond, just the first strange moment of being alive after their horned snouts had punctured the leathery eggshells, and the brief race to the water, the plunge through the green algae scum, and, after a warm happy swim, the rest on the old, moss covered log. Then the log had tipped, spilling a dozen turtles into the water, sending Eeny, Meeny, Miny and Mo sprawling into a net.



So now they lived in a terrarium, and ate ant eggs and dried flies and strips of raw beef instead of bugs and little fishes; and they sunned themselves on a rock that was scrubbed clean every week instead of the lovely slimy log that had been their raft in the turtle pond. But they had the sun on their backs, and water in which to swim and eat, and food to fill their bellies which is about all that baby turtles need. And if they should be dumped back in the pond at the end of summer Eeny, Meeny, Miny and Mo would be able to find food for themselves, and would have a good chance to survive the winter buried in the bottom ooze.

As soon as the family goes to the country in the summer pets begin to appear. There is the inevitable kitten, hungry and forlorn, that can't be turned away; and the farmer's pup that can be bought for a few dollars; and the slightly damaged starling or sparrow that someone finds on the lawn. And then there are turtles—no summer is complete unless a turtle is found in the garden or crossing the road on a rainy day, or is deliberately captured in the turtle pond.

The kittens, the puppies, even the birds, are easy to take in; but they will become serious responsibilities when the summer ends. No one with an atom of decency will turn a dog or a cat out to starve—and abandoned dogs and cats do starve. Even the birds who have learned to depend on you for food and shelter will die, because they have lost their fear of people and animals, and for that reason quickly become prey. But turtles are ideal summer pets if they are given proper care.

If at the end of summer you find that you do not like your turtles well enough to keep them during the winter, do try to release them in the pond where they were caught. And do it well in advance of cold weather so they will have a chance to adjust themselves before the winter comes.

The wild turtles you find for yourself during the summer are, to my mind, more satisfactory pets than the baby turtles sold in pet shops. Practically all of the baby turtles offered for sale are Southern species, and therefore less hardy than our Northern turtles. Also they have traveled a long distance without food, water or light. Adult turtles can fast for a long time without injury, but baby turtles need to be fed often—they were meant to get in a full summer's eating before the first hibernation. Many of the men who ship baby turtles to pet shops save themselves bother by gathering turtle eggs and shipping the babies as soon as they hatch, while the wild turtles have at least learned to eat before they are captured.

Many of the baby turtles shipped from the South are prettily marked. The commonest as well as the most attractive species are the familiar geographic turtle, Lesueur's terrapin, the Cumberland and the yellow-bellied terrapin. But a baby painted turtle, purplish black on the back with the shields outlined in yellow, and a gorgeous band of crimson splotches and streaks all around the upper and lower edges of the carapace, his dark head daubed with yellow above and striped below is a mighty pretty creature. And a young spotted pond turtle, his black shell decorated with round yellow spots, his head dotted orange, and his legs salmon pink is even prettier.

Once in a while some conscienceless scoundrel offers turtles for sale whose shells have been enameled and decorated with roses or daisies or some sweet sentiment such as greetings or souvenir of Texas. Besides being ugly and vulgar, the paint makes the turtle's shell rigid, shuts out the light, and restricts the shell so that it cannot grow as and if the turtle grows. Enameled turtles rarely live more than a few weeks.

All of the turtles that are kept as pets are mainly carnivorous, and for that reason are not nice companions for innocent little fishes.

A large terrarium is the proper home for turtles. It should be as large as possible. The wretched little containers that used to be sold as goldfish bowls are no more suitable for turtles than they are for fish. A "turtlarium" if it is round should be at least a foot in diameter and six inches deep; if rectangular it should be at least a foot long and not less than eight inches wide. It is necessary to have the turtle tank six inches deep or more because turtles are remarkably clever at escaping. If they can't get out any other way they will climb one on top of the other until the top turtle can scramble over the edge.

The turtle tank may be made of glass, pottery, or metal; but if metal is used for any part of the tank, the metal parts must be painted with black asphaltum to prevent corrosion or a change in the chemical composition of the water.

The turtle's home must contain both land and water. Most turtles feed under water, and many of them are unable to swallow unless their heads are entirely submerged. If you are in doubt about the habits of your turtles it is always safe to assume that they eat under water. Aquatic turtles will often accept food on land, but they must find water before they can swallow it.

The water in the turtle tank should be deep enough to allow the animals to swim. About twice the length of the largest turtle's shell seems to be a good water depth, though deeper water is even better, so long as the turtles can reach the surface for air.

Even though they eat under water, turtles can breathe only atmospheric air. And they will eventually die of exhaustion unless they are able to climb entirely out of water occasionally to rest and sun themselves.

A sloping beach made of sand and rocks, a spot that will project out of the water, or a raft made of wood or cork but large enough that the turtles' weight will not tip it must be provided for the turtles. Shells should not be used as some of the lime will be dissolved in the water, making it too alkaline. Artificially colored shells, pebbles or any other ornaments are just plain poison.

The custom of keeping turtles in a tank that contains a layer of pebbles about an inch deep, covered by about an inch of water is thoroughly unsatisfactory. The turtles are not able to submerge themselves entirely, nor are they able to climb completely out of the water. Also the temperature of the water changes very quickly when it is shallow. Turtles like to stay in water when it is chilly, and to clamber out onto the land when the water is colder than the air.

Turtles are not brilliant pets, though I once knew a turtle who was so smart I don't dare tell about her. But turtles are easily cared for and they have the great advantage of living on and on and on.

Should Youths Help Mothers In the Home?

"Yes; Give Each His Share in Routine Work of Household."

By Angelo Patri

IN a household where there are three boys, a mother who does the housework—all of it—and a father who works every day except Sunday, should the boys help their mother with the housework?

"You see," says the mother, "I do get tired and would like to have a hand now and then from the boys, but they say it is girls' work, and their father says to too."

There is no sex in the cookstove, nor in the dishpan, nor anywhere else in the work to make and keep a home clean and comfortable for a family of five. Just cooking three meals a day for them is a good-sized job. But that is only an incident. There is the marketing, the house-cleaning, bed-making, dish-washing, laundry work, mending, and the countless errands that must be done. This work is done to make the family comfortable; and why any member of it should get the notion that any of it is beneath his dignity to perform but quite fit for mother to do, is beyond find-out out.

—o-o—

A FAMILY is a partnership or it is no family. If the members of the group do not share in all that goes on in the home, each one seeking his own comfort and his own ends, the family disappears and there is only a collection of individuals who are imposing themselves upon one overburdened woman. The thought of such a thing ought to make any son and any father rear on his hind legs, and get to work with the duster and the dishrag forthwith.

A boy can learn to do housework as well as a girl, often better. There is no great trick about it. He can turn a faucet and soap a dishrag and douse the dishes just as smartly as any girl can. And he can have the added pleasure of knowing that he isn't spoiling a lovely polish on his nails.

Boys can cook as well as girls. I know some who can do better than their sisters. Men have been cooks for centuries, and good cooks, too. There is a lot of fun to be gotten out of cooking a dinner if you don't go to the job with burning feet and aching heart, as many a mother has to do. Certainly, let the boys have their chance.

—o-o—

MOTHERS are more often the objectors than the boys.

"Oh, they get in the way. I'd rather do it myself and be done with it."

That isn't the idea. Begin when the children are old enough to hang up a washrag and let them feel they did a big thing when they succeeded in getting it to stay on the rack. From there on, give each his turn, each his share in the routine work in the household from sweeping the cellar to serving the dinner they have cooked.

This is not only for the fine training and education the children get out of the experiences, it is for the unity it builds into the family group. Children love the people they serve, love the home they work for.

Film Players Long to Meet Fellow Artists

Only Chance in Busy Hollywood Comes on Studio Sets.

By H. H. Niemeyer

HOLLYWOOD, July 10.

STOP us if you've heard this one. For the past four or five years, about the middle of each July when it is hot and stuffy around the studios and there is nothing much to write about, we have felt inspired to take our typewriter in hand and grind out a story about the visitors from back home—the friend of a friend who comes out here with a letter of introduction and a very burning desire to see the wheels go 'round in a studio and meet a few stars. But if you have read this far, you might as well go on, for there is a new twist to the annual yarn which is mildly interesting and which happens to be strictly true. That is something which cannot be said of everything from the studios.

Brushing aside, then, the fact that visitors just can't get into the film lots, allow us to remark that Hollywood is already full, not of visitors, but of honest-to-goodness screen actors who would like, very much, to meet some of their fellow, in a manner of speaking, players. We remember seeing a cartoon showing a director introducing his leading man to his leading lady just before the pair got into a big double bed to be photographed.

The picture was funny but it seemed to us, at the time, rather far fetched. But it has happened just like that.

Now Hollywood is generally looked upon as a place where everyone knows everybody else; where Ronald Colman, walking along the boulevard on a pleasant evening, stops to chat with Marlene Dietrich and is interrupted by Gertrude Niesen, who expects to meet Freddie Bartholomew at the sandwich shop on the corner. That hasn't happened. To begin with, despite publicity reports to the contrary about stars taking long walks for the exercise while completely disguised by a pair of dark glasses, none of the stars walks, anywhere. They ride. And we doubt if Mr. Colman ever met Miss Dietrich or if Miss Niesen ever saw Master Freddie even in a picture. No, everybody in Hollywood doesn't know everybody else, any more than they do in St. Louis.

Even the topnotch stars are not necessarily acquainted and often have to be introduced at the start of a picture in which both have been cast. The younger players, with only a year or two in Hollywood, have a very limited list of friends among the other players outside of their own particular little set.

A young actor is likely to be less fortunate in this respect than the average visitor from back home who can, and usually does, speak to every "star" he happens to encounter and who is invariably spoken to, in return, by the celebrity.

We remember a press agent in Hollywood a few years ago who, when down on his luck, could usually make lunch money by betting two bits that Harold Lloyd or Doug Fairbanks would speak to him when he passed on the boulevard.

It was pretty easy picking, then.

IMPORTANT persons in pictures walked Hollywood boulevard in those days and the press agent knew that even the most important star dared not offend a potential booster by refusing to speak when spoken to. But a player who would go to such lengths to be recognized would soon be told the error of his ways. And players — important players—don't walk Hollywood boulevard very often any more. One might wait on a corner for half a day and never get a chance to speak to a first line star.

It is not surprising to learn, then, that Beverly Roberts, a young player with several leading roles to her credit, an option that has been taken up and a first line director for a "boy friend," would like, some day, to meet Rosalind Russell, whom she considers the most intelligent actress she has seen on the screen.

Beverly would also like to meet Clark Gable, not so much because of his screen work, but because she saw him one day, during the filming of "Cain and Mabel," playing leap frog with several unimportant players near the studio commissary. She would also like to meet Tyrone Power—professionally. She would like to work with that young man in a picture.

Then there is Ann Sheridan, who ought never have any trouble meeting any young man she fancied meeting, but who has yet to be introduced to Errol Flynn—who is on her own lot, too—and who hopes soon to meet Gable and Claudette Colbert. The chances with Miss Colbert are considered good because she, along with Charles Boyer, have just started work for the company which holds Miss Sheridan's contract, in "Tovarich."

Film Players Long to Meet Fellow Artists

Only Chance in Busy Hollywood Comes on Studio Sets.

By H. H. Niemeyer

HOLLYWOOD, July 10.

STOP us if you've heard this one. For the past four or five years, about the middle of each July when it is hot and stuffy around the studios and there is nothing much to write about, we have felt inspired to take our typewriter in hand and grind out a story about the visitors from back home—the friend of a friend who comes out here with a letter of introduction and a very burning desire to see the wheels go 'round in a studio and meet a few stars. But if you have read this far, you might as well go on, for there is a new twist to the annual yarn which is mildly interesting and which happens to be strictly true. That is something which cannot be said of everything from the studios.

Brushing aside, then, the fact that visitors just can't get into the film lots, allow us to remark that Hollywood is already full, not of visitors, but of honest-to-goodness screen actors who would like, very much, to meet some of their fellow, in a manner of speaking, players. We remember seeing a cartoon showing a director introducing his leading man to his leading lady just before the pair got into a big double bed to be photographed.

The picture was funny but it seemed to us, at the time, rather far fetched. But it has happened just like that.

Now Hollywood is generally looked upon as a place where everyone knows everybody else; where Ronald Colman, walking along the boulevard on a pleasant evening, stops to chat with Marlene Dietrich and is interrupted by Gertrude Niesen, who expects to meet Freddie Bartholomew at the sandwich shop on the corner. That hasn't happened. To begin with, despite publicity reports to the contrary about stars taking long walks for the exercise while completely disguised by a pair of dark glasses, none of the stars walks, anywhere. They ride. And we doubt if Mr. Colman ever met Miss Dietrich or if Miss Niesen ever saw Master Freddie even in a picture. No, everybody in Hollywood doesn't know everybody else, any more than they do in St. Louis.

Even the topnotch stars are not necessarily acquainted and often have to be introduced at the start of a picture in which both have been cast. The younger players, with only a year or two in Hollywood, have a very limited list of friends among the other players outside of their own particular little set.

A young actor is likely to be less fortunate in this respect than the average visitor from back home who can, and usually does, speak to every "star" he happens to encounter and who is invariably spoken to, in return, by the celebrity.

We remember a press agent in Hollywood a few years ago who, when down on his luck, could usually make lunch money by betting two bits that Harold Lloyd or Doug Fairbanks would speak to him when he passed on the boulevard.

It was pretty easy picking, then.

IMPORTANT persons in pictures walked Hollywood boulevard in those days and the press agent knew that even the most important star dared not offend a potential booster by refusing to speak when spoken to. But a player who would go to such lengths to be recognized would soon be told the error of his ways. And players — important players—don't walk Hollywood boulevard very often any more. One might wait on a corner for half a day and never get a chance to speak to a first line star.

It is not surprising to learn, then, that Beverly Roberts, a young player with several leading roles to her credit, an option that has been taken up and a first line director for a "boy friend," would like, some day, to meet Rosalind Russell, whom she considers the most intelligent actress she has seen on the screen.

Beverly would also like to meet Clark Gable, not so much because of his screen work, but because she saw him one day, during the filming of "Cain and Mabel," playing leap frog with several unimportant players near the studio commissary. She would also like to meet Tyrone Power—professionally. She would like to work with that young man in a picture.

Then there is Ann Sheridan, who ought never have any trouble meeting any young man she fancied meeting, but who has yet to be introduced to Errol Flynn—who is on her own lot, too—and who hopes soon to meet Gable and Claudette Colbert. The chances with Miss Colbert are considered good because she, along with Charles Boyer, have just started work for the company which holds Miss Sheridan's contract, in "Tovarich."

Until recently Anne Nagel had never met Gordon Oliver, an ambitious young actor on her own lot. Gordon, a youngster himself, was very—even foolishly—eager to meet Anne too, once he heard about this. In his long struggle for recognition in Hollywood, Gordon has found romance—real, feigned or suggested—the most valuable publicity material he can get. Mutual friends arranged the introduction and Anne and Gordon are even now being "seen together" occasionally. Miss Nagel is also hopeful of meeting Myrna Loy—her favorite actress.

WAYNE MORRIS, skyrocketed toward stardom in one role as "Kid Galahad" and now trying to live up to that early promise with Pat O'Brien in "Submarine D-1," was a wow with the San Diego girls when the last named company was on location there, according to reports, but he would like to shine that captivating grin toward Loretta Young and Carole Lombard to see if it would fascinate them, too. Among the men players in Hollywood that Wayne hopes to meet are Ronald Colman and Clark Gable.

Odd how many players don't know Gable but want to!

Frank McHugh, who has been trouping around the stage and screen for many years, knows practically everybody except the one he would like most to know—Shirley Temple. Frank has children of his own and is fond of most youngsters. If he finally arranges an introduction to Shirley, he will take Peter and Susan and Michael along when he goes to claim it.

Olivia deHavilland has a secret yen to meet and talk with Ronald Colman, but she is being shushed, for no apparent reason, every time she explains it. She is fairly content just now, however, for she is playing opposite Brian Aherne in "The Great Garrick" and that is enough to keep any one young lady busy.

The Mauch twins, Bobby and Billy, get around a lot and in the few months they have been in Hollywood they have met many people but they would still like to come face to face with "Asta," the dog of "The Thin Man," and his mistress (in pictures) Myrna Loy.

Anita Louise would like to know Fernand Gravet but although he makes pictures on the same stages she does, they haven't been introduced. When Gravet comes back from Europe this fall, Anita hopes it will be different. Lana Turner, a newcomer, who will be seen first in "They Won't Forget," can hardly wait to set eyes on Rudy Vallee. Mary Maguire wants most of all to meet Boris Karloff, who used to frighten her half out of her wits when she was a kid in Australia.

So if you want to "meet" Clark Gable or Bob Taylor or Carole Lombard—as who doesn't—just speak to them IF you happen to see them in a restaurant or at Bing Crosby's new race track when you come out here this summer. You'll get a pleasant nod of something like recognition in return. But don't depend upon anyone actually to introduce you. Hollywood is not just one big happy family by a long shot. A lot of pretty well known actors don't know enough "important" players to make up a bridge game.

"Frederika" to St. Louis

With announcement that the Franz Lehar operetta, "Frederika," will play in St. Louis, either at the American Theater or Auditorium, next season is the setting of the first musical show for 1937-38. "Frederika," in which Dennis King and Helen Gleason appeared on Broadway, will open in Cleveland on Sept. 26, proceed to Chicago and then to St. Louis. Hassard Short has been engaged by the Shuberts to re-stage the show as it goes on tour. "Frederika" is based on the love story of the German poet-philosopher, Goethe.

Dick Powell Further Toward the Comic

By Colvin McPherson

FOR some time a large portion of the picture population of the country has been insisting that one Richard E. Powell of Mountain View, Ark., is no Nelson Eddy of light opera caliber and no Leslie Howard of Shakespearean measure, but a nice, honest-faced young comedian with a good crooner's voice.

"Thanks a Million" was the first picture, however, to demonstrate that Dick Powell could do better as a clown than a Romeo. "On the Avenue" was further proof, for in it Powell almost stole the show from the Ritz Brothers. Now, in "The Singing Marine," at the Ambassador, the lad's home studio seems to have reached the already popular conclusion. For the first part of the picture—and the best part, ask anybody—Powell plays a bashful private from his own native heath of Mountain View, Ark. And he's good at it.

"The Singing Marine" doesn't have a well-knit set of circumstances to pass off as a plot, neither does it have a supporting cast of very great luster, except in one instance. But it is a diverting film for most of its lengths and ought to enjoy a more than fair popularity.

Amusement Calendar

ON THE STAGE

MUNICIPAL OPERA—"Salute to Spring," with Guy Robertson, Bernice Claire, John Sheehan, Helen Raymond and Olive Olsen, opens week's run tomorrow night (world premiere); final performance of "The Mikado" tonight.

ON THE SCREEN

AMBASSADOR — "The Singing Marine," starring Dick Powell with Doris Weston, Lee Dixon and Hugh Herbert; "Michael O'Halloran," with Wynne Gibson, Warren Hull and others.

FOX—Joe E. Brown in "Riding on Air," with Guy Kibbee, Florence Rice and Vinton Haworth; Gene Raymond and Ann Sothern in "There Goes My Girl."

LOEW'S—"Captains Courageous," starring Freddie Bartholomew, Spencer Tracy and Lionel Barrymore; Walt Disney's "Academy Award Review."

It starts in San Diego, that defense base which the heavens seem to have ordained in advance for Hollywood use. Dick plays a guitar but doesn't do so well with the women. Then he and a little cashier go to New York together to appear on an amateur hour. Dick begins to come out of it and after he has won the contest and a number of big contracts, he gets cocky and pleased with himself. At that point, the screen play writers get very weary and let things go anyway they will. From there on, it's Hugh Herbert's business to keep the show from dying of anemia.

To hear audience response this week, anyone would think Herbert was the screen's ace funmaker, topping the Marx Brothers, the Ritz Brothers and everybody else. One scene, in which he telephones his dowager sister for advice, and plays both parts himself, was so funny at sight that the howls of the first audience drowned out the dialogue completely.

"The Singing Marine" has several giant production numbers which permit the scheduling of Larry Adler, harmonica artist; Lee Dixon, dance star, and Doris Weston, new singer, but all these entertainments are merely fill-in. A neat satirical touch, unless I guess wrong, is added by having Marcia Ralston take the role of a movie star. Something in Miss Ralston's manner and appearance very strongly suggests a real movie star who was once married to Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and is now married to Franchot Tone.

For those who have plenty of time and nothing to do, the Ambassador has another feature, "Michael O'Halloran," from that author of pale pink fiction, Gene Stratton Porter. The film ought to disgust anybody, with its poor kids who are so sincere and honest and its rich people so dishonest and dissolute. And who drink. And dance.

Riding on Air

JOE E. BROWN tries all his old tricks in the Fox film of the week, but there isn't enough to the screen play to help him along. "Riding On Air" at no time has a scene as funny as some in "Alibi Ike," "Earthworm Tractors" or "Polo Joe." Even the youngsters, with whom Joe is a great favorite, are going to be disappointed, this time.

Joe goes into journalism, as managing editor, city editor, society editor and paper boy of the Claremont (Wis.) Chronicle. In time, he becomes correspondent of a Chicago paper and wins a $5000 radio contest. He and Vinton Haworth are rivals for the sweet smiles of Florence Rice, with Joe far in the lead, and Haworth represents another Chicago daily. To make it a busy season in Claremont, a young inventor arrives with a radio beam for guiding airplanes, a stock promoter traces the scent of Joe's $5000 and smugglers fly over every night. Mobs being the thing this year, there's a mob, too.

In the grand mixup, then, flyers, smugglers, big stories, fraud and danger. No lead is held long enough to make good laughing. Joe once excites some giggles over his bathroom inventions. Bathing, incidentally, is quite popular in pictures of the week. Powell takes a shower at the Ambassador, Brown a tub at the Fox, and Ann Sothern a shower, also at the Fox. Gene Raymond, who usually undresses, has taken on modesty since his last film and now goes in for phoney disguises.

Miss Sothern and Raymond are in the Fox's second feature, "There Goes My Girl." It is of no consequence. After all, reporters and brides who run away from the altar have been fairly common since "It Happened One Night." In this case, both Miss Sothern and Raymond are reporters, about to be married. To estrange them, the plot borrows heavily from "The Front Page" and the habits of its double-crossing editor. Murder stalks about but not about anybody we know, and Bradley Page, the snake, stops at nothing again and again.

Captains Courageous

UNANIMOUS is the conclusion that "Captains Courageous," now in its second week at Loew's, deserves a place among the finest pictures of this year and every year. And that Spencer Tracy and Freddie Bartholomew deserve some special award for their dual performance.

No quarrel will be made, either, that the picture does not keep exactly with Rudyard Kipling's novel. For the Kipling adventure, full of salty sea life as it was, developed no great amount of drama or dramatic unity. Taken literally, as the report of a beneficial vacation for a spoiled youngster, it would surely have made a very dull movie. "Captains Courageous," as adapted by John Lee Mahin, Marc Connelly and Dale Van Every, now has a sensitive character study against the background of a thrilling and sometimes cruel occupation in ships.

Models All Going to Hollywood, Artist Says

"It seems as if all the pretty girls in the country have gravitated either to New York or Hollywood—at least all the ones who have any experience modeling." So said Russell Patterson, noted illustrator, last week when asked why American artists seem to favor New York and the film colony as places of residence.

Patterson, who has turned actor long enough to portray himself in the new Jack Benny musical, "Artists and Models," also remarked: "If the present trend continues, I predict that inside a very few years all the first-class models of the country will be in Hollywood, which means that we artists will have to follow them. I was amazed when I first stepped on the 'Artists and Models' set, at how many of our best Manhattan models were appearing in the picture."

"Saratoga" Release July 23, at Loew's

"Saratoga," Jean Harlow's last picture which was almost completed at the time of her death on June 7, has been prepared for national release on July 23, and likely will open at Loew's Theater on that date. Only three important scenes, all involving long shots, had to be filmed and in these, Miss Harlow's stand-in, Mary Dees, took her place. Preview audiences in California last week said they were unable to tell where the substitution had been made. Against a background of racetrack life, "Saratoga" is the romantic story of the daughter of a wealthy horse owner and a bookmaker. Clark Gable played opposite Miss Harlow.

New Musical Gets Premiere At the Opera

'Salute to Spring' in Modern Mood and Singing Style.

A BRAND-NEW operetta, "Salute to Spring," by Frederick Loewe and Earle Crooker, will be offered in Forest Park for the week beginning tomorrow night. The show, one song of which, "A Waltz Was Born in Vienna," has already attained some success, will go on to Broadway next fall if it demonstrates here that it is the sort of thing Broadway would like.

Richard Berger, production manager of Municipal Opera, obtained the show last winter after one producer who wanted it became too ill to undertake its production, and another was forced to give it up because of an actors' strike. It will be the fifth show to have a "world premiere" in Forest Park, following in the line of "The Beggar Princess" in 1934, "Cyrano de Bergerac" in 1932, "Rip Van Winkle" and "Beau Brummel" in 1933.

The composer and librettist, both of whom are in their early thirties, have been in St. Louis for the past week, to aid Stage Director Zeke Colvan in rehearsals. Frederick Loewe, who wrote the music, is a young Viennese, son of the late Edmund Loewe, distinguished European actor, and Crooker, author of the book, is a nephew of Blanche Ring, who was in "Music in the Air" earlier in the season, and of the late screen actor, Thomas Meighan.

Loewe, who came to this country about 15 years ago as a concert pianist, has composed the European song hit, "Katrine," and various other successes. Crooker wrote book and lyrics for "Happy," for the second and third of the "Little Show" series, "Zeppelin" and "Thumbs Up," and has prepared special comedy material for Beatrice Lillie. The two collaborators have another operetta, "Great Lady," scheduled for Broadway production by Frank Crumit in September.

"Salute to Spring," in two acts and nine scenes, is devised to put music and romance in a modern setting, including New York's Washington Square as it is today, and a tourist camp, undoubted manifestation of the last decade. The handling of song numbers is to tie them in with background, situation and mood—a technique which received impetus from the musical scores of motion pictures—and to treat them as part of the action.

IN addition to "A Waltz Was Born in Vienna," the new show will introduce "Another Lovely April Day," "One Robin Doesn't Make a Spring," "Extraordinary," "It's a Very Charmiing Spot," "Time Off for Love," "Somehow, Somewhere, Someday," and "Love Is Love." All have been placed on sale in music stores already.

The story opens with an artists' street fair in Washington Square, moves to a tourist camp where a wealthy patroness plans to start an art colony, sees the patroness shorn of her financial resources and goes back to Greenwich Village. Involved in it are the fortunes of a young woman who is selling paintings for a living and doesn't know they are stolen and a commercial artist, who classifies himself as a "working poet" in order to be near and worship the young woman.

These roles are taken by Bernice Claire and Guy Robertson. The patroness will be played by Helen Raymond, Broadway character actress of "Very Good Eddie," "Twin Beds," "DuBarry," "It Happened Tomorrow," "Anything Goes" and other productions, making her first Forest Park appearance.

John Sheehan, comedian of the 1935 Municipal Opera, who has been away in Hollywood playing gangsters' henchmen, detectives and such, returns to do an artistic jack-of-all-trades. Olive Olsen is another of the comedy corps, with Ruth Urban as an Irish landlady, Lew Parker, Detmar Poppen, Annamary Dickey, Phil Porterfield and Gus Howard detailing man about town, sheriff, spinster, successful painter and bellboy. The dance team of Harris, Claire and Shannon, composed of two girls and a man, makes its debut in specialties.

Completely new costumes have been designed and tailored by a New York manufacturer, and Raymond Sovey has drafted original scenic backgrounds. Ballet Master Adolphus and Dance Director White have pooled their talents in working out special dance routines for the chorus of 24 girls.

After the run of "Salute to Spring," Municipal Opera will go back to one of its old favorites, "The Prince of Pilsen."

In "The Prince of Pilsen," to be thoroughly modernized, will be Wilbur Evans, Margaret Daum, John Sheehan, Eric Mattson, Fritzi Scheff, long-time favorite of light opera, Tommy Gavin, 12-year-old singer and Una Val Castle, dancer known as Una Val in previous seasons.

One performance of "The Mikado" remains, this evening.

Four Pianists on Little Symphony's Closing Program

FOUR young St. Louis women pianists will play the Vivaldi-Bach Concerto for Four Pianos and Strings at the season's final concert by the Little Symphony Orchestra, in the Washington University Quadrangle Friday night at 8:30 o'clock. The soloists, all of whom have made local public appearances in concerts, are Edith Gordon, Dora Minkin, Dorothy Dring and Josephine Pipkin.

The complete program is:

Brandenburg Concerto No. 2 — J. S. Bach
Allegro, Andante, Allegro Assai.
Concerto for Four Pianos and Strings— — — — — — Vivaldi-Bach
Allegro, Adagio, Allegro vivace.
Suit for Small Orchestra—Charles Naginski
(Dedicated to the St. Louis Little Symphony)
Symphony in C Major (Jupiter) —Mozart

The Brandenburg concerto is one of a series of six compositions, following the concerto grosso principle, which Bach wrote at the request of the Elector of Brandenburg. In each one a group of instruments, known as the concertino, alternates with the full ensemble in announcing and developing a theme. In this particular concerto a trumpet was used originally as one of the concertino, but owing to the fact that the trumpet of Bach's played much higher—and incidentally much more unpleasantly—than the trumpet of today, a high clarinet has been substituted for that part.

The Vivaldi-Bach concerto is one of the many evidences of the fact Bach was not only a prolific composer on his own, but occupied himself a great deal with other men's works. The original compositions by Vivaldi was written for four violins and supporting string orchestra. For reasons of his own Bach decided to try it out with keyboard instruments and for that purpose transposed it into the key of A minor. It was originally played by harpsichords, but though the necessary substitution of pianos changes the color somewhat, the design is made all the clearer.

The suite for small orchestra by Charles Naginski is one of the two compositions especially commissioned by the St. Louis Little Symphony through a fund donated by Mrs. C. Powell Fordyce, the other having been the Dance in Three-Time by Quincy Porter. Mr. Naginski, a young American composer, has had his compositions played by the Philadelphia orchestra.

The "Jupiter" symphony is one of the last three composed by Mozart and with the E flat and G minor is considered among his greatest works.

Radium Laboratory Reconstructed for Film

Preparing for one of the most unusual short subjects ever produced, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is reconstructing a scientific laboratory of 30 years ago. The picture is "Radium." The laboratory is an authentic reproduction of the Curie's laboratory in Paris, where radium was first discovered.

Photographs and descriptions of the laboratory furnished the material with which studio technicians have worked. Complete to the last detail, the laboratory will appear on the screen exactly as it was the day in 1900 when the Curies, with Prof. Becquerel, finished reducing 200 tons of ore to a single gram, one twenty-eighth of an ounce, of radium. That gram of salts represented two years of ceaseless toil.

"Radium" is a Pete Smith specialty, to be produced by Jack Chertok.

Muny Opera Stars on KSD At 1:30 Today

Guy Robertson, Bernice Claire and Others in Radio Version of "Salute to Spring."

GUY ROBERTSON, Bernice Claire, Olive Olsen, Earle McVeigh and Helen Raymond, all of the Municipal Opera, will be the principals in a special radio version of "Salute to Spring" that will be a feature this afternoon of a combination of Kathryn Turney Garten's regular Muny Opera preview and the Community Forum. The combined program, which KSD will broadcast from 1:30 to 2:55 o'clock, will also bring a preview by Mrs. Garten on the story of "Salute to Spring," which is to have its world premiere in the Forest Park theater this week, and talks by former Mayor Henry Kiel, who is president of the Municipal Theater Association, and Richard Berger, Muny Opera production manager. R. Fullerton Place will act as master of ceremonies.

Frederick Loewe, composer of the operetta, and Earle Crooker, the librettist, will take part in the broadcast. the latter as narrator. Miss Claire, Robertson and the other singers will be assisted by an orchestra from the Municipal Opera and a chorus directed by George Hirst. The radio performance will come direct from the Municipal Theater in Forest Park.

KSD's Sugah and Her Friends program will change to a lighter type show at 4:30 this afternoon, when Jimmie Jeffries, the Southern comedian, will be master of ceremonies. He will feature entertainers at the Dallas Exposition and the Fort Worth Frontier Fiesta, starting today with Jack Arthur, baritone. Alexander Kreese will lead the orchestra.

Freddie Lightner is set for a second appearance with Jane Froman, Don Ross and d'Artega's orchestra at 5 p. m. today on KSD.

Gladys George will play with Don Ameche in a scene from "Personal Appearance" on the program with W. C. Fields, Edgar Bergen and "Charlie" at 6 o'clock this evening on KSD.

May Robson and Jean Muir of the movies will do a one-act sketch, "Her Majesty the King," on James Melton's program at 8 p. m. Donald Dickson will sing the "Di Provenza" aria from "Traviata."

Among KSD Features.

FRANK BLACK'S concert at 8 p. m. tomorrow on KSD will open with the Entrance and Processional music from "The "Queen of Sheba."

Mythical negotiations for the sale of the movie rights to Gracie Allen's "The Private Life of Mrs. Robin Hood," with her uncle and missing brother in roles, will be part of the Burns and Allen program tomorrow night on KSD.

Four "hits that missed," written by Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, will be featured Tuesday evening by Johnny Green.

"Paul Barbour" and his apparent jealousy as a result of "Beth's" return from Europe with the baby, "David," will be the centers of action in Wednesday's One Man's Family episode, the locale of which will be "Nicky's" ranch.

Friday night's Court of Human Relations play will be called "Headline Love" and will tell the story of a newspaper "sob sister" torn between love of her managing editor and a fellow reporter.

Beatrice Kay, New York "torch singer" and impersonator; the Wranglers cowboy quartet; Hal Gorton, tenor, and Caspar Reardon, the "swing" harpist, will be featured by Walter O'Keeef on Wednesday's Town Hall Tonight program.

Johnny Trotter, a North Carolinian, has replaced Tommy Dorsey as orchestra leader on Bob Burns' program at 8 p. m. Thursday. He attracted Bing Crosby's attention in Hollywood when he made the arrangements for Crosby's picture, "Pennies from Heaven."

Trade Notes

New General Electric Sets Seen by Dealers.

A complete line of new General Electric radio sets for 1938 was shown to dealers Friday by the General Electric Supply Corporation, the distributer, at the Park Plaza Hotel. Models range from five-tube table sets and farm sets of various types to 10 and 13-tube consoles. There are also two six-tube auto sets and an eight-tuber, as well as several types of car aerials, wind chargers for battery sets and powder adapters. Automatic touch tuning of a new type is a feature of the 10 and 13-tube sets. This permits pre-selection of 13 stations, or of a lesser number of stations and certain parts of short-wave bands. This automatic tuning, which can be set by anyone without the aid of special apparatus, is silent acting, being belt driven from an electric motor. It works, of course, in connection with automatic frequency tuning.

There is also a tone monitor which gives normal or brilliant tone, bass accentuation, a speech position for talking, and a special compression effect for clarity and naturalness of foreign station reception.

Another feature is an exclusive audio circuit which gets rid of boomy bass and thudding tone effects, and makes for normal reproduction of music and speech.

Louvre dials; special speakers of sizes ranging to 12-inches; variable, visible tone control, which can be set to suit individual preference, custom craft cabinets and about any range of tuning for broadcast and foreign stations desired are among other features. The 13-tube sets tuning range covers the Post-Dispatch's ultra short wave station, W9XPD, on 31.6 megacycles.

The line includes two radio-phonograph combinations, one with eight tubes, the other with 13 tubes and automatic record changer.

Grunow Sets Showing Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday

The new 1938 Grunow radio sets will be shown to dealers from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday by the Brown Supply Co., the distributer, at the Coronado Hotel.

The new Grunows have improved "teledial" automatic tuning, a 360-degree short wave scale, a double channel audio amplifier, high fidelity and other features.

Fred Allen's Return to Air Now Assured

Signs Contract to Resume Hour Programs—Amos 'n' Andy Get Another Sponsor After Jan. 3.

FRED ALLEN has finally made his decision as to his future in radio. He has signed an extension of his contract which will put him back on KSD's Town Hall Tonight program in the fall. Just when he will return to broadcasting depends on his work in Hollywood, where he will go after spending a six-week vacation in Maine. He had expressed doubt whether he would go on the air again, and had intimated that if he did, it would be only on a half-hour program. An hour-long program, he said, was "too much work" as he did most of the writing of the scripts. However, his new contract provides for a full hour each week.

Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll have just signed a three-year contract with a new sponsor to continue their Amos 'n' Andy broadcasts over the same stations as now and also over Canadian stations, when their contract with their present sponsor expires Jan. 3. In 12 years, eight of them on the NBC networks, Gosden and Correll have reached the status of a $2,000,000-a-year program. Their salaries are estimated to exceed $200,000 a year, and the cost of the network time and facilities is fully $1,820,000 for 12 months. Their new sponsor now has the Hollywood Hotel on the air.

JOAN BLAINE, the Chicago NBC actress, has left the cast of the A Tale of Today serial, and will move to New York. . . . Francia White, the California soprano, will join the Wednesday night Cavalcade to sing as soloist, and in duets with Conrad Thibault. . . . The George Jessel-Norma Talmadge show, set for a first broadcast in September on WGN and the Mutual net, will be called "30 Minutes in Hollywood." . . . George Olsen's band, Ernie Stanton and Mary Treen may do a "Hollywood Parade" series on the CBS net in September. . . . Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson are virtually sure of returning to the air in their own show in the fall.

Stuart Canin, the 10-year-old violinist, whose playing of "The Bee" was made the occasion of the Jack Benny-Fred Allen "feud," is billed for Harry von Zell's period next Sunday.

Activities in the final 15 minutes of the market session on the floor of the Chicago Board of Trade were broadcast for the first time for international reception last Friday on the CBS net stations east of Kansas City and on the chain's short wave station, W2XE.

Belle Baker is expecting to head a radio variety show on one of the networks in September. . . . Loretta Lee has been engaged as regular soloist on Werner Janssen's new Sunday program.

TED MALONE is back on the CBS net and KMOX at 11:45 a. m. Monday through Friday with his Between the Book Ends program of poetry.

The hour-long program, including Betty and Bob, Hymns of All Churches, Betty Crocker and Arnold Grimm's Daughter, will be shifted on and after Monday, July 19, to the period from 11 a. m. to noon.

Theodore Roosevelt's voice was heard in a broadcast by WGN and the Mutual net last Thursday when Robert Vincent, who as a boy of 13 years invited the late President to make a record, was interviewed In the recording, "T. R." urged sportsmanship in civic affairs. Vincent, then editing a magazine for boys, first met "T. R." in 1913 in the office of Hamilton Wright Mabie, who was editor of "The Outlook." He invited the President to address a meeting of a boys' league. "T. R." said he could not find time for the speech, but would make a recording for the occasion. It was this record, made on an old-type wax disc at "T. R.'s" home at Oyster Bay, that was used in the broadcast.

CHARLES WINNINGER has assembled so large a cast for KSD's Thursday night Show Boat, that no Hollywood studio can hold it. So a movie theater is being remodeled for it. There are 73 in the cast, which will be enlarged to 100 on occasions. . . . The fifth anniversary of the Vic and Sade broadcasts came June 29. . . . Jacques Renard has been leading radio orchestras for 12 years. . . . Ben Bernie's broadcast will come from Hollywood after Aug. 17. . . . Dave Rubinoff and Andre Kostelanetz will be among the conductors of the Grant Park concerts in Chicago—Kostelanetz on July 31, Rubinoff on Aug. 6. A Grant Park concert led by Rubinoff last summer drew an audience of 150,000 persons.

Graciola, a Cuban guitar player, will be featured in the Our American Neighbors period at 3 p. m. today on KMOX.

Frederick Justin Adams' "Quincy Adams Sawyer" will be performed by the Radio Guild at 1 p. m. Friday on the WJZ net.

Radio Drama Fight to Begin Tomorrow Night

John Barrymore Will Be Pitted, in "The Tempest," Against Burgesss Meredith in "Hamlet."

TOMORROW evening, the contest between the NBC and the CBS for supremacy in radio production of the plays of Shakespeare will begin. At 7 o'clock, the CBS and KMOX will begin broadcasting a performance of "Hamlet," with Burgess Meredith in the title role, which will be the first of eight weekly broadcasts replacing the Radio Theater. The performance will continue for a full hour. At 7:30, John Barrymore will begin his "stream-lined" performance on the WJZ network of "The Tempest" as the fourth in his NBC series, and will be on the air until 8:15 o'clock.

Meredith, who has scored in stage and movie productions of "Winterset" and on Broadway in "High Tor," will be supported by a cast including his wife, Margaret Perry, as "Ophelia"; Walter Abel as "Horatio," Montague Love as the King, Grace George as the Queen; and William Brady as the Ghost; Ben Webster, the 73-year-old actor as "Polonius"; Morris Ankrum as "Laertes" and John Wray as the gravedigger. Music for the CBS broadcasts will be furnished by a symphony orchestra led by Victor Bay, who has made arrangements designed to utilize the leit motif, so frequently used by Wagner, to identify characters, emotions and situations as they develop. The director will be Brewster Morgan. Conway Tearle will be the narrator for all the broadcasts.

Barrymore originally planned to perform "King Lear," "Richard II" and either "A Winter's Tale" or "Cymbeline" in the broadcasts of tomorrow, July 19 and 26. Instead, he will substitute "The Tempest" for "King Lear" tomorrow night and conclude the series with "Twelfth Night" and "The Taming of the Shrew." His explanation is that he believes listeners will appreciate a change from the mood of tragedy set in his first three broadcasts of "Hamlet," "Richard III" and "Macbeth."

Barrymore will play both "Caliban" and "Prospero" in "The Tempest," and his wife, Elaine Barrymore, will attempt the roles of "Ariel" and "Miranda." "Stephano" will be played by Walter Brennan, winner of the National Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Science award for the best screen performance in 1936. Herbert Mundin, the movie actor, will play "Trincullo"; Robert Warwick, "Alonzo," and Henry Hunter of the movies, "Ferdinand." Music for the broadcast has been written by Will Prior. The narrator will be Ken Carpenter, the NBC announcer.

Although the air battle of Shakespeare will end July 26 with the conclusion of the Barrymore productions, the radio drama conflict will continue while the CBS carries on its eight-week Shakespeare series and the NBC produces four of Eugene O'Neill's plays on the WJZ net work in the 7:30 to 8:15 p. m. period Mondays.

Then, on Monday night, Aug. 30, the WJZ chain will carry a 75-minute performance of a condensation by the dramatist himself of George Bernard Shaw's five-play cycle, "Back to Methuselah." On the stage, Shaw's work requires five hours for presentation.

Cameron King, the nautical expert, who has been sailing in turn as a member of the crews of the "Ranger," "Yankee" and the two "Endeavors," has been engaged by WGN and the Mutual net as chief reporter for its broadcasting of the America's Cup yacht races in late July and early August. Other experts have been engaged by the NBC for broadcasts of the races on the WEAF or WJZ net, and the CBS has signed Sherman Hoyt, who has been in yacht racing since 1890 to assist Ted Husing in covering the races.

Delibes' "Les Filles des Cadiz" will be among Lucille Manners' songs in KSD's Friday night concert.

JACK BENNY SAYS:

Radio Drama Fight to Begin Tomorrow Night

TOMORROW evening, the contest between the NBC and the CBS for supremacy in radio production of the plays of Shakespeare will begin. At 7 o'clock, the CBS and KMOX will begin broadcasting a performance of "Hamlet," with Burgess Meredith in the title role, which will be the first of eight weekly broadcasts replacing the Radio Theater. The performance will continue for a full hour. At 7:30, John Barrymore will begin his "stream-lined" performance on the WJZ network of "The Tempest" as the fourth in his NBC series, and will be on the air until 8:15 o'clock.

Meredith, who has scored in stage and movie productions of "Winterset" and on Broadway in "High Tor," will be supported by a cast including his wife, Margaret Perry, as "Ophelia"; Walter Abel as "Horatio," Montague Love as the King, Grace George as the Queen; and William Brady as the Ghost; Ben Webster, the 73-year-old actor as "Polonius"; Morris Ankrum as "Laertes" and John Wray as the gravedigger. Music for the CBS broadcasts will be furnished by a symphony orchestra led by Victor Bay, who has made arrangements designed to utilize the leit motif, so frequently used by Wagner, to identify characters, emotions and situations as they develop. The director will be Brewster Morgan. Conway Tearle will be the narrator for all the broadcasts.

Barrymore originally planned to perform "King Lear," "Richard II" and either "A Winter's Tale" or "Cymbeline" in the broadcasts of tomorrow, July 19 and 26. Instead, he will substitute "The Tempest" for "King Lear" tomorrow night and conclude the series with "Twelfth Night" and "The Taming of the Shrew." His explanation is that he believes listeners will appreciate a change from the mood of tragedy set in his first three broadcasts of "Hamlet," "Richard III" and "Macbeth."

Barrymore will play both "Caliban" and "Prospero" in "The Tempest," and his wife, Elaine Barrymore, will attempt the roles of "Ariel" and "Miranda." "Stephano" will be played by Walter Brennan, winner of the National Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Science award for the best screen performance in 1936. Herbert Mundin, the movie actor, will play "Trinculo"; Robert Warwick, "Alonzo," and Henry Hunter of the movies, "Ferdinand." Music for the broadcast has been written by Will Prior. The narrator will be Ken Carpenter, the NBC announcer.

Although the air battle of Shakespeare will end July 26 with the conclusion of the Barrymore productions, the radio drama conflict will continue while the CBS carries on its eight-week Shakespeare series and the NBC produces four of Eugene O'Neill's plays on the WJZ net work in the 7:30 to 8:15 p. m. period Mondays.

Then, on Monday night, Aug. 30, the WJZ chain will carry a 75-minute performance of a condensation by the dramatist himself of George Bernard Shaw's five-play cycle, "Back to Methuselah." On the stage, Shaw's work requires five hours for presentation.

Cameron King, the nautical expert, who has been sailing in turn as a member of the crews of the "Ranger," "Yankee" and the two "Endeavors," has been engaged by WGN and the Mutual net as chief reporter for its broadcasting of the America's Cup yacht races in late July and early August. Other experts have been engaged by the NBC for broadcasts of the races on the WEAF or WJZ net, and the CBS has signed Sherman Hoyt, who has been in yacht racing since 1890 to assist Ted Husing in covering the races.

MOSCOW, June.

MOSCOW readers of the Russian press seldom pull their punches when they take pen in hand to write "Letters to the Editor."

When all else fails, the constant reader always has recourse to the correspondence columns of his favorite newspaper. Generally, it brings results, because the pitiless glare of publicity is often too much even for the most case-hardened bureaucrat to endure.

Just as many American readers turn first to the sports page, or to the comics, so the average Soviet reader casts a curious eye to that part of the paper reserved for those who call upon the Sanctum Sanctorum for aid in their trials and tribulations. Nor are letters confined to private kicks alone. Numerous communications deal with large affairs of state and with the many big-time activities of the Soviet regime.

SPANISH WAR from THE INSIDE

Censors and "official" press releases strip modern war news to statistical accounts of battles won and sectors lost. Rarely do correspondents reach the front lines or enjoy an opportunity to gauge the morale of the ordinary soldier of either side.

Recently, however, a correspondent of the Manchester Guardian taxed the prestige and facilities of this great English newspaper to reach and study the battlefields of Loyalist Spain.

Back in England, this correspondent has written of Republican Spain as he saw it, commenting on the spirit of these peaceful people who have found themselves embroiled in one of history's bloodiest wars. The Post-Dispatch publishes herewith this correspondence, condensed from a series of three articles on Loyalist Spain.

(From the Manchester Guardian.)

FAR away, a clap of artillery thunder starts rolling toward the grey mountain; then, with a terrific reverberation, it strikes the chalky, pitted walls of the natural amphitheater below the mountaincrest.

This is the Teruel Front. The crest is the firing line. The holes in the mountain are dug-outs where the men off duty crawl to sleep through an air raid.

From behind a great boulder a man carries an enormous saucepan full of red rice cake. There is a shout, followed by bursts of song. The singing is almost African, and though melancholy, it has a glad rhythm. The men hold out their tins and plates in a happy cookhouse parade. They wear various uniforms, sometimes only khaki trousers and colored corduroys, or tunics and corduroys. Many wear white, rope-soled shoes. Clean-shaven or bearded, they are all tanned.

It's Like the Western Front.

Just above the amphitheater the trenches, running through chalk along the mountain-crest, are flanked with a continuous sandbag parapet.

Following the upward curve of the crest, the trench ends in a sandbag emplacement, where squats a machine-gun with a man crouched behind it. A glimpse over the parapet reveals, in the giddy distance below, a tiny moving speck. A deserter from the other side perhaps? Nobody knows.

Apart from the strange configuration of the mountainous landscape, the scene recalls a quiet day on the Western front.

There is the occasional boom of artillery and the rat-a-tat of machine-guns. One of the men lying on the roof of the emplacement aims a rifle on some far target and fires. A bearded sniper leans against the back of the trench and peers through the loophole opposite. He bends forward suddenly, takes careful aim and pulls the trigger. The crack resounds down the trench. Then there is the familiar droning overhead and three bombers are seen convoyed by four fighter planes. In the valley below, where a thin road is visible, grey puffs shoot up and drift off in faint whisps. Several flashes follow, then bursting bombs and anti-aircraft artillery echo from hill to hill. The road to Teruel has been bombed and Rebel guns have replied.

In spite of the unconventional uniforms and the loose, though by no means ineffective discipline, this is scientific warfare. The Loyalists, a wild courageous horde, are Spaniards and revolutionaries as well. They do not allow foreigners to do all the fighting. The contrary may have been true once, but no longer. This front is now manned only by Spaniards.

One Flag Leads Many Causes.

Loyalist Spain is rapidly creating a well-disciplined, well-equipped and well-fed army. Even the cadre, or veteran framework, is Spanish here at Teruel. It is formed chiefly of old soldiers who have seen service in Morocco.

Many Anarchists man the trenches but the higher ranks are largely Socialist. Despite the sprinkling of Communists and Left-wing Republicans, the political differences that once paralysed military action are vanishing.

Men no longer shout "Up the Anarchists!" or "Up the Third International!"; they now cheer for the Republic. Their flag is no longer the red-and-black of anarchy nor the red of Socialism; the tri-colour-red, yellow and purple waves over Republican Spain.

The ardours and despairs of the first months are over, and with them the chaos. The men now want peace and the war is now a job to be done—like the Great War. The Spanish revolution and Spain (the two are one in the eyes of the Loyalists) is in mortal danger and must, so they believe with a dour fanaticism, be defended against counter-revolution and invasion. They lump the two together under "Fascism."

Loyalist discipline is characteristic of revolutionary armies. There is familiarity between officers and men, but authority is unquestioned. The Loyalist salute—the raised fist of the Third International—has become a salute. A soldier raises his right fist to his eye as though to say "Yes, sir!" There is, of course, no "sir" in the Loyalist army. Officers and men call each other "Camarada."

Incident in Barcelona

As the front line at Teruel is lightly held, food is abundant. A railway from Valencia to Barracas and beyond, keeps the sector supplied from vast areas where there is no sign of war.

The road from Cedillas, northern headquarters of the Teruel Front, to the advanced base at Alfambra—and back to Segorbe and Valencia—passes through a landscape of peaceful beauty.

Valencia Forgets the War.

Alfambra, crowded with troops, lorries and an occasional armoured-car, tank, or field-gun, is like an Inca city, rising rust-brown from the green fields. Its martial activity is in grim contrast to the rich villages or the Valencian plain, crowded with cheerful, healthy people. The black-eyed young women, with lips deeply rouged, and with large metal bangles hanging from their ears, stroll in a stately fashion as though deaf to the compliments thrown to them by the village blades. In Valencia, the war is almost forgotten. The elder women sit before whitewashed houses, surrounded by children. Cherries are ripe, and oranges cost a penny a pound.

But on the Madrid Front, war has scarred the landscape. The suburb of Arguelles resembles Arras or Ypres at the half-way point of the World War. The German bombs have blown up everything inside some of the houses. Others have been cut in half, the one-half remaining erect, the other a heap of bricks, rafters, broken furniture, and rubbish. Sometimes a wall stands, the rest of the house shaved off so cleanly that pictures hang unbroken from the wall.

The roads near the firing-line are crossed by low walls of cobbles and concrete. These walls are in pairs, one about two yards ahead of the other, each extending just over half-way across the street, so that troops, artillery or vehicles may pass. These barricades are so strong that only direct hits by large shells or bombs could destroy them. When manned by a few riflemen and machine-gunners they can be stormed only with a fearful loss of life.

Where "Manana" Saved the Day.

Madrid's famous Casa de Campo is now part of this vast trench system that sweeps around the east and south of the city. There was a day in November when the Rebel army could have entered Madrid without resistance and why it did not do so has never been explained. The next day was too late, for detachments of the International Column arrived, the belated assault was repelled, and the city's defenses made stronger.

An attempt to take the city from the northeast was defeated in the battle of Guadalajara, when an Italian army was scattered by Russian bombing planes and the International Column.

Now, the front is comparable with the World War's Western front. The concrete shelters on both sides of the River Manzanares are held by a modern army of Spaniards, with the International Brigade as a cadre.

Madrid is impregnable. Only demoralization—of which there is no sign—could admit the enemy. A prolonged barrage and the sacrifice of tens of thousands of men might smash the defenses, but the Rebels have neither the artillery nor the reserves.

Shells and bullets leisurely clatter to and fro across Madrid. The city is bombarded at noon, late afternoon and sometimes at night with the regularity of a tropical storm. But life in the trenches here is tolerable, almost pleasant in the long "quiet" periods. And there are many such. Madrid was near starvation during the winter, and even now there are times when there is no bread for days. But up the line, rations are plentiful.

Madrid Defenders Must Shave.

Madrid's "No-man's land" varies—often it is a field of poppies and ox-eye daisies, bounded by walls no more than half a mile apart. Behind these walls the advanced posts of the two armies eye their foes through periscopes and narrow loopholes.

Work on trenches, parapets, drainage, shelters and dug-out never ends, but after the gloom of Madrid, the front seems cheerful and safe. Most of the sunburned faces are smiling, and there are few beards—hygiene is rapidly improving here and the men shave every three days.

Nowhere is Loyalist achievements more conspicuous than on this vast salient.

The Russian Red Army was at least made of men with weapons and World War experience. But the Loyalist Army has been created out of nothing but Russian airmen, the International Column and its own raw recruits. Even the Column was sadly armed and poorly trained in the beginning.

The function of the Column and the Russians is comparable to that of the French and the often-forgotten Spanish troops of the American Revolutionary War. The Column, used as shock-troops at first, were sent where the fighting was heaviest. They are now a cadre, or veteran support, and around them the Spanish Army is expanding so that it will soon be able to hold the fronts without aid.

General strategy is in Spanish hands and recruits are being trained chiefly by Spaniards, although there are Russian experts in aviation and artillery schools.

The International Column is dispersed over the fronts, except the northern sectors. Together with the Russians, the Column serves as a bulwark, much as the Germans do in the Rebel Army. But the Italians on the Rebel side are more like an ally. With small infantry divisions as well as with aircraft and artillery the Italians hold entire sectors.

Nearly all figures relating to this civil war are conjectural. While the International Column is said to be anything from 5000 to 50,000 strong, 8000 or 9000 seems likely. It was probably more than 30,000 at one time, but casualties and desertions have cut the ranks.

The Russians, who can hardly total more than 1000 or 2000, are important chiefly in the air. On the Rebel side the Italians now number 70,000 or 80,000. The number of Germans on the Rebel side is unknown, but probably not less than 15,000.

Loyalists Have Man Power.

The Rebels, therefore, have an immense advantage. They have far more foreign auxiliaries, all of whom came fully armed, whereas the men of the International Column arrived with nothing.

But the Loyalists are well supplied with war material, though not as well as the Rebels who began as a well-equipped army. And the Loyalists probably have more reserves of men. On the Loyalist side foreigners are not only few in number and of diminishing importance; they are kept in the background. It is possible to spend days in the trenches without meeting one.

It is therefore natural that Loyalists should look upon the Rebels as instruments of German and Italian foreign policy. The Rebels can count at least on the passive support of the German and Italian fleets, while the Loyalists are entirely unbefriended as the Russians are not taking part in the supervision of the Spanish coasts.

This largely explains the growing nationalism of the Revolution. It took a long time before revolutionary Russia became nationalist, although she too had to resist foreign intervention.

Good Politics Is No Politics.

The Loyalist army is a people's army and men flock to the colors except in Catalonia. There are few deserters although occasionally, peasants from politically-backward regions are found with self-inflicted wounds. But the spirit is one of steadfast determination — perhaps more formidable from a military point of view than any wild enthusiasm. Without this spirit the army could not exist —it is the main foundation of its discipline.

At Madrid, as on the Teruel front, politi-

Senate's Court Debate Gets Off To Bitter Start

Neither Side Will Hazard a Guess on Length of Fight—Opposition Lacks Votes to Beat Compromise—Democratic Party to Be Damaged by Conflict.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, July 10.

DEAD cats, red herrings, heckling, parliamentary tricks and slow motion arguments were brought into the historic debate in the Senate this week on President Roosevelt's proposal to remake the Supreme Court. The end of the controversy is not in sight, and, if the hostile spirit so evident in the early debate continues, Majority Leader Robinson's prediction of a "dog eat dog" fight will be fulfilled.

Introduction of the so-called Logan-Hatch compromise Tuesday and the subsequent events during the week demonstrated four important points:

1. The policy of delay defeated the original White House bill sent to Congress February 5.
2. At present the opposition does not have the votes to beat the pending compromise.
3. The Roosevelt forces will try for public support by crying "filibuster" at the opposition arguments.
4. Tactics by both sides, unless drastically revised, will have a damaging effect on the Democratic organization.

Question of Votes.

On the first point, Robinson frankly admitted in a colloquy with Senator Wheeler of Montana that the administration lacked the votes to pass the original Roosevelt bill. The Arkansas Senator was quick to add, however, that the Roosevelt forces had the votes for the compromise.

"Now you are standing around here talking about a filibuster," he told Wheeler, "which is an admission of the fact that you are licked to start with."

Wheeler merely interposed with a "no" but the parliamentary procedure plainly indicated that the opposition could not command a majority in the Senate at this time. If a majority were against the compromise, Wheeler would have moved to recommit the original bill and the substitute to the Senate Judiciary Committee, where they would remain among the committee archives. That would have been the end of the court plan at this session.

Lacking a majority, the opposition can only work for the same success on the compromise it finally won on the original bill, namely, a breaking down of administration discipline so that Senators will vote their personal convictions without hope of reward or fear of reprisal. The statement carried in this correspondence regarding the original bill applies to the compromise: If the 96 Senators could vote in secret the Roosevelt plan to remake the Supreme Court would be overwhelmingly defeated.

No Guess on Length of Fight.

Now that the bill is before the Senate and Robinson has announced that he will force a vote, the opposition is denied the fortuitous aid given by the administration when the President was content to let the bill stay in the Judiciary Committee. How long the debates will run neither side will hazard a guess.

On a question of this importance the normal time might easily be a month. Many Senators believe, however, that the nebulous entity known as "the country" is against filibusters on the theory that a minority is opposing the will of the majority. That is the reason Robinson tried to make the point in his opening speech Tuesday that the opposition was about to stage a filibuster. It is too early to say whether a real filibuster will develop, but the heckling tactics already employed by the opposition "flying squadron," Wheeler of Montana, Burke of Nebraska, Clark of Missouri and Connally of Texas, showed that the opposition intended to use every device to delay a vote.

Robinson's action Thursday in making a point of order against interruptions was the answer of the Roosevelt forces to dilatory tactics. Under a strict interpretation of the Senate rules a Senator can only yield for the propounding of a question, and cannot allow another Senator to make a speech during his own time. If he permits another Senator to make such a speech, the first Senator loses the floor. Another section of the rule is that no Senator can speak twice on the same subject during any legislative day.

A legislative day is that period of time starting from the introduction of a measure of unfinished business until an adjournment is taken. A recess merely prolongs the legislative day. Thus the Senate is now proceed-

More Pharmacy Regulation Suggestions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR recent editorials and other comment on examinations held by the Missouri State Board of Pharmacy have been of much interest.

It should be conceded by every good citizen that an adequate examination should be held before licenses to practice pharmacy are given. The public should be protected by having competent pharmacists, not only to fill prescriptions but to sell and dispense all poisons and drugs of every nature.

Another thing which should be observed is that the questions asked in the examinations by the board should be on actual practice as now carried on; not on obsolete practice or preparation that has long since been dropped and forgotten.

In Missouri, up to the present, the public has not been protected for several reasons. Every chain, department or variety store in both large cities and small towns is allowed to handle drugs and patent medicines and to sell poisons, no pharmacist being in charge. Even small stores in the rural districts are given the same privilege. Large chain stores may have only one, or (if open 24 hours a day) possibly two, registered pharmacists, and the balance of their help consists of youngsters who can be hired for small wages. Some cut-rate drug stores in smaller cities where there is no adequate checkup do not even have a registered pharmacist in charge.

We should have laws which would eliminate the operation of drug stores by unlicensed persons, making it illegal to sell poisons, drugs or patent medicines in other than legally licensed pharmacies, under the direction of licensed pharmacists. This would also help materially in reducing unemployment. There are today many competent, college-educated pharmacists unemployed for the reason that stores are allowed to operate with cheap and incompetent help.

A PHARMACIST.

Volunteers to Circulate Petitions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AGREE with the alarmed writer whose letter to your column says that we are already going backward. It seems to me that our State is headed toward bankruptcy should appropriations similar to those allowed for the next biennium be demanded from our citizens from now on. I also agree with Edward Dowling, whose letter suggested that proportional representation in a single-house Legislature would make for a more democratic house with the minority checks he outlined.

I hereby volunteer to circulate initiative petitions authorizing a decision by the voters as to whether they want to elect representatives by proportional representation and have a unicameral Legislature. WILLIAM HENRY GRUEN.

The First New Dealer.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AS a matter of historical record, I trust you will print the following:

The first New Dealer was Christopher Columbus, for these reasons: He did not know where he was going, when he got there he did not know where he was, and when he returned, he did not know where he had been—and he did it all on borrowed money. J. J. J.

An Artist Protests.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE protest of Sheila Burlingame against the prosaic attitude of the president of the Municipal Art Commission is just and timely. Why should we in St. Louis remain forever and ever in the ox-cart era of artistic development and why, except that it is St. Louis, must the position of painter on the St. Louis Art Commission be occupied by one whose work has never been shown in any major exhibition in America or even in a major show in St. Louis. It is unfair to the people of St. Louis who have taste, and it is also unfair to the professional artists of St. Louis who have proved their standing. I, as an artist, protest.

E. OSCAR THALINGER.

Like a Bloody War.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

JUST a few weeks ago, a Cleveland window washer, en route home after finishing his work on a skyscraper, stepped off the curb into the path of an automobile and was killed. For the moment, he had ignored that highly developed sense of caution which had guided him through his perilous duties.

Surely, to live safely in our times, we must discipline ourselves to do even more than we have been doing. We must keep our safety standards a little bit higher than would seem to be really necessary. Where the bombs of the battlefield are thickest, there always is the greatest danger. Certainly a situation exists in our land, not unlike that of a bloody war. As a matter of fact, more people have been killed in the United States by automobiles during the past decade than were sacrificed on the field of battle in all the wars our country has ever engaged in.

FRANK KOWATCH.

THE COURT AND CIVIL RIGHTS.

It is shocking to read, among the attacks leveled at the Supreme Court by those who favor the packing bill, that the court has stood throughout its history against the rights of the "common man."

That appeal for a measure which would strike down the independence of the court, in plain violation of the spirit of the Constitution, is abundantly refuted by the record.

It is one of the prime functions of the court to protect individual liberties against invasion. This it has repeatedly done. Time and again the court has been the last refuge of the oppressed.

It was so in the famous case Ex Parte Milligan (1866), when a defendant with a rope figuratively around his neck was saved by the court from a military tribunal. The court was the bulwark of labor when it held in the American Foundries case (1921), in a broad decision written by Chief Justice Taft, that the right of workmen to engage in peaceful picketing could not be interfered with by injunction. The court in that case specifically upheld the right to strike. Its decision was hailed at the time, and has so proved, a notable milestone in the forward march of organized labor. The recent decisions of the court in the De Jonge and Herndon cases—to name but two other instances of the court's upholding of civil liberties—are fresh in mind.

We have a Bill of Rights in our Constitution—a proper no man's land, in which certain rights of the citizen are guaranteed against encroachment—and the new Russian Constitution has a set of similar guaranties. But between the American system and the Russian is a difference as wide as the ocean. The rights granted the citizen by the Russian Constitution exist only by sufferance of the executive power. Behind the rights guaranteed by the American Constitution is an independent department of government—the judiciary, with the Supreme Court at its head—whose function it is to interpret those rights and to say that neither by the executive nor by the legislative branch shall they be diminished.

We append a list of some of the more important cases in which the Supreme Court has intervened to protect civil liberties:

Ex parte Milligan (1866).—The court held that trial by jury cannot be denied by a military commission when martial rule is not in force and the courts are open.

Cummings vs. Missouri (1867).—The Missouri Constitution required priests and ministers of religion to take an oath that they had never expressed sympathy for any rebellion against the United States. In a case involving a Catholic priest who had been convicted of the crime of preaching without having first taken such a test oath, the Supreme Court declared the oath unconstitutional as a bill of attainder.

Wong Wing vs. United States (1896).—The court held that aliens in the United States were entitled to a jury trial to determine guilt or innocence of an offense punishable by imprisonment at hard labor.

Carter vs. Texas (1900).—Exclusion of Negroes from a grand jury which indicts a Negro, when such exclusion is solely because of race or color, was held to deny the defendant the equal protection of the laws and was therefore declared unconstitutional.

Truax vs. Raich (1915).—The Supreme Court invalidated, as an act discriminating against aliens resident in Arizona, a statute declaring that 80 per cent of the workers for any employer with a payroll of more than five workers must be citizens of the United States.

Meyer vs. Nebraska (1923).—The court invalidated a State statute, passed in the period of post-war hysteria, which made it a crime to teach any language other than English until the pupil had passed the eighth grade. The issue directly involved was the teaching of German in a Lutheran school in Nebraska. The court here invoked the due process clause to protect the common-law rights of the individual.

Pierce vs. Society of Sisters (1925).—Again invoking the due process clause on behalf of common-law rights, the court declared unconstitutional an Oregon statute requiring parents to send their children between the ages of 8 and 16 years only to public schools.

Fiske vs. Kansas (1927).—The court protected the common-law right to organize a group of the working class, if the purpose was not to do any unlawful act.

Nixon vs. Herndon (1927).—A state statute making Negroes ineligible to participate in a primary election of a political party was held unconstitutional, as depriving them of the equal protection of the laws.

De Jonge vs. Oregon (1927).—Here the court extended its protection to an avowed Communist, whose right to take part in a peacable assembly had been infringed. The court saved De Jonge from a long prison term after his conviction had been upheld by the Oregon Supreme Court.

Powell vs. Alabama (the Scottsboro case, 1932).—Conviction of a Negro charged with rape was set aside because he had been denied his constitutional right to be represented by diligent counsel.

Grosjean vs. American Press Co. (1936).—The court set aside a Louisiana State statute, passed in the Huey Long regime, which imposed a license tax on newspapers and periodicals having a circulation of more than a stated number of copies. This law was held to interfere with the freedom of the press through abuse of the power of taxation.

Finally, there was the case of the Negro, Angelo Herndon, an avowed Communist, who was convicted in Georgia on the charge that he had tried to incite an insurrection, in violation of a law passed in reconstruction days. In a decision only last April, the court came to the rescue of Herndon, holding that his conviction under the ancient statute in question violated the fourteenth amendment.

That the court has made unfortunate decisions, none will deny; but to say, as Senator Guffey did the other day in opening the debate on the court-packing bill in the Senate, that the court has been "partisan, prejudiced and biased in denying workingmen and farmers their fundamental rights," is to lower the fight for the bill to the rankest demagoguery.

HOW GOV. HORNER DISPOSES OF BILLS.

Gov. Horner is following his usual custom with respect to the disposition of bills sent to him by the Legislature. Those which he approves he signs. Those which he thinks definitely should not become laws he vetoes. A third category, those which he approves in the main but concerning which he entertains some doubts, he permits to become law without his signature. An instance in the third class is the bill fixing $150 as the minimum police and Fire Department salary in cities of 10,000 to 25,000 population and $175 as the minimum in larger cities, with the exception of Chicago. The Governor said that the salaries fixed were fair and that the measure providing for them should not be vetoed. At the same time, he said he questioned the wisdom of the precedent and so used the device of withholding his signature to call attention to his doubts. Thus he sounded a warning for future Legislatures to consider.

This discrimination in the disposal of bills reflects the conception of stewardship which Gov. Horner has adhered to from the outset of his first administration more than four years ago.

"FOR PEACE AND CIVILIZATION."

The Italian press, which comments on international matters only as Il Duce gives it leave, has reached a new high in its denunciation of the attitude of Great Britain and France in the Spanish strife. England, according to the Italian editorials, wants a new naval base in Spain to supplement Gibraltar and is unwilling to share the Basque mineral resources with other nations. France is charged with the high crime of wanting to keep Spain a republic, and with wanting to make it amenable to orders from Paris.

Whatever truth there is in these charges, it is plain that Italy is attributing to England and France only the objectives which in reality are held by Rome and Berlin, except, of course, that the latter want to make Spain a dictatorship rather than a republic. Il Duce and Der Fuehrer are determined to see their straw man, Franco, through to victory so that they themselves may have access to Spain's iron and copper mines. Their hearts are set on making Spain their satellite, in order to weaken Great Britain's connections with the East and to give France a threat to occupy her on the South, in case Germany moves toward territorial conquest.

If all that Mussolini's editorial writers charge were true, it still would be only a case of the pot calling the kettle black. "Only the plan of Italy and Germany with regard to Spain is consistent with the interests of peace and civilization," a typical Italian editorial concludes. Truly, peace and civilization will be safeguarded and exalted when another saber-rattling dictator is set up to grind political liberalism under his heel in one more land and to do his part toward making the world's war clouds more ominous!

AN OLD-FASHIONED PARTY WORKER.

Mrs. Erma South, a First Ward precinct worker, wants the Board of Public Service to repair the sidewalks in her neighborhood, because their present condition "makes it difficult to get out the vote."

Here is party zeal, indeed. A little old-fashioned, though. In recent St. Louis elections, the vote has been produced far more efficiently than by ringing doorbells and persuading the citizens to go to the polls. Ballot box stuffers and dishonest counters should worry about sidewalks in need of repair.

"DELIGHTFULLY SIMPLE."

We are interested in the fence viewer and pound master in old-time Hudson River Valley history. Mr. Roosevelt was telling his Fourth of July audience about them to illustrate how "delightfully simple" government was in the seventeenth century. These men, said the President, were two of the principal officials. The fence viewer saw to it that owners of land contributed equally to fences dividing their properties. The pound master kept farmers' pigs from straying onto their neighbors' land.

How different is government today, in the Hudson River Valley as elsewhere—a development attributed by the President to the rise of civilization. The fence viewer and the pound master merely protected citizens in their rights. Now, if the owners of land want a fence built, they send a wire to Harry Hopkins to rush a brigade of W P A fence-builders to the scene. And no pound master is needed to herd the phantom pigs that Henry Wallace paid the farmers of the country not to raise.

In the old days, when the timber wolves threatened the stock of Hudson River Valley farmers, they got out their muskets and killed off the wolves. Now they send a postcard to the Department of Agriculture and the Government wolf-hunter and his assistants arrive on the next train. In the old days, a Hudson River Valley farmer was expected to roll up something to keep him in the days of his age, but now all he has to do is to sit on the fence and chaw tobacco because he knows he can collect an old-age pension when the time comes.

What does Mr. Roosevelt mean when he calls government in the seventeenth century "delightfully simple"? Why, government in those days was just a nuisance that made a man dig postholes and build fences and penalized him if his pigs got loose.

MISSOURI COUNTRYSIDE: 1937 EDITION.

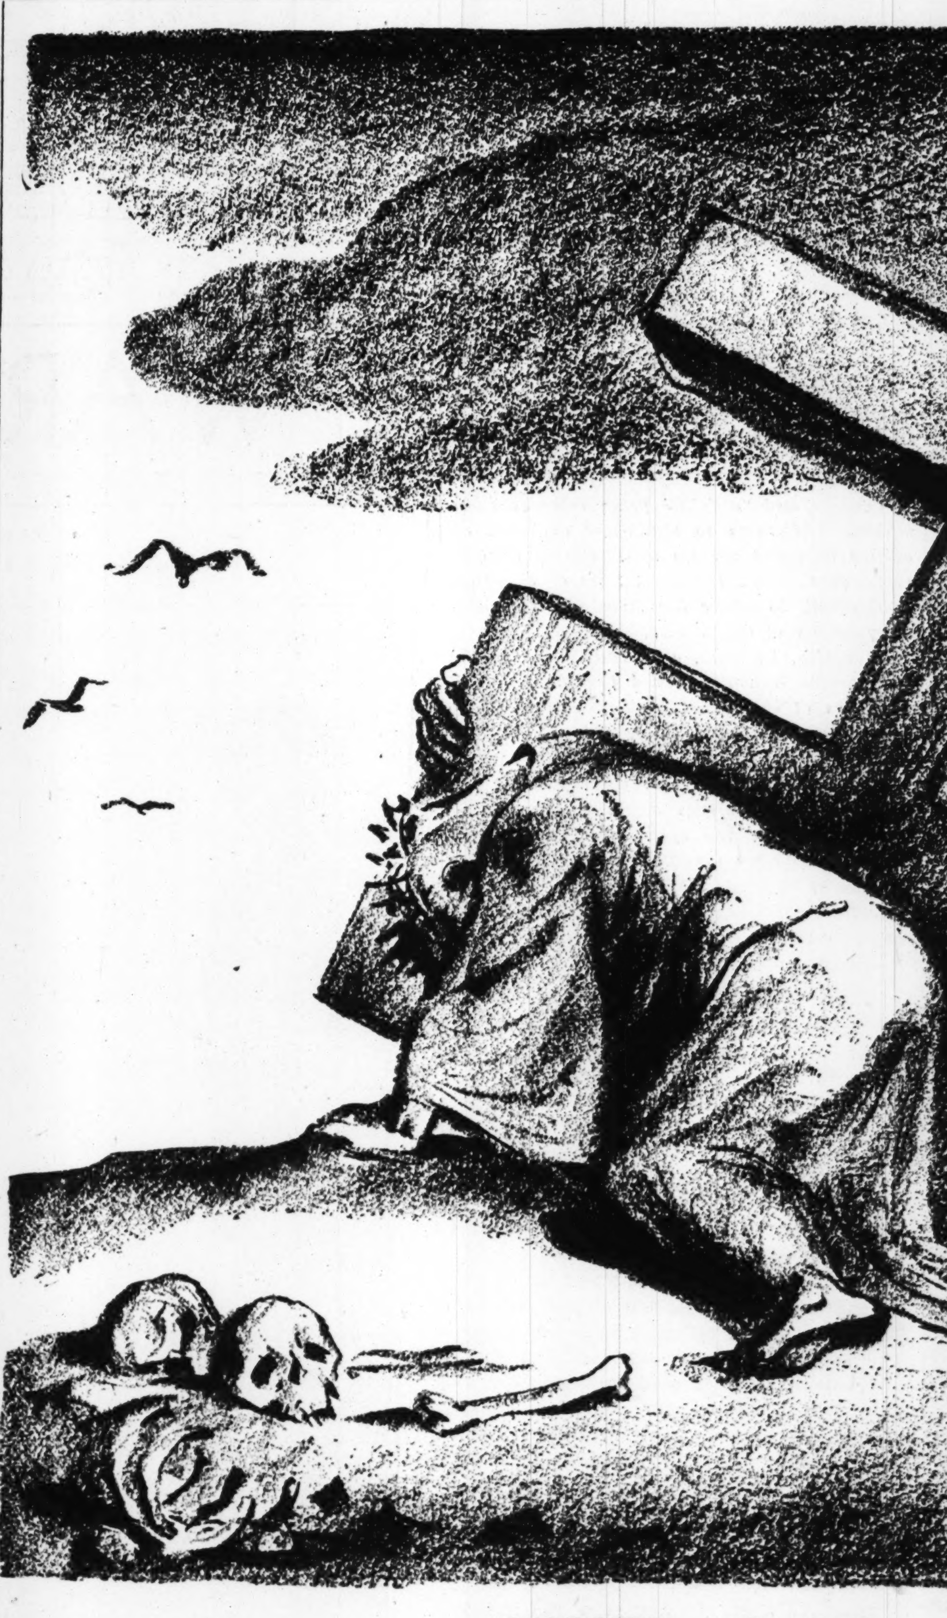
Not since 1930 has the Missouri countryside been so lush and beautiful as it is this year. The plentiful rains of spring and early summer have given us a fine growing season. The evidence taken by the eyes of luxuriant crops is borne out by statistical studies.

It is believed by E. A. Logan of the Department of Agriculture that the corn crop will be the best since 1934, although moisture will soon be needed to make good the forecast. With a considerable less acreage planted, it appears Missouri will have 126,000,000 bushels, as compared with only 40,000,000 bushels last year. The winter wheat crop is the best Missouri has had in 17 years. It is estimated there will be 38,000,000 bushels from something over 3,000,000 acres. In 1920, the wheat crop totaled 39,767,000 bushels.

Oats, rye, barley and hay are also showing tremendous advances over recent years. Barley production is the largest in the State's history. Whereas the oats acreage is the smallest since 1933, production is expected to be the largest since 1932. There will be 45 per cent more hay than last year, and more than twice as much rye.

It is one of the major tragedies that drouth years generally coincide with the years of the man-made economic depression. As we emerge from the latter, nature pours forth her bounty once more, yielding extra dividends, as it were.

How refreshing it is to see on exhibition once more the old-time, smiling, rich, fertile Missouri countryside!



GOLGOTHA, 1937 A. D.

Working Hours and Living Costs

Further general reduction in work week would lower standards of living, declares research authority; marked increases in production must be recorded in many fields to bring them up to level of 1929, he finds; emphasizes that a much higher level than this is needed to provide satisfactory quota of goods for nation.

From an Address by Harold G. Moulton, President of the Brookings Institution, Before Junior Chamber of Commerce, Denver; Reprinted From Vital Speeches Magazine.

THE production task now before the country may be stated in the following terms: First, we must make good the actual deterioration of plant and equipment sustained during the depression; second, we must increase productive capital in proportion to the growth of population that has occurred, and, third, we must expand the output of consumption goods in accordance with this growth of population. Popular thinking centers mainly on the last of these three; that is, the increase of consumption goods; but the achievement of this depends fundamentally upon the fulfillment of the first two requirements—the restoration of producing power.

We have recently made a comprehensive analysis of the expansion of production that would be required in the next few years to restore former levels of production and consumption. Concretely, we set it as our task to determine how great an increase would be required to restore by 1941 a per capita level of production and consumption equal to that of 1929. Inasmuch as the curtailment of production has been greatest in the field of durable goods, our detailed analysis was concentrated in that quarter.

We studied in turn the situation in the fields of housing, passenger automobiles, public utilities, industrial enterprises, etc. Each of these studies involved taking account of the restricted rate of production during the last seven years, the extent of deferred replacement and maintenance, and the requirements resulting from the continued growth of population. Our approach was essentially of an engineering character.

In relative terms, as compared with output in 1936, the increase in housing construction would have to be 208 per cent, industrial enterprises 70 per cent, public utilities 70 per cent, steam railroads 67 per cent, passenger automobiles 15 per cent, and other durable consumer goods 33 per cent. We would have to produce annually during the next five years approximately three times as many housing units as we produced in 1936.

In these analyses a conscious effort was made to avoid possible exaggeration by stressing minimum requirements. It is our belief that whatever shortcomings may exist in the estimates for the separate categories of goods, the aggregate figures may be taken as reasonable and conservative approximations. For all classes of durable goods, the aggregate volume of production in these lines would have to be roughly 60 per cent higher than in 1936 and approximately one-third higher than during the boom period of 1925-1929.

The primary explanation of these enormous production requirements to get us back to where we were is, of course, to be found in the continuing rate of population growth, on the one hand, and the suspended rate of growth in producing capacity, on the other. The real costs of a depression are registered in these fundamental relationships. They can be overcome only through a rebuilding process which will make good, first, the positive deficiencies, and, second, expand productive capacity in proportion to the growth of population.

What, now, does all this mean in terms of employment? What are the labor requirements to carry through a program of expanded production such as has been indicated to be necessary? Our investigations indicate that, in the field of durable goods alone, from 8,000,000 to 9,000,000 additional workers would be needed. The increased production and labor required in the field of the non-durable goods would be less.

But there can be no doubt that the work requirements to restore living standards during the next five years are more than sufficient to absorb the entire volume of unemployment now existing. These estimates are based upon an assumption of an average working week of 43 hours, which was the prevailing rate at the time the investigation was made.

The simple truth of the matter is that we have not yet reached a stage of technological development at which it is possible for the American people to obtain the standards of living which they desire, if working time is reduced appreciably below that which now prevails in American industry generally. Bear in mind that the foregoing estimates are based merely on the assumption of a return to 1929 per capita levels of production and consumption. We need much higher levels than these to provide satisfactory standards of living.

During the period of great technical progress from 1900 to 1929, the length of the working week was reduced by approximately 13 per cent. During the period from 1929 to 1936, with productive expansion held in check by the forces of depression, the working week was nevertheless reduced by nearly 20 per cent. Our research reveals that anyone who favors a further general reduction in the length of the working week at this stage of our economic development unwittingly favors lower standards of living.

Business activity is conducted through what we call a pecuniary system—involving the sale of goods in the markets for money and the disbursement of the shares accruing to those who participate in the productive process in the form of money income—wages, interest, etc. What is the bearing of wage and price trends upon the further expansion of production and the accompanying absorption of unemployment?

First, the process of raising the standards of living of wage earners necessarily involves increasing the ratio between wage rates and prices. If the wage earner gets more dollars and prices remain unchanged, his purchasing power is expanded. If he gets the same number of dollars and prices decline, his purchasing power is expanded. But it can be expanded only by increasing wages in comparison to prices.

Second, an increase of wage rates as compared with prices depends fundamentally upon increasing the efficiency of production. Only thus will the means be available with which to pay higher real wages—provide more goods and services.

Building the Constitution

The eleventh of a semi-weekly series describing the proceedings of the Constitutional Convention, held 150 years ago.

PHILADELPHIA, July 10, 1787.

THE many troubles of the convention which is trying to write a Constitution for the 13 states were increased materially today by the abrupt departure of two of New York's three delegates, Judge Robert Yates and John Lansing. As Alexander Hamilton, New York's other delegate, has not attended the convention for a fortnight, the fifth most populous state, with its 340,000 inhabitants, is now without representation.

The situation with respect to the New York delegates reflects both dissension within the delegation, which was chosen last winter by the New York Legislature, and the collective opposition of the three members, for different reasons, to the trend of the convention. No one takes seriously the explanation that today's defection was to enable the departing delegates to attend the opening of the courts in New York.

Hamilton, who is only 30 years old, doubtless the strongest nationalist to come to the convention, left in mortification when it became evident that every vote of the delegation on an important issue would be split with Lansing, 32 years old, and Yates, 49, voting against him. Yates, who is widely known for his incisive anti-British articles, written under the pen name of Rough Hewer, has opposed even the revision of the Articles of Confederation. It is known he will be against ratification of a constitution for a national government, should differences be patched up enough to submit one.

Lansing, a former Mayor of Albany, likewise has favored continuing the broken-down Articles of Confederation, but made less impression on the convention in doing so. Not once during the six weeks of his attendance did he take the floor for a speech. His most notable action was to join with Capt. Jonathan Dayton of New Jersey, youngest delegate, to ask the convention to reverse the Committee of the Whole's vote for proportional representation in both branches of the national Legislature. This motion precipitated the crisis over the basis of representation which deadlocked the convention for two weeks.

Departure of the New Yorkers is in part made up for by the belated arrival yesterday of Daniel Carroll, Maryland's third delegate. His presence means that Maryland's vote will be cast definitely on the compromise plan reported July 5 by the Franklin committee. Up to now, the Maryland vote has been evenly divided, Martin Luther holding to the small-state point of view and Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer favoring a strong nationalist government. Carroll is expected to side with Jenifer and thus tip the scales in the Maryland delegation for a constitution with centralized powers.

Gen. Washington, president of the convention, is much disappointed at the strife among the delegates. Writing today to Hamilton to ask him to return, the late Revolutionary commander said he doubted whether the convention could have a favorable result and that he repented "having had any agency in the business." He described those who oppose a "strong and energetic government" as "narrow-minded politicians" or under the influence of "local views." For relief from the convention's wrangling, the hero of Valley Forge will join a comic opera dinner party arranged for tonight's performance of "Love in a Camp; or, Patrick in Prussia."

S E C EXCORIATES FRISCO SET-UP IN REORGANIZATION

Asserts Bankers and Old Management Sought to Dominate Protective Committees.

REPORT SUGGESTS CHANGES IN LAW

Seeks to Be Sure Those in Fiduciary Posts Have No Interests Adverse to Those of Investors.

The reorganization proceeding of the Frisco Railroad has been marked by the Securities and Exchange Commission as salient evidence of need for reform in the practices of so-called protective committees.

In a voluminous report issued recently on its study of the activities and personnel of reorganization and "protective" committees, the commission devotes considerable space to the recent financial history of the Frisco in supporto f its thesis that too often the managements of financially distressed corporations have an interest in such committees contrary to interests of the bondholders and other creditors.

The reorganization managers of the Frisco, the commission's report says flatly, were selected by the management and New York bankers for the railroad and included representatives of the management and the bankers. It adds that some of them now are defendants in litigation seeking more than $11,000,000 for the railroad estate.

Attempted Domination Charged.

An alleged attempt by the old management of the Frisco to dominate its reorganization was emphasized by Frank A. Thompson, counsel for Co-trustee John G. Lonsdale of the Frisco, in the inquiry in which h elaid the foundation for the $11,000,000 accounting suits. The petitions, pending in New York Supreme Court, seek an accounting from the New York bankers, Speyer & Co. and J. & W. Seligman & Co., and E. N. Brown, the Frisco's board chairman.

The report makes it clear that the Securities Commission is of the opinion that corpraton managements and bankers should be prohibited by law from dominating reorganizations and that "protective" committees should co-operate fully in any inquiry to recover assets for benefit of bondholders and creditors.

In caustic vein the report refers to testimony by James H. Brewster Jr., vice-president of the Aetna Life Insurance Co. and chairman of the Fort Scott bondholders' committee, and by Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and chairman of the committee for Frisco's consolidated bonds, that their committees had not considered it necessary to aid in Thompson's inquiry.

"Elected by Bankers."

Quoting Ecker as having said it had not occurred to him that there was "any co-operation which would be helpful," the report says: "It is not surprising that such philosophy should persist in this situation when it is realized that the Frisco readjustment (reorganization) managers and protective committees were elected by the management and bankers for the road."

Noting that Ecker conceded that recovery on accounting suits, such as were filed later, would benefit bondholders represented by the committees, the report adds: "These committees did not encourage or assist in the investigation—it mighe be unrealistic to expect that they would" for "the self-interest of a number of the readjustment managers, the head and front of the various committees, was involved."

Basis of Suits.

The accounting suits are based on stock purchases for the Frisco by Borwn and the New York bankers, in which it is charged they used a trust relationship to control the Frisco's financial policy, before the receivership in 1932, for their own gain. Thompson's inquiry disclosed that purchases of large blocks of shares of the Rock Island Railroad and the Gulf, Mobile & Northern Railroad, resulted, through a market drop, in a large paper loss to the Frisco and a profit of about $2,000,000 to the bankers. Details of the inquiry have been printed in the Post-Dispatch.

Criticism is made also of the so-called Mellon committee, which solicited deposit of Frisco prior lien and consolidated bonds after the readjustment managers put forward the first reorganization plan, later abandoned, in July, 1932.

What's in a Name?

The commission's report refers to testimony by several witnesses that they thought Harold E. Mellon of Boston, variously described in testimony as an ink salesman and a dealer in investment securities, was selected as chairman of the committee because his surname was the same as that of Andrew Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury.

Robert T. Swaine of the New York law firm, which represented the readjustment managers, is quoted as having testified: "They used the name Mellon because there was a man named Mellon who was, at that time at least, well and favorably known throughout the United

This was denied by Harold Mellon, who said he was not an ink salesman but a dealer in securities who represented some Frisco bondholders before formation of the committee.

Recommends Legislation.

The commission's report points out also that another member of the Mellon committee was "Henry Carter, St. Louis," who had the same surname as W. Frank Carter of St. Louis, a director of the Frisco.

However, the report continues, "it is not clear whether Mr. Mellon (Harold) and Mr. Carter (Henry) were selected as members of the committee because of their surnames" although "the record leaves the distinct impression that Mr. Mellon was not familiar with the Frisco road and its reorganization problems, or with the work and problems of protective committees."

In its report, addressed to Congress, the Securities Commission recommends legislation requiring members of committees to qualify with the commission to provide greater assurance "that those who act in fiduciary or representative capacities are free from adverse interests and appropriate to themselves only those discretionary powers necessary or desirable for protection of investors." The report is in two printed volumes containing 1521 pages.

ST. LOUIS UNIVERSITY TO OPEN NEW SCHOOL

Courses in Education and Social Sciences Will Begin This Autumn.

Inauguration of a new branch of St. Louis University, the School of Education and Social Sciences, which will prepare undergraduates for teaching and social work, was announced yesterday by the Rev. H. B. Crimmins, S. J., president of the university.

The new school, which will open in September, is designed to supplant the former School of Education and the undergraduate, preprofessional section of the School of Social Service. The latter school, in accordance with the recommendations of the American Association of Schools of Social Work, will no longer offer an undergraduate curricumlum in social work. All courses in the social field will be conducted on the graduate level and will require a bachelor's degree for admission.

The social science division of the new school will, however, offer a bachelor's degree with a strong background of social studies in its curriculum as the most desirable preparation for the graduate courses in social work. Training in the social sciences for individuals interested in working with welfare organizations will also be made available.

The Division of Education will continue to offer the bachelor's degree to students who wish to prepare themselves for a teaching career. Both divisions of the new school will admit men and women students.

Dr. Leo R. Kennedy, formerly of Creighton University, Omaha, will be dean of the school. The Rev. Wilfred M. Mallon, S. J., has been appointed regent of the new school and of the Junior Corporate Colleges of the university.

DIVORCES ANTHROPOLOGIST

Wife Charges Grand Nephew of Marshall Field With Desertion.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Mrs. Elizabeth Sturges Field, 32 years old, was granted a divorce today by Judge Philip J. Finnegan from Henry Field, 35, assistant curator of anthropology at the Field Museum of Natural History. She charged desertion.

Mrs. Field is the daughter of Mrs. Hollister Sturges of New York. Field is a grand nephew of the first Marshall Field. They were married Jan. 19, 1929.

Letters to Editor Spice Soviet Papers words of his letter to the editor, "but give a fellow a chance to pick his own plays!"

The paper had an editorial note set in two columns saying that this "outrageous practice" must stop—and it did.

Nor are all the letters of the complaining kind. A recent issue of Pravda, authoritative organ of the Communist Party (with a circulation of more than 3,000,000 contained a letter headed, "In Defense of Latin." The writer of the letter, M. Vinogradov, expressed satisfaction with an editorial calling for greater interest in the study of foreign languages—particularly English—and took the occasion to suggest that the study of Latin be included in high school curricula. Not only does a knowledge of Latin facilitate the study of modern languages, the writer argued, but it is indispensable in the study of law, philosophy, science and particularly medicine. He concluded with a plea to the Department of Education to consider his suggestion.

Uses Complaint Book.

Valodya Putan is a serious-minded, book-loving architect. As soon as a de luxe edition of "The Work of Moscow Architects" was announced he subscribed to it. The other day he heard that a copy of the edition was available in a bookshop on Sverdlovsk Square, and hustled over to see what it looked like. His disappointment is recounted in a vigorous letter in the Vechernaya Moskva, headed, "In a Bookshop which Boasts of Cultured Service." Putan's request to be shown the book brought a blunt refusal from the manager, who expressed a fear that the book might be soiled in the process. "This reply," Putan reports, "not only surprised but insulted me."

But the irate architect knew his rights and promptly demanded the complaint book, in which he recorded the incident for all and sundry to see, including representatives of the Central Publishing House. Whose face will be red then? Architect Putan probably muttered to himself as he described in painful detail his set-to with the book dealer, and plotted the letter to the Vechernaya Moskva!

Letters of Every Sort.

All kinds of letters . . . Reader Lozovskaya, having heard and enjoyed the Georgian Opera company on its recent visit to Moscow, suggests a monthly hook-up from Tiflis. She calls upon the All-Union Radio Committee to take note of her suggestion and adds significantly that she thinks it is a grand idea and means to follow it up. Prof. A. B. Goldenweiser of the Moscow Conservatory of Music, who taught several of the prize winners at the recent international piano competition in Warsaw, writes to Izvestia, suggesting an international music contest in Moscow for competing quartets and soloists in programs from Tchaikovsky, Borodin, Glinka and other famous classical Russian composers.

Citizen Labochkin, director of the Moscow Information Bureau feeling that the public has a right to know, writes to one of the papers that "in Moscow, as throughout the U. S. S. R., there is no unemployment."

Describing the work of the 100 information booths in his charge in the red capital, Labochkin reports that 38,000 people were placed on jobs during the last year. Requests come mostly from factories and building construction jobs. Individuals paying 20 kopeks for the service are told where there is work nearer home, and farmers coming to Moscow during off seasons are directed to factory managers avid for men to guide machines.

"We even get requests," writes Labochkin, "for technicians on television!"

NEW YORK MAYORALTY FIGHT GROWS INTENSE

Election Four Months Away—Tammany Seeks Man to Beat La Guardia.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The city's mayoralty election is four months off but the campaign already is taking on the appearance of a major political contest.

Both as a popular reaction to national issues, including relief, and as a strategic lever in the 1938 congressional and 1940 presidential elections, the New York campaign is considered important politically.

Fiorello H. La Guardia, Fusion incumbent, started things off this week by saying he would seek the Republican nomination. He hopes to be the first anti-Tammany candidate in the city's history to succeed himself. La Guardia was swept into office wearing the Republican label, but backed by a complex anti-Tammany coalition, just after the disclosures of the Seabury investigation. This week he was asked by several prominent Republicans to seek the Republican nomination again. After he said he would, another Republican group got ready, behind the scenes, to come out in open opposition to him on the ground that his public policies had not been Republican.

LaGuardia Seeks Blanket Support.

The Mayor followed his first announcement with a promise to try to get the nomination of all parties, including the American labor and the Democratic.

La Guardia has been a vocal supporter of President Roosevelt and the New Deal, but he is opposed by the local Democratic organizations.

The five County Democratic leaders of the city several weeks ago selected United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, New Deal supporter, as the candidate who would have the best chance to beat La Guardia, but Senator Wagner declined.

Manhattan's borough president, Samuel Levy, announced he would seek the nomination. About 30 other candidates were proposed. But the field is narrowing as the bitterness increases.

Grover Whalen, Police Commissioner of Jimmy Walker days and now head of the New York 1939 World's Fair, was suggested as a compromise candidate, but said: "I could not be induced to run for Mayor."

Farley's Protege.

James A. Farley's protege, Democratic Bronx leader, Edward Flynn, suggested former Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney as another compromise. Mulrooney, now is State Corrections Commissioner.

Tammany leader James T. Dooling is reported to have again urged former Gov. Alfred E. Smith to run, although Smith refused earlier to enter the race.

Dooling still has a favorite, Supreme Court Justice William T. Collins, now on his vacation in Massachusetts, whose friends say he will run if asked. But the three pro New Deal county leaders of the Bronx, Brooklyn and Queens, are said to be dubious of Judge Collins' friendship with Smith, who has openly criticised the New Deal.

The five county leaders, who have adjourned for the week-end to meet again Monday, have discussed one other candidate. He is former Supreme Court Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney. Mahoney was the original sponsor of Senator Wagner. He is an ardent New Dealer, and an admirer of LaGuardia. Mahoney's platform would differ from LaGuardia's in one respect. He believes an efficient local Democratic organization would greatly benefit the city. Mahoney has been outspoken in criticising Tammany leaders "for putting the organization where it is today."

MONETARY PACT EXPECTED TO AID TRADE WITH CHINA

Treasury Officials Also Say Exchange for Gold Will Further American Silver Program.

U. S. STILL SHORT OF ONE-THIRD RATIO

Stocks of White Metal Now Total $2,560,000,000 Against $12,300,000,000 in Gold.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Treasury officials said today the new Chinese-American monetary agreement would serve the double purpose of furthering this country's silver program and promoting trade between the two countries.

The silver program, embodied in the 1934 Purchase Act, directs the Treasury to buy the white metal until silver equals one-third of gold holdings, or until it reaches the monetary price of $1.29 an ounce. About 1,000,000,000 ounces of silver have been acquired under the act, but the Treasury still is far short of the projected gold-silver ratio.

While silver bars have piled up in Treasury vaults, large imports from abroad have resulted in a simultaneous swift growth in the gold holdings. Gold stocks now total about $12,300,000,000, and silver about one-fifth of this figure.

The Chinese-American monetary agreement provides that China will buy substantial amounts of this country's gold, selling the Treasury silver in return.

Proponents of the silver program have argued it would accelerate business activity, because the Treasury may issue certificates against silver acquisitions, increasing the supply of currency.

Some economists, however, have urged abandonment of the program on the ground it had an inflationary effect and placed an unnecessary drain on the Federal cash box.

Officials said today silver certificates probably would be issued against metal acquired from China. They added, however, that no decision had been reached. Any issuance of silver certificates would tend to increase excess bank reserves, or lendable funds.

They said the understanding would insure a stable currency from China, and that this, in itself, would aid trade. The United States now holds first position in China's foreign trade.

JEAN PICCARD WANTS TO TRY HIS NEW BALLOON THIS WEEK

Awaits Favorable Weather for Test of Clustered Rubber Bags of Sounding Type.

By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, Minn., July 10.—Dr. Jean Piccard awaited favorable weather today for an ascension in what he believes may be the forerunner of a new type stratosphere balloon.

The ground crew had its instructions. Hydrogen tanks were ready. Last minute fittings were being made to the open gondola, and 80 rubber balloons were ready to be filled.

A low pressure area, bringing cooler temperatures from the north Polar regions and calm air will be the signal for the night-time takeoff from Soldiers' Field, expected within a week.

Dr. Piccard will use four-foot sounding balloons, such as the Weather Bureau employs for observations, to lift him two or three miles into the air.

If he finds 80 balloons behave satisfactorily, he plans to construct a gigantic aircraft of 2000 balloons for exploration of the rarified air above six miles, where the stratosphere begins.

The rubber balloons can expand to 15 feet in diameter before they burst, Piccard said, thus displacing more air and giving greater lifting power in proportion to their weight than the cloth bags. But the thin material is not strong enough, and its cost would be prohibitive, to be used in large one-bag balloons. Hence the arrangement in two clusters of the small sounding balloons.

MAYORS PROTEST TO HORNER ON MINIMUM WAGE LAW

Inform Illinois Governor They Can't Pay Required Salaries for Policemen and Firemen.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 10.—Mayors of several cities protested to Gov. Horner today that they were financially unable to pay the minimum salaries to policemen and firemen provided in bills recently enacted into law.

Following a conference yesterday, the Mayors of Danville, Bloomington, Elgin, Galesburg, Quincy, Decatur, Aurora and Springfield sought to lay their troubles before the Governor, but he was unable to see them, owing to the stack of unread bills awaiting his consideration.

Gov. Horner has ocntended the communities have "adequate means" of increasing their tax levies.

Civil War in Spain Seen From the Inside

cal dissention has been quelled. The chief reason is the danger of massacre that attends every advance. But it also has been the conscious policy of the Spanish to remove politics from the army. This purpose has been admirably served by the Political Commissars, who resemble the Delegues aux Armees of Revolutionary France.

The average Political Commissar usually is a Spaniard, but sometimes a German, Frenchman or Hungarian. Some have been trained in Russia as propagandists and soldiers; they mediate between Anarchists, Communists and Socialists, not only to stop quarrels, but to discourage political discussion "up the line." Politics, not actually forbidden in the trenches, have been practically eliminated. Whether the Spanish army will be welded by these Commissars into the framework for national unity in a new Spain will depend on the outcome of the war.

Commissar Also Is a Comrade.

The Political Commissar is first to attack and last to retreat. He intervenes when there is a panic. He also holds back men who are too foolhardy.

He represents both officer and soldier. Unless he is a Brigade Commissar, he lives among the men and he knows who rates promotion. If men are needed for some dangerous or difficult task, he selects them. Often the Commissar puts the men's case before their commander, and he is present at courts-martial. He talks to men discovered with self-inflicted wounds and secures merciful treatment for them. Records show that most of those treated leniently after self-mutilation have become excellent soldiers. To the men, the Political Commissar is a comrade.

He also is an important link between the International Column and the Spanish troops. Despite the growing nationalism, the latter are devoted to the officers of the column. Sometimes they desert their units to serve under a foreigner.

The Legion of Strangers.

In many ways, the Column is unique; many joined for adventure or escape from domestic or emotional trouble, or because they were neurotic, or jealous of the generation that fought in the Great War, or to get a job. Many underrated the hardships; they have deserted by the hundreds.

But many joined out of sheer devotion to a cause. They are war-hardened elite—as true a band of heroes as any of storied fame.

Men of almost all nations march in the Column. The Swiss, formidable for their obstinacy and their fretful impatience when not attacking; the Poles, dashing and fearless; the English, who treat the war as a job to be done—and do it.

Bulgarians, who prefer the hand-grenade, resemble the Spanish "dynamiteros," who storm machine-guns with home-made grenades.

The French have the most deserters because it is easier for them to get home. Yet those who remain are of prodigious valour.

The Americans, an elite by reason of their sober courage, show keen intelligence. The Germans are the best the Fatherland can give and that is saying much. Many of them have been hardened by persecution and have much to avenge. But a vote would show the Italians as favorites; they combine chivalry and devotion with courage, resourcefulness and discipline There can be no doubt that the Italian is a first-rate fighting man.

Adventurers Turned Teachers.

The Column is now aiding the great education of the Loyalist Army. More epic qualities are giving way in "quiet" periods to patience and psychological insight. The Spaniards, quick to learn, but a peasant people unused to warfare, until recently thought it cowardly to take cover, thought drill absurd, and never cleaned a rifle. They must be taught patiently. Even now, the Loyalist is inclined to fire more shots than necessary, nor does he realize the importance of keeping even the barrel of his rifle clean. He likes to carry a rose or carnation in the muzzle.

Some of the officers of the Column are a whole education in themselves; there is Ludwig Renn, the author of "War." If he knows fear he never shows it. In the terrible battles of the first few months, when the Column was the only force which opposed the Rebel battalions and the Italian aeroplanes and tanks, Renn would encourage the weak and shame the timid; all felt stronger for his presence.

Now that he has been on a quiet front for some time, he radiates cheerfulness and efficiency—a German officer of the highest type, "a verray parfit gentil knight."

Kindergarten in the Trenches.

The International Column would provide subjects for a gallery of portraits, among them the picture of school teachers. The revolution has loosed many brutal instincts in Spain, but it has also released a passion for knowledge. There is great illiteracy amongst the Loyalists. In trench dugouts and sheltered spots schools are springing up. The men, taught chiefly by Spaniards who have been schoolmasters or clerks, learn to read and to write. They sit before blackboards, like children, with copybooks that might have—and perhaps have—come from kindergartens.

There are trench libraries with translations of Dickens, Mark Twain, Claude Farrere, a Fascist author. As one Loyalist explains, "We have so few books we cannot be particular."

Trench newspapers are turned out by duplicating machines, often with rough illustrations. Poems posted outside the "newspaper offices" reveal the literary skill, the rhythm and the emotion of the Spanish. In the evenings there is more rhythm—dancing accompanied by the clapping of hands and strange, wailful African melodies.

Court Debate Gets Off to Bitter Start

Opposition Senators had interrupted Roosevelt Senators in all sorts of ways whenever they thought they could embarrass the speakers. By making the point of order, Robinson, who is one of the most persistent violators of the rigid rule, acted to cut down the time used in debate.

Wheeler immediately countered by announcing that he would invoke another Senate rule, namely that he would object to all unanimous consent agreements to suspend the rules. This is the procedure by which less important legislation is enacted when other questions are before the Senate. If Wheeler carries out his threat no bill can be introduced, no memorials put into the record and no other legislation can be acted on while the court bill is before the Senate.

"It is too early for the administration to start using force," Wheeler told the Post-Dispatch.

"Unless Robinson agrees to an adjournment, which would give an opportunity for the usual routine business, no other question but the court will be allowed to come up in the Senate."

Fist Fight Expected.

The hostile spirit shown by Robinson and Wheeler was typical of the feeling that has pervaded the Senate chamber since Tuesday. Each day it has grown increasingly bitter and the press gallery is predicting at least one fist fight before the controversy is ended. Senator Logan of Kentucky tried to make the issue one of party loyalty, just as National Chairman Farley did several months ago, but the opposition was not impressed. Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania attacked Chief Justice Hughes as a clever politician and had to admit that he did not want Justice Brandeis to retire, although Justice Brandeis is the oldest member of the court. Senator Wheeler charged President Roosevelt with ingratitude for his failure to support the late Senator Bronson Cutting, and both Robinson and Guffey finally had to refuse to answer questions from the opposition.

The first week has been a catch-as-catch-can fight. Eye gouging and hitting in the clinches are almost certain to follow. Wounds may still be smarting in 1938 and 1940.

JAPANESE CAN'T SUE EMPEROR SO CITIZEN SUES HOUSEHOLD

Since 1908, He Has Been Trying to Get a Clear Title to Monument Site.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, July 10.—Emperor Hirohito, through the Imperial Household Department, is being sued by a Japanese citizen for the recovery of a plot of land, of which Fukushiro Kawamura of Aomori Prefecture claims partial ownership.

As no provision exists in Japan permitting the Emperor to appear as a defendant in an ordinary court, the suit is directed against "his majesty's household ministers." For the first time in the legal annals of the Empire a special tribunal will hear a case against the Crown.

Special tribunals in the past have dealt with criminal cases.

The plot of which Kawamura claims partial ownership is the site of a monument to one of the horses that drew the carriage of the Emperor Meiji when his majesty visited the Tohoku in 1867. It was erected by residents with money granted by the Emperor.

Kawamura first filed suit against the Imperial Household Department in 1908, after the Aomori prefectural authorities had prevented his erecting a fence around the plot. The prefecture maintained that it was Government land. Since then, there have been seven trials and appeals.

BOOK OF BABYLONIAN RECORDS

Yale Publishes Volume of Ancient Inscriptions.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 10.—Yale University announced today the publication of a book of original Babylonian inscriptions copied by hand directly from the original in cuneiform carved on hard stone. The book, edited by Prof. Ferris J. Stephens, curator of the Yale Babylonian collection, was published by the Yale University Press.

"The Kings commemorated their deeds," Prof. Stephens said, "by having them inscribed on stone monuments or clay tablets, cylinders or prisms. That they desired them to be preserved forever, is shown by the fact that often we read in a King's inscription 'should, in future days, any later Prince find this my inscription, may he respect it, and anoint it with oil, and set it up in its place again.' A terrible curse is pronounced against anyone who does not respect the monuments."

U. S. BATTLESHIPS TO BE ARMED WITH NINE 16-INCH GUNS

Hull Notifies World With 'Reluctance' That Efforts to Curb Armaments Have Failed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 10. — The State Department announced today that 16-inch guns will be mounted on the two battleships now being built.

The announcement said that "with the greatest reluctance" the United States has been obliged to conclude that other Governments will not maintain the 14-inch gun level, and that this country must therefore install bigger guns.

The 16-inch, naval officers said, will hurl an armor-piercing shell weighing approximately 2100 pounds a distance of roughly 17½ nautical miles.

They explained that the keels for the two battleships, described as under construction, had not actually been laid, although materials were being assembled. The new ships will be built at the New York and Philadelphia Navy Yards.

The State Department said:

"On April 1, 1937, in view of the fact that all the parties to the Treaty for the Limitation of Naval armaments of Feb. 6, 1922, had not accepted 14 inches as the limit of the caliber of guns on capital ships, under the London Naval Treaty, 1936, 16 inches automatically became the limit of the caliber of guns to be mounted on capital ships.

Sounded Out Governments.

"However, this Government, not wishing to leave a stone unturned in its efforts to maintain the limit of the caliber or guns on capital ships at the lower level, about June 1, on its own initiative, sounded out the Governments parties to the Washington Naval Treaty to ascertain whether they would be willing to maintain the limit of the caliber of guns on capital ships at 14 inches. At the same time, this Government, in line with its policy consistently followed of favoring the principle of a reduction of armaments, expressed its entire willingness faithfully to maintain the lower level.

"The Governments thus approached have now replied. Unfortunately, it is established that there is not a universal acceptance by the Washington naval powers of the limit of gun power at 14 inches.

"With the greatest reluctance, therefore, this Government has been obliged to conclude that all other governments have given no assurance of the maintenance of the 14-inch gun level. As a consequence, therefore, guns of a caliber of 16 inches will be mounted on the two new battleships for which appropriation has been made and on which construction has begun."

Japan Said "No."

Japan notified the United States and other signatories of the treaty some time ago that it would not be feasible for the Japanese Navy to confine itself to 14-inch guns.

Officials said the United States then opened negotiations with other signatories in the hope that an agreement could be reached under which all of the nations would pledge themselves in the future not to install guns of a greater caliber than 14 inches on any warships.

Secretary Hull's announcement today did not make any mention of what replies had been received from Great Britain, France or other interested nations.

The two new battleships to be built will be 35,000 tons, the limit under the existing naval pacts, and will be armed with nine 16-inch guns mounted in turrets of three guns. Naval authorities said the new battleships will be speedier, more heavily armed and better protected against submarines, enemy aircraft and other warships.

FIGURES ON LIVING COSTS OF FARM AND CITY FAMILIES

Rural Average $1612 a Year, Urban $1227, Survey in Nebraska Shows.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 10.—The low cost of living on the farm is one of the most important points in favor of rural life, it was shown recently by Miss Muriel Smith, home management specialist at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture.

A summary of 356 home account books kept by Nebraska city and farm wives disclosed it cost 61 town families an average of $1612 to live during the year, compared to a $1227 average for the farm families.

Food cost more for the city housewife, the summary disclosed with the average city family spending $333 for food compared to $206 for the farm wife.

House rents drove the city dweller's costs up considerably. Farm rent was figured at 9 per cent depreciation on the building. With this as a basis, the summary showed farm families averaged $160 for shelter, compared with $171 for the city family.

Fuel, light, water, telephone and automobile expenses run higher in the city, but expenditures for education, church, recreation, health and gifts were about even.

"Of Making Many Books"

EDITED BY JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Social Background For Psychiatry

THE BIOLOGY OF HUMAN CONFLICT. By Trigant Burrow, M. D., Ph. D. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

NEW ways of looking at human nature and new procedures in the treatment of human ills, whether physical or mental, have become sufficiently numerous to lose the flavor of novelty. One is inclined to wonder whether an author, who in his introduction emphasizes the originality of his approach, is not setting himself at a disadvantage on that very account. Certainly he is assuming responsibilities that are becoming increasingly difficult to discharge, and is exposing himself to the greater criticism, should he fail to justify his claims.

Dr. Burrow believes that he is prepared to meet this challenge. Accordingly he has formulated his solution with reference to the problem of maladjustment and neurosis. To him it seems that the situation confronting psychiatrists is much the same as that faced by the medical profession before discovery of the means by which infectious diseases are transmitted. Then treatment of individual cases availed nothing towards elimination of the disease, the victory being won only when physicians learned to correct health conditions in the community. Similarly, Dr. Burrow contends, any program of psychopathology which is concerned merely with treating individual cases of neurosis and insanity, without regard to their social implications, cannot hope to free the human race from these evils. Here, too, corrective measures which would embrace society at large are indicated.

As scientific director of a small group of individuals, Dr. Burrow has been engaged for some time in an experimental study of human adjustment in a controlled social order, the chief aim of which is to achieve an absolute minimum of artificiality in all relationships. Unfortunately, however, the author's theories represent a curious combination of psychoanalysis and behaviorism which in no way seems to justify, or to be justified by, whatever real merit the experiment itself possesses. It is regrettable, therefore, that his exposition of these theories occupies so large a part of the book. Psychoanalysis, happily, seems to be dying fast, and behaviorism of the "conditioned reflex type" is already dead, so far as psychology is concerned. Consequently it is a pity that so much of both should have been incorporated into Dr. Burrow's work.

An Exceptional Adventure

RETRACING GENGHIS KHAN. By John A. Herrmann and Cecil Robert Borg. (Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., Boston.)

THE authors of this exceptional story of adventure met by arrangement in the Grand Eastern Hotel, Calcutta, during September, 1928, and decided that they wanted something more than India could give, something to test their courage, to open the heart of the Orient to them, to bring Kipling to life.

Afghanistan seemed to be the answer. Through it in Biblical times ran a well-travelled highway from Mesopotamia and Persia to India. Alexander passed that way; and in the thirteenth century Genghis Khan added the country to his conquest that stretched from the China Sea to the Dnieper. When the overland routes to the East were abandoned, the country was forgotten and has remained an untamed part of the past.

The young adventurers kept Afghanistan a secret from their worrying families, made arrangements for passports and started up into "the blue" with a native servant, an Oakland touring car, 1900 pounds of baggage, and advice from everyone they met not to cross the Khyber. One of their many difficulties arose from the fact that they had only a few weeks before winter rains would turn the vast territory into a morass, and the Oriental sense of timelessness caused delays at every stop. The Emir, Amanullah, was beginning to introduce Western ideas into the country, and the tribes, smoldering with resentment, overthrew the Government in a bloody revolution just three weeks after the authors had crossed the border. In addition, they had to pass through the mountains of the Durani tribe, whom the English have fought and feared ever since their occupation of India. These audacious young men were the first to drive an automobile through that hostile and almost trackless country, unconquered even by England, avoided even by Halliburton.

The story is told with a naive lack of conceit. The authors do not take themselves very seriously and seem to be amazed at their achievement. "We have pondered long on how it was that we—of all people—happened to make Afghanistan. We decided that it was our very insignificance that got us through. . . . Lack of importance was our only virtue."

WAR MADNESS. By Stephen and Joan Raushenbush. (National Home Library Foundation, Washington, D. C.)

A SPECTACULAR CAREER

BLOOD ON THE MOON. The Autobiography of Linton Wells. (Houghton Mifflin Co., New York.)

READERS who enjoyed Vincent Sheean's "Personal History" and Negley Farson's "Way of a Transgressor," will find in Linton Wells' autobiography, "Blood on the Moon," another entertaining chronicle of a foreign correspondent's adventures.

Wells began his spectacular career in journalism during the 1911 republican revolt against the Manchus in China, where he attached himself to Gen. Huang Hsing in the Yangtze Valley. In the 25 years that followed he circled the world nine times, reporting revolutions in China and Russia, insurrections in Mexico and Nicaragua, the enthronement of an emperor in Japan and of a tribal chief in Samoa..

In 1914 Wells followed the campaign of Gen. Obregon, commander of the Federal army in Vera Cruz, against Villa and Zapata. Several years later he traveled thousands of miles across Siberia, suffering privations of cold and hunger, to interview Kolchak in retreat with his White forces. Later, in Nicaragua, he covered Gen. Moncada's war on the Conservative armies.

Wells apparently lingered nowhere waiting for adventure. Finding a locality dull, he went out looking for excitement. Early in the 1920's he achieved the first non-stop auto drive from Los Angeles to New York, and later made a record circumnavigation of the globe.

Of timely interest is his intimate portrait of David Windsor, self-deposed monarch of England, to whose suite he was attached during the Prince of Wales' tour of the United States in 1924.

A number of Wells' stories are gems of journalistic experience, told simply and entertainingly.

Though lacking the sustained high interest of either Vincent Sheean's or Negley Farson's book, "Blood on the Moon" frequently rises to high points of suspense.

Achieved Aims Without Trying

TWENTY YEARS AS MILITARY ATTACHE. By T. Bentley Mott. (Oxford University Press, New York.)

THE Virginia district in which the author was born was rich in ancestors and connections but poor in pocket, and such was its educational level that not a single applicant since the Civil War had succeeded in passing a West Point entrance examination. It was in a spirit of gloom rather than enthusiasm, therefore, that its congressman wrote some two score voters of position asking if they could suggest "the name of a gentleman's son whose antecedents indicate him to be of the material out of which good officers are made, one, too, who can graduate." The successful candidate was T. Bentley Mott.

The career that followed is pictured as having been singularly happy, and is narrated in commendably crisp prose. Three things the author wanted to be: Instructor in tactics at his alma mater, aide-de-camp on Gen. Merritt's staff, and military attache in Paris. He achieved them all in that order without "even trying," never doubting he might have been commander-in-chief in Pershing's place had he so wished it. The War Department sent him at various times to St. Petersburg, London, Rome, Constantinople and Berne, and he was equally brilliant on the social side, the Sultan of Turkey admiring him for the splendor of his uniform and the J. P. Morgans being glad to call him friend. He met the late Czar Nicholas tete-a-tete, and was selected officially to translate the memoirs of the French Marshals Joffre and Foch.

One is reminded of a poem that Siegfried Sassoon wrote and published some 15 years ago. In it the memoirs of a World War statesman are dissected to show that, not the motives, the passions and the agonies of the great conflict are revealed, but the hours of wining and dining, and the list of honors bestowed. This would be a true criticism, with certain reservations, of the present book. "The Germans were beaten by a fiercer energy than their own," is the only explanation of the triumph of the Allies. And why did America allow herself to be drawn in? "We seem to be born that way—pay first and think afterward." But chapters such as "What a Military Attache Does" and "Pershing and Foch" do shed light on little understood but important military matters.

Detective Fiction In New Form

A FEW months ago "File on Bolitho Blane" was published. It represented a new idea in detective fiction—a police dossier complete with actual clues. The second Crimefile, here noted, is even better than the first and indicates that a legitimate and entertaining form of the puzzle-poser has been developed.

The author's knowledge of the New York police system has enabled her to give the book a remarkable degree of authenticity. Meticulous attention to details creates such an atmosphere of reality that it is hard to believe this is not an actual police dossier. Even the typed reports show the customary typographical quirks, and the paper taken from the waste basket actually is crumpled.

Unquestionably, detective fiction in such a form is a sporting proposition. It is not possible for the author to confuse the reader with pages of irrelevant writing and false emphasis, nor can the reader pick out the kind-faced shy man in the second chapter as the villain because he looks so innocent. The relationship between the reader and the author will have to be strictly on the up and up, and both will have to think. This should encourage readers who have never recovered their faith in authors of murder yarns since Agatha Christie, with "Murder in a Calais Coach," disillusioned them by a solution that was distinctly not cricket.

Life on a Pioneer Plantation

DEEP SUMMER. By Gwen Bristow. (Thomas Y. Crowell Co., New York.)

AFTER the French and Indian War, the territory of West Florida, now a part of Louisiana, was ceded to the British crown. Here King George made generous land grants to war veterans. The new land was rapidly settled by adventurers from the English seaboard colonies, and the plantation system flourished. "Deep Summer" is the story of Philip Larne and Judith Sheramy, two young people who came west seeking their fortunes and finding them. Philip, the second son of a South Carolina planter, is gay, adventurous and ambitious. Judith is a prim New Englander, demurely 15 when the book begins. These two, fundamentally opposite in many ways, are alike in their pioneer vision. Ardieth, their plantation, prospers. There are great staple crops, indigo, cane, cotton, gangs of slaves, a manor house. There are tall sons and a lovely daughter. At the close of the book, the aristocratic, powerful Larne dynasty is firmly established. In one generation every vestige of the wilderness has disappeared.

Miss Bristow knows her Louisiana background. Accurately she indicates the conglomerate nationalities, the agricultural techniques, the Creole culture. Though she is in general preoccupied with the moonlight-and-roses aspect of the deep South, she also draws in the shadows, the desperate plight of the poor whites, the oppressing reality of slavery. As an accurate picture of plantation life, "Deep Summer" has much to recommend it. Its details are correct, its economics sound, its bias understandable.

The book, unfortunately, attempts to do too much in too little room. A dynastic novel is bound to deal with family ramifications, and Miss Bristow allows herself no time fully to draw her minor characters.

Scientific Study Of Fascism

THE FASCIST: HIS STATE AND HIS MIND. By E. B. Ashton. (William Morrow & Co., New York.)

MR. ASHTON has applied the method of scientific research to a subject which is usually considered a matter of opinion, and sometimes almost of religious faith. The result justifies the method and might serve as model for many commentators of narrower partisanship. It is a clear, comprehensive and orderly discussion of Fascism, in the general lines of its historical development as well as in its specific application to European countries today.

Mr. Ashton begins by rehearsing the main arguments that have been used in defense of the Fascist hierarchy, and provides definitions of democracy, Marxian socialism and Fascism that will be welcome to those who have never known exactly what distinguishes one from the others. According to Mr. Ashton, the three largest elements integral in modern world society are civil liberty, collectivism and capitalism. In each of the three social orders now available, one of these elements has been discarded. Fascism has thrown out civil liberty, Marxian socialism has done away with capitalism, and our democracies are obliged to forego collectivism. These terms are all the more confusing because they are used in new relationships, but their analysis is extended and penetrating. The rest of the book is devoted to a consideration of the actual structure and functioning of the Fascist state, in both its internal government and its foreign relations.

Few controversial statements appear in "The Fascist: His State and His Mind"; instead, the material may be verified for the most part by factual reference. There is little to arouse the political passions of any reader, and much to help him to create his own detached and informed opinion.

Encyclopedic Work On American Birds

THE BOOK OF BIRDS. Edited by Gilbert Grosvenor and Alexander Wetmore. 2 Vols. (National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

THERE has been no lack of excellent books on birds of the various sections of the North American continent, but the work here noted is the first to present authoritative studies of all major species of birds throughout the United States and Canada.

The appearance of any comprehensive, integrated study of the whole continent's bird-life, even though the descriptions were brief and the illustrations merely adequate, would be a notable publishing event. But the searching scholarship revealed in these two volumes, totaling 738 pages, together with the fascinating nature of the material, the excellent writing, the superb illustrations and the generous manner in which every detail of the work has been conceived and executed make this one of the few unquestionably memorable publications of the year.

The most obvious feature, naturally, is the illustrations. There are 204 full-page reproductions of paintings by the distinguished artist-naturalist, Maj. Allan Banks, showing 950 birds in true colors at various stages of their growth. Eastern and Western varieties are pictured side by side that the student may readily compare the different forms. In addition there are 228 photographs, mostly by Arthur A. Allen, presenting various aspects of bird life, and 17 maps record the latest developments in the study of bird migration.

There are 37 chapters of text, dealing with the identifying characteristics, range, breeding habits and behavior of 633 species and numerous sub-varieties, each chapter being the work of a recognized authority in the field under consideration. Expertness in specialists often connotes dullness for the layman, but these men have gained their knowledge at first hand, and as a result they have interesting adventures to relate and much that is strange and wonderful to tell. Few readers of ordinary intelligence, whether previously interested in birds or not, would be likely to be bored by any chapter chosen at random.

Ordinarily such a set would be sold by subscription at a price prohibitive for most people; but this encyclopedic work is offered to the public at cost—about the price of the latest fictional thriller — the National Geographic Society having undertaken the task in keeping with its fundamental purpose, the increase and popularization of geographic knowledge.

The editor, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, is president of the society, and his assistant, Dr. Alexander Wetmore, is assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

REALIZATION. A Philosophy of Poetry. By Hugh McCarron, S. J. (Sheed & Ward, New York.)

A discussion of poetry as a means of realizing the wonders of the Great Truth.

Events of 1936 Interpreted

THE UNITED STATES IN WORLD AFFAIRS IN 1936. (Published for the Council on Foreign Relations by Harper & Bros., New York.)

BELIEVING that there was need for a "publication that would cover middle ground not then occupied either by the daily newspaper or by the more conventional histories written a long time after the event," the Council on Foreign Relations provided in 1931 for the publication of an annual history of American foreign relations. This is the fifth volume in that series.

In 1936 the peace system constructed in the post-war years broke down completely. Dictators vied in violating treaties and breaking pledges. Japan denounced the Washington and London treaties and began the naval and fortification race in the Pacific. Mussolini defied the League and conquered Ethiopia. Hitler repudiated the Locarno pact.

While the rest of the world raced to rearm for the inevitable war, America, determined to keep out of war at all costs, discussed the effectiveness and feasibility of neutrality legislation. Contributing to the demand for such legislation were the disclosures of the Nye Munitions Investigation Committee.

Although determined not to become involved in European quarrels, the American Government did attempt to lower the barriers preventing the free flow of world trade. Secretary Hull's reciprocal trade agreements and the Anglo-French-American monetary agreements contributed significantly in that direction. Likewise, the Pan-American Peace Conference did much to improve the relations of the American republics.

Contemporary history is difficult to write. It is almost impossible to see events in their historical perspective and important information is not always available. Despite these difficulties, Shepardson and Scroggs have written an ordered, accurate and brief account of these events. Their interpretation of current events, although it may be found inaccurate later, seems to be one of the best now available.

WILLIAM PENN, a Topical Biography. By William I. Hull. (Oxford University Press, New York.)

WILLIAM I. HULL, who is the Howard M. Jenkins Professor of Quaker History at Swarthmore College, here presents the end-product of years of painstaking scholarship which is compendious and final. He calls it a "topical" biography of William Penn; that is to say, he has not compiled a continuous account of Penn, but has broken down his subject into sub-topics of significance and so fitted them together that all of the known facts about Penn are included. The treatment of each subtopic is sequential and complete. Against the disadvantages of backtracking and overlapping, the advantages of this scheme are not striking.

EXPOUNDING THE OBVIOUS

ORCHIDS ON YOUR BUDGET. By Marjorie Hillis. (The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

PAST master in the art of cleverly expounding the obvious though Miss Hillis may be, there is really nothing here that has not been expounded often enough for any sensible adult to know it by heart. Yet an undeniable cleverness and sophistication serve to dress up the old material and make it acceptable to women who would like to have a flair for creating something out of nothing.

It is to these people that Miss Hillis addresses herself, with the advice to add a dash of sherry to the stew or to get to work with a can of paint and a bolt of chintz in the living room and not to be downed by the dinginess of poverty. Such beguiling proverbs as "Whatever your lot in life, it's just a challenge to your resourcefulness," and assurances that some of the best people now live in reconditioned garages managing to give chic little parties, abound as typical examples of the contents. Such basic economies as creating a wardrobe around one color, keeping the house and furniture in repair, serving gin instead of whisky, taking adequate care of the face and figure and paying the bills promptly are insisted upon—all of which is a part of what most women know, or should know, already.

After reading this volume, go-getters will pat themselves on the back, while their less energetic sisters will sigh that it may be all very well for some people, but—. And on the whole, each will be just where she started, because no matter how entertainingly she has said it, Miss Hillis has really had nothing important to say.

Romance in England During Regency

THE TALISMAN RING. By Georgette Heyer. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., Garden City, New York.)

THE plot of this romance, with its scene in England during the Regency, is not unfamiliar. In fact, it is an old campaigner, and for that very reason strong and serviceable, leaving the author free to write around it an excellent book.

Perhaps one reason for its excellence is that the characters of the piece are real people. Historical romancers often are so absorbed in creating atmosphere and achieving accuracy in their details as to forget that it is the novelist's duty to create character. This author, happily, has contrived to do all three. The lovely and wilful Eustacie, who didn't want to marry Sir Tristram; her romantic cousin, Ludovic; the cautious and not at all romantic Sir Tristram, and the blithely imbecilic Sir Hugh, who never did learn what it was all about; they are all persons rather than types, and singularly engaging persons.

Historically, the book is no doubt accurate enough—for its own purpose, at least. (It is, indeed, something of an education in eighteenth century slang). Unobtrusively, without resorting to "Od's bodkins" or "S'blood," it gives the reader something of the feeling of a past age, that is to say, it distills an "atmosphere."

Such an array of virtues may give the impression that the tale is of the deadly serious variety. It is not. Indeed, it is pure comedy. The author has mixed with the other elements of the story a liberal quantity of her own wit, and the result is eminently praiseworthy. James Branch Cabell has said of Congreve that it does not much matter how his characters behave, so that they talk their very best. Georgette Heyer would seem to hold this theory, and the conversational best of her characters is something very amusing.

Wooing and Warring In Range Country

BARBED WIRE EMPIRE. By Will Ermine. (Green Circle Books, New York.)

FOR Rusty Maxwell the attempt by the South Western Pacific Railroad to cut his range in two was a challenge in which he readily recognized the hand of his old enemy, Ben Sharp. Over a domain of almost an entire Texas county, fenced in by barbed wire and nearly as large as some states, Rusty had reigned with only Ben Sharp's interference to trouble him—and now a railroad.

There could be only one outcome of the railroad's stubborn advance. Armed conflict was the answer. With the 2M outfit rode Lance Kincaid, whom Rusty had raised and who would some day own the huge ranch. At the head of the railroad's hired gunmen was Buck Ewing, ruthless and notorious gunfighter. That Ewing and Kincaid would clash was inevitable, for the love of beautiful Donita Sharp was Ewing's obsession.

The smashing of the 2M fence was the signal for guns to bark. But even though the railroad had gained a footing on 2M territory, Rusty was determined that he would fight it across every inch of his land. And fight he did with every resource at hand; but the fight went beyond Rusty, for Kincaid inherited the ranch and the battle.

To change the course of the life of Lance Kincaid had come the love of Valerie Pickett, daughter of Jube Pickett, president of the railroad. The fulfilment of that love seemed hopeless when Lance was charged with the murder of Trace Pickett, Valerie's brother.

Mr. Ermine's story sheds a new light on the Southwest cattle country. His style is smooth and flowing and his characters are convincing. He is already well known for his Western fiction which includes "Prairie Smoke" and "Wind River Outlaw."

THE TRAILER FOR PLEASURE AND BUSINESS. By W. A. Kimball and W. L. Larned. (Whittlesey House, New York.)

Another informative work on the trailer; giving essential information on the selection, equipment, operation and upkeep of the home on wheels.

Said To Be Best Book on China

MY COUNTRY AND MY PEOPLE. By Lin Yutang. (Reynal & Hitchcock, New York.)

"THAT seems to me the only way of looking at China," says Lin Yutang in the prologue to "My Country and My People," "by searching, not for the exotic but for the common human values, by penetrating beneath the superficial quaintness of manners and looking for real courtesy . . . by observing the boys' naughtiness and studying the girls' day-dreams." Being himself a Chinese scholar, whose thoroughly Western education has served only to strengthen his affection for his country at the same time that it has given him the detachment necessary to understand and interpret the Occidental conception of the Orient, he was eminently fitted for the task he set himself of writing, in English, for an Occidental public, a book about modern China.

In this book, Dr. Lin Yutang gives his interpretation of his country — of its philosophy, its customs, its government, its drama, poetry and art, its ideals, its humor, and its "art of living." There is always in his discussions at least an implied comparison between China and the West, and, while he is most meticulous in giving Western civilization its due and points with his delightful humor equally to the follies of both East and West, there is more than a lurking suspicion in a Western reader's mind at the end of the book that our civilization is alarmingly infantile in its understanding of the true values of life.

As regards the truth of the author's interpretations of old China and modern China, a reviewer with no personal intimate knowledge of China can only accept the word of others who do know the country. Pearl Buck, who has written the introduction for this book, calls it "the truest, the most profound. the most complete . . . book yet written about China," while Nathaniel Peffer, who has himself written a good deal about the Orient and who is recognized as an authority on the subject, says of it: "(It) is the best book on China in the English language. I recommend it to all who want a true and sensitively perceived picture of China."

—Doris Talbot Hetlage.

Hubby Was Not Attuned

LATE HARVEST. By Silby Croly Hanchett. (Robert Speller Publishing Corporation, New York.)

WRITTEN by a woman about a woman, this first novel holds the reader's interest because of its sympathetic insight into a woman's life.

Sara Littlefield, married at 30 and settled with her husband on a thriving farm, hoped that her life would follow her carefully laid plans for a husband, children and a well-kept house. Her husband seemingly did not attune himself to the high excitement her nature demanded; the children were denied her, and her home did not exercise all of her energy. Congenial and pleasant, but with a sense of inner communion that set her apart from her neighbors, she made herself useful at the church picnics and suppers that marked the town's social life. When an opportunity to teach offered, she grasped it eagerly and her interest and success filled her life with fresh zest.

The advent of a new principal and a mutual interest in progressive education kindled a fire which wasn't recognized by the two until they were almost consumed. Faced by a decision which involved flight with a man 15 years her junior or a reluctant return to her husband's bed and board, Sara was aided in her decision by an act of God a la Helen Hayes. With it, a third interest, overshadowing husband and sweetheart, entered her life.

If the husband had been less attractive, the decision would have been obvious as far as the reader was concerned, but Adam Littlefield seemed such a satisfactory mate for Sara that scant sympathy could be accorded her uncertainty.

The author is happy in her description of the little town which could be any little town, but smacks somewhat of New England.

—Virginia Rosenmeyer.

Gave Them What They Wanted

PULPWOOD EDITOR, By Harold B. Hersey. (Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York.)

IT sometimes comes to pass that a man who has many sins to answer for feels called upon to make a confession for the ease of his soul. Harold B. Hersey has been involved, as editor and publisher, in the perpetration of pulps that he remembers and lists and no telling how many more that he has forgotten, covered by his "etc., etc., etc." at the end of his list. Concerning all these he now makes his confession, not humbly and contritely, as the ritual requires, but bravely. Not exactly brazenly either. Just gayly. Laughing it off, as it were. Claiming, indeed, by way of extenuation, to have done some good by ministering to the craving of the pulp addicts who are many in the land. If, in ministering, he has but whetted appetites, it has been something that he could not help, addicts being what they are, and he was never the man to deny the passing satisfaction of whetted appetites which his pulps provided. The 83 and the others are the proof of that.

Pulps, gentle reader, are the rough-paper magazines dealing with crime and mystery, adventure and horror, sex, impossible detectives, incredible G-men, and the West that is not and never was, edited and published for the pleasure of the millions, more or less, who find pleasure in that sort of thing. Each issue of each magazine is exactly like all the other issues of the same magazine, for sameness is what the readers want. Any deviation from their favorite formula puts a strain on their minds, and that is something their minds cannot stand. The pulp, says Hersey, is a mental drug and what the patients need is more and more of the same.

Times have changed since Hersey began. Then the pulp was stealthily bought and read behind the barn. Now it is bought in the open and read in the same place. The readers have become shameless—like the editors. It is something that this editor, making his confession, mentions as going to show that pulps have their uses and editors of pulps have their place.

As for the writers who grind out the kind of stuff that the pulp editors and the pulp readers want, the best of them, or the worst, are professionals who are in for life. Some have escaped and become real writers and are trying to forget that they were ever in the pulps. They sorrow for the sins that they have committed. A pulp editor, though he may confess, does not truly repent. In this instance it is just as well, because if Pulp Editor Hersey had been really contrite his tale of the Pulpwoods would not have been the readably rollicking thing that it is.

He Was a Friend Of John Keats

SOME LETTERS AND MISCELLANEA OF CHARLES BROWN. Edited by Maurice Buxton Forman. (Oxford University Press, New York.)

CHARLES BROWN, the friend of Keats, wrote these letters in the four years following the death of the poet (Feb. 23, 1821). Addressed to Thomas Richards, another of the circle, they are of interest for what they tell of Keats' associates rather than for any addition to the knowledge of Keats himself.

Brown, with whom Keats tramped through Scotland and later shared a house for a year and a half at Hampstead, was a dabbler at writing, the author of an opera, an occasional contributor to magazines, and later a settler in New Zealand, where he died in 1842. His chief service to posterity was the preservation of Keats' papers after his death.

Many of the letters were written during his residence in Italy, one from Rome, where he had "to pass, continually, the house, nay, under the very window, where Keats died." "I have taught myself," he wrote, "to think with pleasure of his having been alive and been my friend—not with sorrow at his death."

Some of his writings and part of his translation of Boiardo's poem "Orlando Innamorato," are added to the letters. And, in his introduction, Mr. Buxton Forman quotes the verses sent by Brown to Fanny Brawne as a valentine, with a speculation on the possibility of their having been "part of poor Keats' grievance when he wrote his threat never to speak to Brown again until they were both old men."

BONDS IN ACTIVE DEMAND LAST WEEK

Alleghany Issues Are Prominent in Developments of the Period.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Bonds continued in active demand this week.

Lower-priced railroad and utility issues led the market. Buyers were attracted to convertible issues. Steadiness prevailed in United States Government issues.

Most active bonds of the week included Alleghany Corp. issues, especially the stamped 5s of 1950. Turnover in Alleghany bonds followed announcement of a proposed merger of Alleghany with Chesapeak Corp.

Utility Power & Light 5s stood out among the active utilities and the American Type Founders convertible issue attracted attention among the convertibles.

Narrowness and quiet trading characterized today's bond market. Turnover was extremely small, with traders' ranks thinned as a result of the torrid weather.

Fluctuations in most groups were confined to fractions. Government issues steered a quiet course with minor gains predominating. Swings were confined to 5-32 on the upside and 1-32 the other way.

Some utilities scored modest advances. Railroad loans were steady with a firm undertone. International Hydro-Electric 5s claimbed to a point to 77½ and Utilities Power & Light 5½s gained 1¼ to close at 56. Chicago & Northwestern 4¾s held even, while Erie 5s dropped ½ to end at 75.

Alleghany Corp. liens, a feature of recent markets following announcement of a plan of consolidation with Chesapeake Corp., were less prominent, although the 5s of 1949 closed at 92, up 1.

Approximately $2,814,000 face value of bonds changed hands compared with $4,561,000 on the previous two-hour session on June 26.

The Associated Press average for 20 rails was unchanged, as also were the averages for 10 utilities. For 10 industrials gained .1 of a point to 102.9.

Foreign dollar obligations were quiet, with moves generally confined to small limits. Rome 6½c dropped over a point. Some South American issues eased fractionally. Norwegian loans improved a little.

BOND NOTES

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway asked Interstate Commerce Commission authority today to issue $28,172,650 of 10-year 3.5 per cent certificates of indebtedness.

The certificates would be exchanged for a like amount of outstanding trust certificates. This exchange is embodied in a refinancing plan approved by an Illinois Federal Court.

The certificates of indebtedness would be issued with the First National Bank of New York as trustee. There would be no underwriters, the road issuing the certificates directly.

MOST STOCKS SAG AT WEEK-END ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Buoyancy was lacking in Curb market trading today as most shares sagged to lower levels.

Business was practically at a standstill during the short session with many traders "out of town for the week-end."

Utilities were a target as quiet but persistent selling forced them down. American Gas & Electric gave up 1¼ to close at 33, United Gas and Niagara Hudson buckled slightly while Electric Bond & Share kept level.

Interest in oils was negligible with little movement either way. Creole Petroleum finished at 38¼, up a minor fraction, and Gulf Oil lost ½ to end at 55¾. Sunray Oil was unchanged.

A few industrial specialties bucked the downdrift scoring slight gains. Carrier Corp. was up a major fraction and Niles-Bement-Pond climbed ¼. Cleveland Tractor closed at 14⅝, up ⅛.

Leaning backward were American Cyanamid "B," Technicolor, St. Regis Paper and Cities Service.

Transfers totaled 73,000 shares compared with sales at the last short session two weeks ago of 74,000 shares.

Gave Them What They Wanted

PULPWOOD EDITOR, By Harold B. Hersey. (Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York.)

IT sometimes comes to pass that a man who has many sins to answer for feels called upon to make a confession for the ease of his soul. Harold B. Hersey has been involved, as editor and publisher, in the perpetration of pulps that he remembers and lists and no telling how many more that he has forgotten, covered by his "etc., etc., etc." at the end of his list. Concerning all these he now makes his confession, not humbly and contritely, as the ritual requires, but bravely. Not exactly brazenly either. Just gayly. Laughing it off, as it were. Claiming indeed, by way of extenuation, to have done some good by ministering to the craving of the pulp addicts who are many in the land. If, in ministering, he has but whetted appetites, it has been something that he could not help, addicts being what they are, and he was never the man to deny the passing satisfaction of whetted appetites which his pulps provided. The 83 and the others are the proof of that.

Pulps, gentle reader, are the rough-paper magazines dealing with crime and mystery, adventure and horror, sex, impossible detectives, incredible G-men, and the West that is not and never was, edited and published for the pleasure of the millions, more or less, who find pleasure in that sort of thing. Each issue of each magazine is exactly like all the other issues of the same magazine, for sameness is what the readers want. Any deviation from their favorite formula puts a strain on their minds, and that is something their minds cannot stand. The pulp, says Hersey, is a mental drug and what the patients need is more and more of the same.

Times have changed since Hersey began. Then the pulp was stealthily bought and read behind the barn. Now it is bought in the open and read in the same place. The readers have become shameless—like the editors. It is something that this editor, making his confession, mentions as going to show that pulps have their uses and editors of pulps have their place.

As for the writers who grind out the kind of stuff that the pulp editors and the pulp readers want, the best of them, or the worst, are professionals who are in for life. Some have escaped and become real writers and are trying to forget that they were ever in the pulps. They sorrow for the sins that they have committed. A pulp editor, though he may confess, does not truly repent. In this instance it is just as well, because if Pulp Editor Hersey had been really contrite his tale of the Pulpwoods would not have been the readably rollicking thing that it is.

—F. A. Behymer.

He Was a Friend Of John Keats

SOME LETTERS AND MISCELLANEA OF CHARLES BROWN. Edited by Maurice Buxton Forman. (Oxford University Press, New York.)

CHARLES BROWN, the friend of Keats, wrote these letters in the four years following the death of the poet (Feb. 23, 1821). Addressed to Thomas Richards, another of the circle, they are of interest for what they tell of Keats' associates rather than for any addition to the knowledge of Keats himself.

Brown, with whom Keats tramped through Scotland and later shared a house for a year and a half at Hampstead, was a dabbler at writing, the author of an opera, an occasional contributor to magazines, and later a settler in New Zealand, where he died in 1842. His chief service to posterity was the preservation of Keats' papers after his death.

Many of the letters were written during his residence in Italy, one from Rome, where he had "to pass, continually, the house, nay, under the very window, where Keats died." "I have taught myself," he wrote, "to think with pleasure of his having been alive and been my friend—not with sorrow at his death."

Some of his writings and part of his translation of Boiardo's poem "Orlando Innamorato," are added to the letters. And, in his introduction, Mr. Buxton Forman quotes the verses sent by Brown to Fanny Brawne as a valentine, with a speculation on the possibility of their having been "part of poor Keats' grievance when he wrote his threat never to speak to Brown again until they were both old men."

BONDS IN ACTIVE DEMAND LAST WEEK

Alleghany Issues Are Prominent in Developments of the Period.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Bonds continued in active demand this week.

Lower-priced railroad and utility issues led the market. Buyers were attracted to convertible issues. Steadiness prevailed in United States Government issues.

Most active bonds of the week included Alleghany Corp. issues, especially the stamped 5s of 1950. Turnover in Alleghany bonds followed announcement of a proposed merger of Alleghany with Chesapeak Corp.

Utility Power & Light 5s stood out among the active utilities and the American Type Founders convertible issue attracted attention among the convertibles.

Narrowness and quiet trading characterized today's bond market. Turnover was extremely small, with traders' ranks thinned as a result of the torrid weather.

Fluctuations in most groups were confined to fractions. Government issues steered a quiet course with minor gains predominating. Swings were confined to 5-32 on the upside and 1-32 the other way.

Some utilities scored modest advances. Railroad loans were steady with a firm undertone. International Hydro-Electric 5s claimbed to a point to 77½ and Utilities Power & Light 5½s gained 1¼ to close at 56. Chicago & Northwestern 4¾s held even, while Erie 5s dropped ½ to end at 75.

Alleghany Corp. liens, a feature of recent markets following announcement of a plan of consolidation with Chesapeake Corp., were less prominent, although the 5s of 1949 closed at 92, up 1.

Approximately $2,814,000 face value of bonds changed hands compared with $4,561,000 on the previous two-hour session on June 26.

The Associated Press average for 20 rails was unchanged, as also were the averages for 10 utilities. For 10 industrials gained .1 of a point to 102.9.

Foreign dollar obligations were quiet, with moves generally confined to small limits. Rome 6½c dropped over a point. Some South American issues eased fractionally. Norwegian loans improved a little.

BOND NOTES

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway asked Interstate Commerce Commission authority today to issue $28,172,650 of 10-year 3.5 per cent certificates of indebtedness.

The certificates would be exchanged for a like amount of outstanding trust certificates. This exchange is embodied in a refinancing plan approved by an Illinois Federal Court.

The certificates of indebtedness would be issued with the First National Bank of New York as trustee. There would be no underwriters, the road issuing the certificates directly.

MOST STOCKS SAG AT WEEK-END ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Buoyancy was lacking in Curb market trading today as most shares sagged to lower levels.

Business was practically at a standstill during the short session with many traders "out of town for the week-end."

Utilities were a target as quiet but persistent selling forced them down. American Gas & Electric gave up 1¼ to close at 33, United Gas and Niagara Hudson buckled slightly while Electric Bond & Share kept level.

Interest in oils was negligible with little movement either way. Creole Petroleum finished at 38¼, up a minor fraction, and Gulf Oil lost ½ to end at 55¾. Sunray Oil was unchanged.

A few industrial specialties bucked the downdrift scoring slight gains. Carrier Corp. was up a major fraction and Niles-Bement-Pond climbed ¼. Cleveland Tractor closed at 14⅝, up ⅛.

Leaning backward were American Cyanamid "B," Technicolor, St. Regis Paper and Cities Service.

Transfers totaled 73,000 shares compared with sales at the last short session two weeks ago of 74,000 shares.

WEEK-END REALIZING AND FOREIGN SELLING OF COTTON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Cotton turned easier today under week-end realizing and foreign selling. October declined from 12.50 to 12.40 and closed at the low with final prices 14 to 17 points net lower.

The opening was 1 to 9 points lower on disappointing action of Liverpool and profit taking. Absence of the concentrated Wall Street buying which had been a factor on the rise of ½ cent in the two preceding days seemed to influence sentiment.

Heaviness of wheat and a decline in the stock market were contributing factors. A forecast for fair weather in the Eastern belt was partly offset by next week's prediction for partly cloudy with scattered thundershowers most of the period. Prices generally closed at the lows.

There was some reselling for account of mills, Wall Street, and hedging. Sales of cotton textiles for the week were estimated at 150 to 175 per cent of the current rate of production.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the close of the week was estimated at 24,000 bales against 30,000 last year and 41,000 two years ago.

Spot quiet; middling 12.90.

Memphis Spot Cotton.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 10.—Spot cotton had a steady tone. Middling closed at 12.65c, compared with 12.80c yesterday. Sales amounted to 163 bales.

New Orleans Spot Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, July 10.—Spot cotton closed quiet, 12 points lower. Sales, 260; low middling, 11.26; middling, 12.76; good middling, 13.31; receipts, 700; stocks, 277,013.

Horses and Mules.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., July 10.—The horse market was under considerable pressure the past week and losses ranged upward to $10 per head. Mules, on the other hand, held about steady.

About 725 head of horses and mules were received for the sale and there was a satisfactory clearance. Buyers were fairly well represented, but they insisted on lowring costs of horses, bearing down on both the work stock and on young material.

The decline in horses was attributed in part to the holiday Monday and to the fact that farm work kept many prospective buyers away from the market. In the meantime, favorable crop conditions constitute a bullish factor in the trade.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $125@160; medium to good draft, $100@125; good to choice chunks, $100@125; smooth - mouthed chunks, $80@110; large farm mares, $125@150; medium farm mares, $90@110; fillies, yearlings and twos; small, common $30@50; good size, $60@85; extra size and quality, $120@160 (horse colts sell $15@25 per head less than fillies); good Southern mares, $75@100; small Southern mares, $40@60; small cheap horses, $30@50.

*MULE QUOTATIONS.

Farm mules, 15.2 to 16 hands, $110@140; colt mules, small, $60@85; draft mules, $150@200; mine mules, 15.3 to 16 hands, $135@160; mine mules, 14 to 15 hands, $90@125; choice cotton mules, 14.2 to 15 hands, $150@175; small green mules, over 3 years old, $50@85.

Stock Market Has One of Broadest Advances Since Late in 1934 With Steels and Rails in the Vanguard

More Hopeful Views Taken of Steel Labor Situation, the French Financial Crisis and Tension Over Spain.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The stock market forged ahead most of the week, then halted for a breathing spell near the end.

After the long holiday week-end, share prices pushed upward in one of the broadest advances since late 1934. Steels and rails were in the van.

Following sessions continued the march, but at a slower pace. Traders took more hopeful views of the steel labor situation, the French financial crisis and tension over Spain.

Toward the end realizing took an increasing toll of gains, but in general the list finished well in higher ground. Volume increased on the upswing and million share or more days were the rule, rather than the exception. Trading tapered off toward the close.

Business News Is Mixed.

Business news was mixed. Steel operations were at a lower rate due to the holiday, but reopening of closed plants during the week was expected to accelerate output in the near future.

Railroad freight carloadings for last week were reported highest since last fall, reflecting movement of a heavy grain crop. Electric power production was off more than seasonally, due to slowing of steel and textile operations.

Wheat was higher and cotton moved forward on the Government report showing acreage under cultivation at 10.4 per cent above last year. Private estimates had been higher.

Bonds continued their advance of the preceding week, with concertible issues, secondary rails and utilities to the fore. U. S. Government obligations moved narrowly higher.

Sales during the week amounted to 4,995,140 shares, compared with 3,484,765 a week ago and 6,528,180 a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 235,383,797 shares, compared with 270,340,970 a year ago and 135,178,782 two years ago.

Quiet Week-End Trade.

Stock suffered more from inattention than selling pressure in week-end market.

Brokers blamed the current heat wave for driving many customers from the boardrooms. Even those who appeared displayed more than the usual buying apathy.

With some traders desiring to lighten commitments over the week-end, prices drifted fractions to a point or more lower. There was a mild recovery movement near the close and extreme declines were reduced in many instances.

Transactions for the two-hour session aggregated 297,500 shares. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .3 of a point at 67.1. Listlessness of the proceedings was exemplified by the fact that only 560 issues changed hands as against 825 yesterday. There were 159 advances, 242 declines and 159 were unchanged.

Steels followed the rest of the market, notwithstanding labor news was more to the liking of the financial district. U. S. Steel was off ½ at 108⅜ and Bethlehem yielded ¾ at 90⅛. Republic edged up ¼ at 39 as a strike called at one of the company's plants failed to materialize. Sloss-Sheffield was up 2 at 161.

As the final gong sounded, the U. S. Steel Corporation announced its June shipments were the best for the month since 1929, although somewhat under the May total.

Graham-Paige was the liveliest stock of the day, advancing ⅜ of a point to 4, on reports of expanding business and word Sears Roebuck would handle tractors of Graham-Paige.

Crop Report Effects.

The Government's crop report, indicating the best wheat harvests since 1931, was good news for granger railroads, mail orders and farm implements, but most of these held to a narrow range.

On the down side were Chrysler at 103, Westinghouse 147⅛, American Telephone 168⅜, Western Union 48¼, Santa Fe 81¼, Southern Pacific 46⅞, Kennecott 58⅝, American Smelting 91¼, Loew's 80, du Pont 154 and U. S. Rubber 60½.

General Motors was unchanged at 53. Allis-Chalmers was up 1 at 67¾ on plans for broadening manufacturing facilities. Improved were Montgomery Ward at 60⅞, Great Northern 51½, American Can 101¾ and Consolidated Edison 36½.

Bonds did little either way. Commodities were lower. Wheat at Chicago lost 1 to 1¾ cents a bushel and corn was down ⅜ to up as much. Cotton dropped 70 to 85 cents a bale. The principal foreign currencies were up in terms of the dollar.

Day's 15 Most Active Stocks.

Sales, closing price and net change of the 15 most active stocks: Graham-Paige 22,400, 4⅜, up ⅜; U. S. Steel 8600, 108⅜, down ½; Anaconda 7900, 55⅛, down ½; N. Y. Odd-Lot Stock Trade July 8.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The Securities Commission reported today these odd-lot transactions by dealers and specialists on the New York Stock Exchange for July 8: 6712 sales to customers involving 173,917 shares; 5718 purchases involving 145,884 shares.

COMMODITIES UP THIRD CONSECUTIVE WEEK

Soaring Agricultural Staples Prominent Factor in Upturn in Prices.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Rising for the third consecutive period this week, commodity prices were led by soaring agricultural staples.

A resumption of the drouth, thought by weather men to have been broken several weeks ago, is said to have played a prominent part in the upturn, bringing a downward revision in harvest estimates.

Although heavy rains early last month came at a critical juncture in crop development, commodity men pointed out subnormal rainfall since has caused heavy abandonment in certain sections.

Wide gains in livestock prices, up more than 10 per cent in the past month, carried to the highest point in many years. Hogs were outstanding as supplies dwindled. Cattle and lamb also advanced.

Upturn Almost Unanimous.

Last summer's drouth was responsible, boosting feed prices so high farmers were forced to send animals to market without any attempt to fatten them. This year feed prices are lower, and producers are taking advantage of the opportunity to increase the weight of their animals and thus get premium prices at the market.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 important wholesale commodity prices rose to 92.23 per cent of the 1926 average from 90.89 a week ago and compared with 77.21 a year ago.

The upturn was almost unanimous; 20 moved up and only three fell. The rest were unchanged.

Although wheat dropped sharply following recent advance, the fall was more than offset by a half-cent a pound upturn in cotton and smaller increases in corn, oats and rye.

Cotton's improvement followed what the trade called a bullish acreage report by the Department of Agriculture.

Food was higher; sugar, flour, lard, butter and cocoa all gaining.

The staples of industry were also better. Steel extended recent gains. With mills reopened, both Pittsburgh and Chicago reported stocks low. Other advances included hides, turpentine, burlap, tin and lead. Only antimony and rubber moved against the trend.

What Index Shows.

Textile prices turned up after sliding for many weeks. Cotton cloth and silk both rose. Trade sources said purchases from mills exceeded production this week for the first time in months, and looked for the movement to grow.

The index, with its components based on 1926 as 100, compared as follows:

STERLING EXCHANGE RATE HIGHEST SINCE LAST SEPT.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—European currencies continued their climb against the dollar today, with the pound sterling touching a peak since last September.

Some repatriation of French balances in this country, vio London, was said to have contributed to the strength of the British unit. It closed at $4.96, up ⅛ of a cent.

French franc finished .00⅝ of a cent higher, the Swiss franc added .01 of a cent and the Canadian dollar and Netherlands guilder were unchanged.

The dollar lost ⅜ of a cent in London, closing at 4.95⅞ to the pound.

Leading European currencies moved upward generally against the dollar in the week's foreign exchange dealings.

Settlement of the crisis in the French franc made that currency buoyant and the control fund at times sold francs to prevent a too rapid rise. Publication of the Bank of France statement showing a decline of 6,000,000,000 francs in its gold reserve caused temporary pressure on the unit but this was more than offset by announcement of the Government's new taxation program.

Some repatriation of French capital held in this country took place, with the operations mostly routed through London. This, because of the demand for sterling, aided that unit to advance.

Although the price of gold dropped in the London free market the strength of the pound made it unprofitable for arbitrageurs to ship to this country and engagements of the yellow metal for American account droped sharply.

The amount taken totaled $15,233,000 against $41,533,000 the preceding week. Only $5,678,000 was engaged in England, the balance being divided among Japan, with $5,500,000, Switzerland, $1,262,000, the Netherlands, $1,162,000, and India, $1,631,000.

Offerings of gold in London were lighter than for any week in some months, due, observers said, to a falling of in the rate of dehoarding.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Foreign exchange closing rates follow:

Great Britain in dollars, others in cents. Great Britain, demand, 4.96; cables, 4.96; 60-day mills, 4.94¾; France, demand, 3.87⅝; cables, 3.87⅝; Italy, demand, 5.26¼; cables, 5.26¼.

nNominal.

LONDON, July 10.—United States dollars lost ⅜ of a cent in the foreign exchange market today. The unit closed 4.95⅞ to the pound, compared with $4.95⅞ for sterling in final New York dealings yesterday.

French francs ended 128.03 to the pound, against 128.12 the day before.

WASHINGTON BUSINESS NOTES

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The Federal Reserve Board reports June department store sales increased 7 per cent over the same month a year ago.

For the first half of this year, these sales were up 11 per cent. The six-months' increases by individual Federal Reserve districts are listed as follows:

Boston, 6 per cent; New York 7; Philadelphia 7; Cleveland 18; Richmond 7; Atlanta 11; Chicago 16; St. Louis 12; Minneapolis 5; Kansas City 7; Dallas 11; San Francisco 9.

For June, the greatest increase over June, 1936, is reported for the Chicago district, where sales advanced 13 per cent.

U. S. STEEL CORP. SHIPMENTS BEST FOR MONTH SINCE '29

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—June shipments of finished steel products reported today by U. S. Steel Corporation totaled 1,268,550 tons, largest for any June since 1929, when shipments were 1,385,506 tons. June shipments showed a decline of 35,489 tons under May but were 382,485 tons above June, 1936.

For the first six months of 1937 shipments totaled 7,614,274 tons, an increase of 2,582,924 or 51 per cent over the similar 1936 period.

The eight-year top for June production was attributed in some steel quarters to the fact U. S. Steel had not been affected by labor stoppages, as had some of its competitors, in June.

ZINC SHOWS INCREASING ACTIVITY, PUT UP TO 7C

Rise of $10 a Ton in Copper and Brass Scrap.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Zinc developed increasing activity and strength late in the week on continuance of a tight supply situation. With steel operations rising, buyers started to cover in anticipation of a price rise which was established Saturday at 7c against the recent basis of 6¾c a pound.

Strength in the export copper market and a rise of $10 a ton in copper and brass scrap influenced sentiment, but following a moderate improvement in business, the volume tapered off. The export price which had advanced about ⅜c, later eased and tended to modify bullish sentiment here. Domestic sales so far this month were placed at around 12,000 tons.

Tin advanced about 2¼c a pound in the first half of the week in response to a sharp upturn at London and attracted a moderately better demand from plate makers for a while. When the Singapore market failed to follow the London action, there were partial reactions in the British market and these were followed by declined of about ⅜ @ ½c in domestic quotations. Business was quiet as the week closed.

Lead sales were running about even with the current rate of smelter output, although the business declined at the close of the week. Prices ruled steady and unchanged. Sales were divided between the July and August deliveries, a feature being the first definite indications of interest in next month's supplies.

With more steel plants resuming operations, the steel ingot production rate was expected to increase considerably from last week's 70 per cent of capacity schedule affected by the Independence day shutdown.

Antimony was dull and nominally unchanged. Business was of a jobbing character.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY SHOWS SLIGHT DIP

Seasonally Adjusted Index of Associated Press Down to 104.1 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Industrial activity continued to move in the same narrow groove that has bounded it for more than a month, dipping slightly this week.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index dropped to 104.1 per cent of the 1929-30 average from 104.8 a week ago and compared with 92.6 in the same period last year.

Steel mill operations fell further to a new low for the year, due primarily to closing of several plants for vacations and repairs. New strike closings were not a factor, trade quarters held.

Cotton manufacturing was a little lower. This was understood to have resulted from a pre-holiday lull rather than any curtailment because of inventories, as sales of yard goods have picked up sharply in recent weeks.

Residential building gave ground again, with analysis holding high costs largely responsible. Electric power output also fell back.

Automobile production, on the other hand, was down less than seasonally over the holiday, the index rising to a new peak for the year.

Freight carloadings, responding to a heavy movement of grain and farm products from the Midwest, was above the 800,000-car mark for the first week since last fall.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on the latest available statistics and with 1929-30 as 100, compared as follows:

	Latest Week	Prev. Week	Year Ago
Composite index	104.1	104.8	92.6

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, July 10 (U. S. Department of Agriculture).—Business in spot wool on the Boston market during the past week was mostly quiet. Persistence of the wool handlers' strike prevented mills from covering immediate needs. Mill demand, on the other hand, did not appear urgent because wool outside of Boston, available for delivery, was almost as much neglected as spot wool was for future requirements and sales indicated comparatively firm asking prices. Graded combing, Ohio fleeces were quoted unchanged at 40 to 42 cents in the grease for fine delaine, 42@43 cents for staple combing half blood. These quotations were supported by a few scattered sales.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY SHOWS SLIGHT DIP

Seasonally Adjusted Index of Associated Press Down to 104.1 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Industrial activity continued to move in the same narrow groove that has bounded it for more than a month, dipping slightly this week.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index dropped to 104.1 per cent of the 1929-30 average from 104.8 a week ago and compared with 92.6 in the same period last year.

Steel mill operations fell further to a new low for the year, due primarily to closing of several plants for vacations and repairs. New strike closings were not a factor, trade quarters held.

Cotton manufacturing was a little lower. This was understood to have resulted from a pre-holiday lull rather than any curtailment because of inventories, as sales of yard goods have picked up sharply in recent weeks.

Residential building gave ground again, with analysis holding high costs largely responsible. Electric power output also fell back.

Automobile production, on the other hand, was down less than seasonally over the holiday, the index rising to a new peak for the year.

Freight carloadings, responding to a heavy movement of grain and farm products from the Midwest, was above the 800,000-car mark for the first week since last fall.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on the latest available statistics and with 1929-30 as 100, compared as follows:

	Latest Week	Prev. Week	Year Ago

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, July 10 (U. S. Department of Agriculture).—Business in spot wool on the Boston market during the past week was mostly quiet. Persistence of the wool handlers' strike prevented mills from covering immediate needs. Mill demand, on the other hand, did not appear urgent because wool outside of Boston, available for delivery, was almost as much neglected as spot wool was for future requirements and sales indicated comparatively firm asking prices. Graded combing, Ohio fleeces were quoted unchanged at 40 to 42 cents in the grease for fine delaine, 42@43 cents for staple combing half blood. These quotations were supported by a few scattered sales.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Armstrong Cork Co. announced today it has called for redemption Aug. 10 its 4 per cent debentures, due 1950, at 103 and accrued interest.

Flour mills accounting for 65 per cent of the nation's total output, produced 5,276,161 barrels in June, against 5,248,645 in June, 1936, General Mills, Inc., reported. Production of these same mills in the 11 months ended June 30 was 63,100,344 barrels, against 64,742,349 in the comparative period a year earlier.

Securities purchased in 1936 by the country's leading insurance companies totaled $4,607,200,000, an increase of 18 per cent over the $3,875,000,000 in 1935, Poor's 1937 edition of "Insurance Company Purchases and Sales" disclosed.

General Otto Falk, chairman of the board of Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Co., has announced the company will spend between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 on plant improvement and expansion this year. An issue of $20,000,000 of debentures may be floated instead of the $16,000,000 of preferred stock contemplated recently by directors, in which case about $6,000,000 will be devoted to expansion.

The Electrical Wholesaling's monthly survey of business conditions reports that net sales of wholesale distributers of electrical supplies during May exceeded May last year by 50 per cent. May collections were 16 per cent ahead of April and 67 per cent over May, 1936.

Total ingot capacity o fthe steel industry is now rated at 69,534,194 gross tons annually against 69,244,694 tons at the first o fthe year, American Iron and Steel Institute announced.

ZINC PRICE IS ADVANCED $5 A TON BASIS E. ST. LOUIS

NEW YORK, July 10.—Leading producers today advanced the price of zinc $5 a ton, to 7 cents a pound from 6.75 cents at East St. Louis.

Rising contra-seasonal demand and depletion of domestic supplies during June were given as reasons for the move. The 6.75 cents price has ruled since early in April.

Zinc was firm at $7 per 100 pounds in St. Louis Saturday. Lead was nominally unchanged at $5.85 per 100 pounds.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Zinc firm; East St. Louis spot and futures, $7; copper steady; electrolytic spot and futures, 14; export, 14.20. Other metals nominally unchanged.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE REPORT ON RUST DAMAGE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The Agriculture Department reported today "extensive rust damage to winter wheat in Central Indiana and Central and Northern Illinois."

Field observers for the department said crops in the southern parts of these states "matured without appreciable damage from the disease."

Rust was reported general on winter wheat in Iowa, Southwestern Wisconsin and Southern Minnesota, "with some damage probable, particularly in late fields."

The survey said south winds on July 6 had scattered "heavy spore showers (of rust) throughout the spring wheat region so that the rapidity with which the rust spreads between now and harvest will depend upon weather conditions."

Spring wheat in the southern half of South Dakota was reported "ripening or drying fast, with some damage from rust reported." The plant disease has spread rapidly in Northeastern South Dakota, the survey said, and "is generally prevalent as far north as Fargo, N. D., but noticeably lighter north from that point."

The department said rye would escape damage by stem rust this year while oats were "only lightly infected."

WHEAT REGAINS ABOUT HALF OF 3-CENT BREAK

Heavy Selling on Government Crop Estimate — Trade Fears Rust Damage Will Be Important.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Heavy selling dumped into the wheat pit after release of the official crop report indicating a bountiful domestic harvest of all grains this year tumbled wheat prices 3 cents a bushel today, but when the liquidation subsided, the market staged a quiet rally of about 2 cents.

Late buying at Winnipeg and Minneapolis lifted wheat in those markets above the previous close at times, but Chicago values got no closer than major fractions to yesterday's final prices. The rally here, as well as in Northwest markets was attributed to buyers who recognized that Canada apparently has experienced its greatest crop disaster in years and also that domestic spring wheat has yet to mature, with the possibility of rust damage or hot, dry weather a menace.

Then, too, reports reached the trade from Fargo, N. D., through a prominent house just before the bell that wheat in the valley as far north as Grand Forks and Crookston is firing and showing blight as a result of drouth and heat. This correspondent said farmers are beginning to cut some grain for hay. Recognized crop authorities also commented that the Government report apparently did not make enough allowance for damage from rust in some Northern and Eastern areas of the winter wheat belt. The Nebraska Federal crop statistician reported the lowest yield he ever heard of in parts of Burt and Washington counties.

Wheat closed 1@1¾ cents below yesterday's finish, July $1.20⅞@1.21; September $1.22⅛@⅜, December $1.23⅞@1.24. Corn⅜c off to ⅜c up, July, new, $1.28½, September, $1.14½@¾, December 84¼@⅜c; oats unchanged to 1⅛c down, —uly 40-42½c; rye ¼c up to 2c down, July 91½c, and provisions 5@20c lower.

Early selling, besides reflecting the report, also was in sympathy with weakness of foreign wheat prices and was associated with reports of heavy rains in Manitoba Province and light showers in Northern Saskatchewan. Wheat hit bottom almost at the outset, July touching a low of $1.19¼ and September $1.20¼. Rallies from this point were only transient until the final hour, when buying increased.

The Government raised its prediction of domestic winter wheat production 15,000,000 bushels compared with a month ago, and traders said this indicated unexpected good yields in the Southwest more than offset rust damage in soft wheat states. Some, however, claimed loss during June of 9,400,000 bushels in prospective production of Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio seemed smaller than expected. The Department of Agriculture today confirmed reports of rust damage in Central Indiana and Illinois and indicated the scourge's spread is rapid in Northwestern South Dakota and lower regions of North Dakota.

Corn declined with wheat at the start, but then developed firmness, with July supported by figures showing farm reserves at the lowest level in years. Deferred rye deliveries followed wheat, while oats also reflected the crop outlook.

Selling spread to provisions, which also were weakened by cottonseed oil market action.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 50,940,000 bushels, corn 11,161,000. Open interest in wheat was 88,128,000 bushels, and in corn 34,727,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS EXCHANGE, July 10.—Wheat prices were lower today. July closed at $1.20¼, down 1½c, September at $1.21½, down ¾c and December at $1.23⅜, off 1⅝c.

Winnipeg wheat opened 2¼ to 3¼c lower and early was 1¾@1⅞c off.

Liverpool wheat opened 1 to 1½d lower and in closing cable was 1¼ to 1½d off.

Local wheat receipts, which were 351,000 bu, compared with 52,500 a week ago and 381,000 a year ago, included 219 cars local and 15 through. Corn receipts, which were 12,000 bu, compared with 12,000 a week ago and 31,500 a year ago, included 6 cars local and 2 through. Oats receipts, which were 4000 bu, compared with 2000 a week ago and 40,000 a year ago, included 2 cars local.

ST. LOUIS CASH GRAIN.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was 2@4c lower, with the low grades off most. Demand was good. Receipts were heavier, but due to the short end-of-the-week session and the delay in bringing samples to tables, quite a volume was unseen by buyers. Elevators were the best purchases, with order buying falling off to some extent, and mills were only moderately active. Tard wheat was 2c lower. No. 2 red sold at from 2c to 3c over St. Louis September, No. 3 red from ½c under to September price. No. 2 garlic sold from 3@3½c under and No. 3 garlic 4@5c under September. Corn was 1c lower. Demand was fair, but with buyers and sellers apart, some of the offerings were carried over. A car to a mill and another to an industry was the only business transacted. Premiums were unchanged from the previous day's levels. Oats were 1c lower. A car carried over from yesterday was the only thing on sale. This car, mixed, sold to a mill at basis 9½c over the local September delivery figure. Inquiry was good.

NEW PLEA BY WILFRED JONES

Seeks to Strike Out Parts of Federal Disbarment Petition.

Wilfred Jones, disbarred from the practice of law in State courts, filed a motion in United States District Court yesterday, based on technicalities, to strike certain parts of the petition of United States Attorney Harry C. Blanton to remove his name from the roll of attorneys authorized to practice in Federal Court.

He sent the pleading to the Federal Court from City Jail, where he is held under 10-year penitentiary sentence for his part in the mail fraud growing out of the great Muench baby hoax. The motion asks that certain references to his State disbarment be deleted. He has been permitted to defend himself in Blanton's suit as a pauper, without prepayment of costs.

MO. PAC. CREWS FIGHT LANDSLIDE AT CHESTER

Slow Moving Earth Has Threatened Since January to Bury Tracks.

The stubborn landslide which since last January has threatened to cover the Missouri Pacific Railroad track between the bluffs and the Mississippi River a mile south of Chester, Ill., has been restricted somewhat, but still is giving a stiff battle to Missouri Pacific engineers and crews of workmen employed in shifts 24 hours a day.

In a movement so slow as to be noticeable only after several hours, an area about 1700 feet long by 1000 feet wide is shifting toward the river. The workmen, with the aid of crane-shovels, have halted the slip at the ends of the area, but the center strip continues to buckle and slide.

The engineers are digging a 25-foot cut through the center of the slide parallel to the track. Earth from the cut is dumped inside the track and then moved across to the river side. The engineers were moved to feverish activity recently when the slide moved six feet in one night.

Confident that the worst is over, the engineers hope now that the slide will stop when the pressure became more evenly distributed over the entire area. Night work goes on under electric and carbide lamps. Last week a drill was brought into use to determine the composition of the materials in the slide down to bedrock.

Inspections indicate that the slide is not of geological origin, but probably was caused by the gradual releasing of debris near the top of the bluffs, which accumulated about 30 years ago when limestone was quarried to furnish material for revetment work along the river.

ADDITIONAL SKETCHES OF NOTED MISSOURIANS

Second Volume of Work Received by Executives of Historical Society.

The plight of an erstwhile shoemaker who was forced into another business because the inhabitants of St. Louis did not wear shoes is one of the pictures of old and new St. Louis presented in the second volume of "Representative Missourians," which was received Friday by executives of the Missouri Historical Society.

The volume, which contains the photographs and sketches of 100 prominent Missourians, is a part of an extensive plan to preserve in the Jefferson Memorial vaults of the historical society data on outstanding contemporary figures for possible use in later years. The material for the first two volumes, including the photographs, has been compiled by Louis R. Straus, photographer.

The tale of the unhappy shoemaker is included in the genealogical record submitted by Arthur J. Brauer, president of the Brauer Bros. Shoe Co. Brauer wrote that his maternal grandparents came to St. Louis in a covered wagon during the summer of 1808.

"Arriving at the Mississippi River on the East," he said in his notes, "they were required to leave the wagon and have their horses swim alongside the small ferry then used to cross the river. It was my grandparents' intention to enter the sho ebusiness, but they found upon arriving in St. Louis that the inhabitants were principally trappers, wood choppers and Indians, who wore practically nothing on their feet but moccasins the year round. My grandfather opened an Indian trading post instead."

Many of the others contributing to the volume trace their ancestry back to the earliest settlers in the New World. George M. Block, who calls himself "just a lawyer since 1877," lists as his first ancestor Nicolas Martian, who went to Virginia in 1620. Jerome B. Corby, president of the Corby Supply Co., tells of his great-great-grandfather, Joseph Robidoux, who came from Canada to St. Louis to dwell in a block-long house fronting the levee between Walnut and Elm streets, then the center of town. The Rev. Thomas M. Knapp, S. J., chancellor of St. Louis University, writes of his ancestor, Pierre Laclede.

Howard Gambrill, real estate and investment agent, adds to the historical store with an anecdote involving his great-great-grandfather, James Few. Fighting in the Revolutionary battle of Alamance in May, 1771, Few was captured by the British and his freedom was offered him if he would forswear allegiance to the colonial cause. He refused and was hanged on the following morning.

Many of the ranking administrative officers and faculty members of the local universities are included in the book. Dr. Malvern Bryan Clopton, president of Washington University, lists himself simply as surgeon. Vladimir Golschmann, director of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, gives no genealogy, but fixes his birthplace as Paris and states that he attended Buffon College in that city.

Gov. Stark is also among the Missourians listed in the volume. His sketch was submitted before his election and he is listed as president of the Stark Bros. Nurseries and Orchards Co.

The volume, bound in durable leather, will be made available for reference purposes by the Missouri Historical Society.

Malone's New Trial Plea Delayed.
By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 10. — United States District Judge William H. Holly delayed until July 24 today a hearing on a motion for a new trial for William H. Malone, former Illinois State Tax Commission chairman, who was convicted of violating the income tax law. Malone was convicted of evading income tax payments of $60,000 for the years 1929 and 1930.

PART SEVEN

Season Opens At North Shore Summer Resorts

Magnolia, Gloucester, Annisquam and Manchester Each Attracts Its Share of Holiday Seekers From St. Louis.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MAGNOLIA, Mass., July 10.

MANY familiar visitors are returning to the Oceanside Hotel, one of the oldest on the North shore. Among the St. Louisans who have arrived is Mrs. Morrison Fuller, who came last Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Harry Clark arrived yesterday from Lake Mohonk, N. Y., where they spent June.

The Magnolia Beach Club has always been popular with members of the younger set because of its large salt water swimming pool. Swimming races are held regularly and are anticipated with much suspense. Small children are brought from the neighborhood resorts to learn to swim and dive. The former writing room has been transformed into an inviting and well appointed cocktail bar. The beach in front of the club house is gay with umbrellas and tables, where luncheon is served to those who do not care to leave the sun. A small shop in the office, carrying bathing suits and beach accessories, is doing a flourishing business. The Beach Club was the scene of much gaiety over the Fourth. A buffet luncheon was served on the beach to the strains of a well-known orchestra.

Mrs. Harry Brookings Wallace entertained last week in honor of her house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Seddon of St. Louis and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Seddon of Ardmore, Pa.

Gloucester.

The fifteenth annual exhibition of the North Shore Arts Association opened last Sunday. More than 400 paintings and sculptures are on display.

Season Opens At North Shore Summer Resorts

Magnolia, Gloucester, Annisquam and Manchester Each Attracts Its Share of Holiday Seekers From St. Louis.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MAGNOLIA, Mass., July 10.

MANY familiar visitors are returning to the Oceanside Hotel, one of the oldest on the North shore. Among the St. Louisans who have arrived is Mrs. Morrison Fuller, who came last Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Harry Clark arrived yesterday from Lake Mohonk, N. Y., where they spent June.

The Magnolia Beach Club has always been popular with members of the younger set because of its large salt water swimming pool. Swimming races are held regularly and are anticipated with much suspense. Small children are brought from the neighborhood resorts to learn to swim and dive. The former writing room has been transformed into an inviting and well appointed cocktail bar. The beach in front of the club house is gay with umbrellas and tables, where luncheon is served to those who do not care to leave the sun. A small shop in the office, carrying bathing suits and beach accessories, is doing a flourishing business. The Beach Club was the scene of much gaiety over the Fourth. A buffet luncheon was served on the beach to the strains of a well-known orchestra.

Mrs. Harry Brookings Wallace entertained last week in honor of her house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Seddon of St. Louis and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Seddon of Ardmore, Pa.

Gloucester.

The fifteenth annual exhibition of the North Shore Arts Association opened last Sunday. More than 400 paintings and sculptures are on display.

Many California Resorts Feature Club Openings

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LA JOLLA, Cal., July 10.

NOISE and firecrackers were in the minority in the Fourth of July celebration at La Jolla. The town was in a festive mood, however, with a selection of nearby resorts inviting guests.

Agua Caliente, famous resort hotel, opened its doors for the first time in two years, and was the setting July 3 for much entertaining, although there was no gambling.

Saturday, July 3, found the houses and hotels in La Jolla, Del Mar and Rancho Santa Fe filled to capacity, with much of Southern California's smart set treking to Del Mar for the opening of the Turf Club track season, to crowd the mutuel windows, and to dine and dance. The club house, grandstand, paddocks, stables and vast grounds constitute an array of early California adobe architecture and landscaping. As a special feature on the opening day, all women attending the races were presented with a kerchief scarf bordered with the autographs of movie star members of the board of directors of the club. Saturday evening, Bing Crosby, president of the Turf Club, celebrated the opening as host at a large dinner-dance in the club house following the races. The club house will remain open every night during the racing season for dining and dancing.

On July 3, the patio of the Casa de Manana Hotel was formally opened for the summer season. The dinner-dance entitled "Reunion in the Patio" was in celebration of the Casa's fourteenth year. St. Louisans dining in the patio included Mr. and Mrs. Dozier L. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Wayman Crow, Mrs. Lucia Sloan Hopkins, Mrs. Frederick C. Orthwein, Miss Adele Hayes, Mrs. Katherine Adams, Miss Janet Orthwein, Miss Jane Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Beckwith Mrs. Beckwith was formerly Helen Muckerman), Mrs. Robert Meeker and Ensign and Mrs. Mariner Bertholf (Mrs. Bertholf was formerly Miss Katherine Collins).

The outstanding holiday event at Hotel del Coronado was the opening of the Beach and Tennis Club

New Season Opens at Wequetonsing

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WEQUETONSING, Mich., July 10.

THE Beach Club, with its colorful cabanas dotting the shore of Lake Michigan, celebrated the Fourth of July with a special luncheon attended by many St. Louisans.

Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Wells, with their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Scott, entertained Mrs Albert W. Niedringhaus and Mrs. Lindell Gordon. Mrs. Neill A. McMillan, Mrs. Charles Whitehead and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Garrison lunched together in a cabana. With Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Peters were Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Clifford, while Mr. and Mrs. Peters' daughter, Miss Margaret, entertained a large group of her friends at the clubhouse. Her St. Louis guests included Miss Olive Gatch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson B. Gatch, and Miss Helen Moore Jones, daughter of Mrs. Gentry Shelton. Miss Gatch is the guest of Miss Ruth Rodemyer and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Monroe H. Rodemyer, and Miss Jones is with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Watts.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Keller arrived last week to be the guests for a few days of Mrs. Keller's sister, Mrs. Julia Radford, at her cottage in Bay View, Mich. They motored to Wequetonsing Wednesday to be the luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Maestre, and returned to St. Louis that evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Howe and their son, James, are recent arrivals. They are occupying their cottage at Roaring Brook.

St. Louisans Return to Cape Cod For Busy Round of Festivities To Continue Through Summer

All Resorts — Hyannisport, Wianno, Centerville and Barnstable—Open for Warm Season and Filled With Resorters, Many of Whom Have Been Going to the Same Spots for Years.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HYANNISPORT, Mass., July 10.

EARLY July marks the real beginning of another Cape Cod season. Cottages have opened with rapidity, and the social season, which continues through August, is well under way.

A popular Sunday night place of entertainment is the Hyannisport Club, where Cape Cod buffet suppers are served. Last Sunday, at Miss Sally Fowler's table, were her house guests, Mrs. Loren Whitaker Sloan, the former Miss Catherine McCreery of St. Louis, John Reyburn of Fairfield, Conn., formerly of St. Louis, and Mrs. Reyburn, who is Miss Fowler's cousin.

Mrs. Sloan's sister, Mrs. Oscar H. Vieths, has been a guest at the Swiss Cottages. On her way there she visited in Cambridge, Mass., with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer P. Burroughs Jr., who have recently become the parents of twin daughters. Mrs. Burroughs was Miss Margaret Vieths.

Warren T. Chandler Sr. of St. Louis has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coit Day, who have a cottage at the seaside, and will be in Hyannisport a month or more.

Arthur D. Calfee of New York, a former St. Louisan, accompanied his wife here last week-end. Mrs. Calfee will remain until Aug. 1 with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clare Draper of Boston, at their summer home, and Mr. Calfee will return at intervals.

Mrs. Elisha Gage Scudder has opened her summer home on Scudder avenue. She, with her daughter, Mrs. Ellis Archer Hallett, and her granddaughter, Miss Alice Hallett, motored east, while Mr. Hallett arrived by train with his brother, Herbert Hallett of Mill Valley, Cal.

Mrs. Robert Holmes is expected Thursday, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Caro Holmes, and her son, John, to occupy her cottage on the shore at West Hyannisport. They will stop in New York for a short time en route.

Wianno, Mass.

THE shore of Wianno, bordering Nantucket Sound, is lined with summer homes, surrounded by pine trees. Flanked on two sides by these dwellings is the Wianno Club, where Saturday evening dances are held throughout the season. Donald Parker of Newton, Mass., formerly of St. Louis, escorted Miss Alice Hallett last Saturday and Monday morning. Mr. Parker participated in the club round robin tennis match. He had as partner Miss Katherine Sipple of Boston, formerly of St. Louis. Monday evening, the club gave a display of fireworks.

Mrs. Leslie Dana arrived in time for the week-end festivities and opened her summer residence, Dana Dune, at Wianno July 3. Her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. McGregory Wells Jr., arrived Tuesday to spend some time with Mrs. Dana after a short visit in New York. Mr. Dana will join his family July 25 for a long stay on Cape Cod.

Mrs. Robert A. B. Walsh is at the Wianno Club, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Polly Walsh, and their guest, Miss Alicia Polk. Miss Walsh was guest of honor at a surprise party Wednesday on her birthday anniversary. Mrs. Walsh's brother, Walter Schnaider, will arrive soon. He recently returned home from England.

Centerville, Mass.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES GAFF HINKLE of Chestnut Hill, Brookline, Mass., were on the sands before the Beach Club recently, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Sydney Hinkle. Mrs. Hinkle is former Miss Mary Francis Dickson of St. Louis. The Hinkles are here for week-ends at the Osterville summer home of Mr. Hinkle's mother, Mrs. C. M. Hinkle. They are building a new home in Chestnut Hill.

Also at the Beach Club last week were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Draper of Dover, N. H., Mrs. Draper was formerly Miss Anne Sipple of St. Louis and is the sister of Miss Katherine Sipple of Boston. The Drapers had as their guests for a day Mr. and Mrs. Ellison Nichols of Cambridge, who are staying at Falmouth.

Barnstable, Mass.

THE first week in July finds all summer houses here open. In the east end section early arrivals included the Ewing Glasgow family of St. Louis. The Glasgows are occuping the J. C. Turpin house.

Mrs. Paul Bakewell Jr. is spending the summer at Barnstable Inn. She has with her two of her sons, Morgan and Francis, and her daughter, Miss Mary Carolyn Bakewell. Mrs. Bakewell and her family had Mr. and Mrs. Glasgow as their dinner guests Monday evening. After dinner, the party saw the musical comedy, "Calling All Men," at the Cape Playhouse.

The Bakewells had as their din-

Mrs. Peggy Shelton Bride of C. B. Maloy

MRS. PEGGY MURPHY SHELTON, daughter of Mrs. Heman Judson Pettengill, and Charles Barney Maloy were married at 9 o'clock yesterday morning in the Blessed Sacrament Chapel of the St. Louis Cathedral. Only members of the two families attended the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Sylvester Tucker. Mrs. Alonzo Christy Church, the former Miss Doris Drummond, attended the bride, and Clarence E. Maloy Jr., was his brother's best man.

Mrs. Maloy wore her traveling suit, a navy blue ensemble with a hat to match, and a corsage of orchids. After greeting their families informally, she and Mr. Maloy departed by automobile for New York. They will sail Saturday on the Bremen for a honeymoon in Europe, returning in two months to reside in St. Louis.

Mrs. Pettengill, who has been in Little Rock, Ark., for the winter, came to St. Louis for the wedding, as did the bride's brother, Dempster MacMurphy of Chicago Mrs. Pettengill will accompany her son home today for a visit.

Friends of the pair had been told of the engagement, but no formal announcement was made until Thursday, after the marriage license was issued.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Clarence E. Maloy, who recently moved from 4440 Lindell boulevard, to the Greystone apartments.

ner guest Tuesday evening Miss Mary Alice Collins, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Collins. The Collins family has a cottage at Harwichport.

Wood's Hole, Mass.

SOME of Falmouth's finest private gardens were opened Wednesday for the benefit of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Mrs. Edwin S. Webster's rose garden, to which the Garden Club of America awarded first prize was among the group. Mrs. Franklin Parks' notable rock garden, the Geoffrey G. Whitney's unusual herb garden were also in the list of gardens visited.

Dr. and Mrs. Vincent Cowdry had their first Wednesday at home July 7. During July they are entertaining their Woods Hole friends on Wednesdays. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Nims and their guests, Mrs. Thomas Ratcliffe, Mrs. Boyle Rodes, Mrs. Lloyd Stark and Mrs. Albert T. Perkins, were among the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Plant went cruising on the Lili Ana over the week-end of July Fourth with a party of friends aboard. They remained on the water until Wednesday.

Thomas G. Ratcliffe Jr. will spend the week-ends during the summer with his mother, Mrs. Ratcliffe, and his aunt, Mrs. Nims. He will review plays at the Cape Cod summer theaters for the company of which he is play reader and talent scout.

Brewster, Mass.

BREWSTER is the town of old clipper ships and sea captains. Many of the interesting houses have beeen opened this week for visitors, among them the the Captain John Sears house, the Packet, the Captain Isaac Clark house and the Captain Frederick Nickerson house. The Packet was built by Capt. Ruben Sears in 1770. It got its name from the arrival and departure of the packet which was viewed from the Captain's watch. The Capt. Isaac Clark house dates back to 1757.

At Truro, the nearby town to Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Rule are spending the summer in an attractive house.

Marion, Mass.

MARION across Buzzards Bay from Cape Cod on the lower coast of Massachusetts has been a favorite resort for St. Louisans for many years. Here Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nagel have their summer home, and, awaiting their arrival, Mrs. William Barrett, their daughter, occupies the house. Mr. and Mrs. Nagel are expected today.

This year Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Sweetser, with Miss Hope, Miss Ann and Miss Elizabeth have taken a house of their own adjoining that of Mr. and Mrs. Nagel.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Lehmann arrived June 29 for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Lionberger are expected soon.

Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott reached Marion July 6 and her daughter, Mrs. Francis L. Gross, arrived today, to spend the summer.

Oyster Harbors, Mass.

OYSTER HARBORS CLUB celebrated fourth of July with Saturday night fireworks followed by dancing in the club. On Sunday there was a cocktail party for members of the island colony.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gates Williams have a summer residence at Oyster Harbors.

News of Rye Beach And Maine Resorts

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

RYE BEACH, N. H., July 10.

MEMBERS of the St. Louis colony observed the Fourth of July with an informal party at the Beach Club. The most recent attraction of interest was the opening performance of the Farragut Players-Rachel Crother's comedy, "Let Us Be Gay," with Miss Mimi Francis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney R. Francis and granddaughter of former Gov. David R. Francis in the cast.

Arrivals from St. Louis at the Farragut House last week included Mrs. Ames Cushman, Morrison Pettus and his sister, Miss Elise. They will remain for the season.

Ewing Hill of New York, a former St. Louisan, is at his estate, Green Gables. Dr. and Mrs. George Drake, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Akin and Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd will arrive from St. Louis this week. The Drakes will stay at Sawyer's, as is their custom, while Mr. and Mrs. Akin and Mrs. Mudd will be guests at the Farragut House.

Mrs. Clark Clifford and her two young daughters have arrived to share a cottage with Mrs. Clifford's mother, Mrs. Willis Gove Carleton Kimball of Woburn, Mass. Mr. Clifford will join his family late in August.

Ogunquit, Me.

Mrs. Fielding W. Oliver arrived last week at her cottage in Grasshopper lane, and will be joined Aug. 4, by her daughter, Miss Judith Oliver, who will remain with her through September.

Mrs. James Davidson gave a waffle party at her boat house in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Hermann Von Schrenck.

Miss Grace Morrill, who is here for the summer, displayed her work at the opening exhibition of the Ogunquit Art Association this week.

Miss Lucy Nickerson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Nickerson formerly of St. Louis, is here from New Orleans, her present home. She is at the Knight cottage.

Recent arrivals at the Sparhawk Hall from St. Louis are Mrs. Max Schwab and Mrs. James Knowles and her two young sons.

Biddeford Pool, Me.

With the opening of the Yacht Club and the Ogunquit Playhouse this week, the St. Louisans here for the season are finding diversion in addition to the informal beach gatherings, tennis, bridge and small dinners.

Mrs. Russel E. Gardner Jr., gave a cocktail party for about 30 of the guests here for the wedding last week of Miss Caroline Nugent Kennard and James McHenry Torrington. John Gardner was on one of the St. Paul's School boats in the interscholastic races at Marion, Mass., last week.

St. Louisans Arrive at Fish Creek and Ephraim

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

Fish Creek, Wis., July 10

WITH most of the younger set of St. Louisans still occupied elsewhere, Cottage Row, winding along the foot of a ragged limestone cliff has changed little from its early spring quietude. Outmoded cars have not yet made their appearance, nor have the tennis courts between the drive and the cliff acquired their usual gay groups.

On the opposite side of the road, however, long established residents of cottages at the water's edge entertain informally on wide porches. Mrs. Frank P. Crunden, Mrs. Calvin R. Lightner and her sister, Mrs. Frances Cockrell were the first St. Louisans to arrive. They came in May to see the fruit trees in bloom. Mrs. Crunden has since been joined by her daughter, Mrs. Festus J. Wade Jr., and her children, John and Libby. Another daughter, Mrs. Wallace Cole of St. Paul and her sons, Crunden and Wallace Jr., have leased the cottage next door.

The road past Mrs. William H. Elliott's cottage where she is entertaining relatives, leads around the well-known hair pin curve, through cherry-laden orchards and down to the water's edge where arrangements are almost complete for a summer theater. With Miss Caroline Fisher of Chicago as business manager and her brother, Richard Wylie Fisher as productions manager, a group of young persons have taken over the property of the former Wildwood Camp for Boys. The boat house has become the Wharf Theater, with screened sidewalls permitting a view of Green Bay and tiny Hat Island in the distance. Here Sunday night performances will be given, opening with "Seven Sea Birds," by Mr. Fisher. On a terraced hillside a short distance from the shore a cast of professionals from Eastern and Midwestern cities will perform in the theater in the garden. Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" is in rehearsal for the opening Thursday night.

In another section are the cottages of Mrs. Fanny Woodward Mabley and Miss Lillia and Miss Margaret Dyer. Mrs. Mabley, her cottage screened from bathers by high cedar hedges, has as guests her daughter, Mrs. Warren Clark of Burlington, Ia., and Mrs. Clark's daughter, Louise. Judith Clark is a camper at Camp Meenahga for the season. A niece, Mrs. Alf Gunderson of La Crosse, Wis., and her two children will arrive soon to spend the remainder of July.

Ephraim, Wis.

One hundred and sixty members of the Christiansen Choral School assembled from 27 states and Canada have been in session here to study under the direction of F. M. Christiansen, famous director of St. Olaf's College Choir. Included in the group were Miss Birdie Hilb, music instructor of the Roosevelt High School in St. Louis, and George Mechalson of the University High School, both of whom had parts in the night program given recently. A sunset concert directed by Dr. Christiansen from the steps of Eagle Inn attracted a large audience.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Worrall of Kirkwood, their daughter, Miss Helen and their son, James Worrall, have arrived for their second season in the Kirkland cottage on the shore north of Ephraim.

The large log house occupied each summer by the late Mrs. Nellie Plant of Webster Groves is taken for the summer by her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Vail of Evanston and their children, Blanche and Jesse. At one time the Vails lived with Mrs. Plant.

Mr. and Mrs. Banks McDonald are spending 10 days at Maxwelton Braes across the peninsula on the Michigan shore.

Visiting Parents.

Mrs. M. I. Greenberg of Brooklyn, N. Y., is here visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Morris Lazarus, 5372 Maple avenue. She expects to remain several weeks.

Katherine Edwards, J. L. Wagner to Wed

ANNOUNCEMENT was made last Sunday of the engagement of Miss Eva Katherine Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Crockett Edwards, 510 Fairview avenue, Webster Groves, to John Locke Wagner. The news, written on small cards attached to firecrackers issuing from a large firecracker centerpiece, was made known to relatives and close friends of the young pair at an al fresco breakfast given by Mr. and Mrs. Edwards. Out-of-town guests were Arthur Allan Edwards of Mexico, Mo., a brother of the bride-elect, and Norman O. Wagner Jr., brother of the prospective bridegroom.

Miss Edwards attended Stephens College, where she became a member of Eta Upsilon Gamma, and the University of Missouri, where she joined Delta Gamma sorority. She also did graduate work at Washington University. Mr. Wagner, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman O. Wagner, 16 Ellsworth lane, Ladue Village, received his education at the University of Missouri and Washington University. He is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity Scabbard and Blade, a military society. After their wedding, which will occur in the late fall, they will live in Chicago.

Morse Alumni Tea.

Miss Elizabeth Morse was hostess yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock at a tea for the Alumni Association of the Morse School of Expression in the studios of the school. Mrs. Frank A. Ruf and Mrs. Margaret Keaney Mullerleile were guests of honor, and a new Toy Theater with sound-proofing facilities was exhibited. Gordon Sommers, play producer for the school and director of the Morse Players, was present. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Lila Graham Dancy, Mrs. Ann Johnston Reeves, Mrs. Hertha Bernard, Mrs. Mary Leritz and Mrs. Lonie Mae Adams. Mrs. E. J. Wirfs has recently been elected president of the association.

Knapp, Mr. and Mrs. John Brodhead, Miss Barbara Brodhead, Miss Sally Gruner, Mrs. A. P. Horton, Mrs. Joseph O. Toberman and Mrs. Richard Riefling.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brodhead have several house guests. One of them, Miss Dorothy Peabody of Detroit, has come to the Pointe for many years and is well known to many St. Louisans.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Knapp entertained with a buffet supper Monday night.

Mrs. Boyer Candler of Grosse Pointe, Mich., gave an informal buffet supper Monday evening. Among the St. Louisans present were Mrs. David R. Calhoun and Miss Susan Thompson.

Mrs. Cornelius Tompkins has opened her summer home. She has with her as her guest, Mrs. William Crosby, the mother of Mrs. N. S. Chouteau Walsh. They arrived last Tuesday. Mrs. Tompkins' son, Benoist Tompkins, will probably join his mother later in the summer.

Mrs. A. P. Horton arrived last week to open her summer home. Her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Horton of Phoenix, Ariz., formerly of St. Louis, are spending the summer with her.

On Friday Mr. and Mrs. William W. Crapo gave a tea at the clubhouse for all the summer residents of the pointe. Mr. Crapo is the manager of the Pointe Aux Barques Association and lives here all year round.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Chesney of Detroit who were here over the week-end gave a luncheon at the clubhouse Monday at which Mrs. Cabanne Smith and Mrs. William Borders were present.

HARBOR BEACH, Mich.

LIFE here is a round of sports and informal entertainment. Tennis and badminton courts are bright with many hued slacks and shorts, the golf course it dotted with players, but the gayest groups are found about the swimming pool. After a day of strenuous sports all gather at cottages for cocktails before the great bell at the clubhouse rings, announcing dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford Ward have taken a house for the season, and with their four small children are expected to arrive this week.

Miss Beatrice Kroeger, who has been here with her mother, left last Tuesday for Algonquin Park, Ont., where she will spend the remainder of the summer.

Mrs. Frederick R. Peters and her daughters, Miss Marian Peters and Mrs. Robert D. Mudd, arrived last week. They have taken a cottage for the summer. Mrs. Mudd has her children with her, and her husband will join them later.

Miss Dorothy Lakin Engaged to Marry

AT a buffet supper given last night at 7 o'clock by Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Hobart, 7442 Buckingham drive, friends of Miss Dorothy Louise Lakin and Woermer Schoenthaler learned of their engagement. Miss Lakin is the daughter of Perry H. Lakin, 6629 Kingsbury boulevard, and Mr. Schoenthaler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. W. Schoenthaler, 7153 Kingsbury boulevard. The news was told by the means of small scrolls attached to the stems of cocktail glasses.

The wedding will take place Saturday evening, Sept. 18 when a candlelight service will be performed at the Church of St. Michael and St. George.

The bride-to-be attended Washington University where she became a member of Delta Gamma sorority, and Mr. Schoenthaler, a graduate of Washington University, is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Among those present at the announcement party were: Mr. and Mrs. Schoenthaler, parents of the prospective bridegroom; Miss Elsie Schoenthaler, his sister; Robert Schoenthaler, his brother; Mr. and Mrs. Roger Pahmeyer, Miss Ines Hall and her fiance, Willard E. Clark, whose engagement was announced in December; Miss Mary Haley, Lewis Creel, Mr. Lakin, father of the prospective bride; Miss Margaret Hoffman, Melvin Stroup, Miss Louise La Rue and her fiance, Arthur Bickel, whose engagement was announced June 26, and George White.

Many St. Louisans At Charlevoix For Summer Vacation

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., July 10.

THE summer colony at Charlevoix is anticipating a gay season. The Belvedere Hotel and many cottages were filled with guests over the Fourth of July week-end.

Four new brightly painted cabanas have been opened, making a total of 18. The last three opened belong to Charles B. Fox, Mrs. William N. Bemis and Mrs. William T. Ferguson. Each morning by 10 o'clock the beach is filled with children and young people. Thomas Darling of Grand Rapids is the swimming instructor.

The early arrivals at the Belvedere Hotel include Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Buermann and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. Buermann, who are returning from their honeymoon to Bermuda. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Buermann will occupy his parents' home in St. Louis during their stay in Charlevoix. They will return to St. Louis tomorrow.

Also arriving for the Fourth were Mrs. Nicholas A. Doyle, Mrs. Robert C. White and Mrs. Harry L. Murray, with her son and daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Matthews arrived last Saturday to spend the summer in their cottage, next to the hotel. They have as guests Mrs. Matthews' mother, Mrs. James M. Houston, and her other daughter, Mrs. Louise Witherspoon, who arrived a week earlier to open the cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vernon Clark, accompanied by their son, Richard V. Jr., motored to their cottage on the First Terrace last Saturday. Mrs. Clark will remain for the season. A daughter, Miss Elizabeth Clark, arrived at the cottage the middle of June.

Mrs. William Noyes Bemis, formerly of St. Louis, now a resident of Texarkana, Tex., opened her cottage the middle of June, after spending a month with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Green Morris in Cincinnati, O., and a week-end in Grand Rapids with another daughter and son-in-law. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Avery. She was accompanied North by her grandson, Bemis Lawrence Battle, and Mr. Avery's daughter, Miss Nancy, who will spend the summer with Mrs. Bemis.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Leland arrived on June 20. Mrs. Leland will spend the season in her cottage on the First Terrace. Mr. Leland returned to St. Louis after a week-end here, to return Aug. 1. Their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Richmond Ingham of Buffalo, N. Y., with their young son, Jimmie, have taken a cottage up on the Park for July. They arrived for the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Fox motored here Wednesday to open their cottage for the season. The next day their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith Fox, with their infant son, D'Arcy Fox, motored North to join them for the summer. Mr. Fox Sr. and his son, Charles, returned to St. Louis Monday and will visit here occasionally during the summer.

The cottage belonging to the late Dr. Nathaniel Allison, formerly of St. Louis, has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Green of Detroit, who have made extensive alterations and are occupying it with their family. Their daughter, Miss Sally Green, has been a frequent visitor in St. Louis, as the guest of the John Olins of Alton and the R. Vernon Clarks.

The cottage of Mrs. Adele Levis Olin has been opened since early in June. Her daughter, Miss Louise, has just arrived after spending two weeks with her father, John M. Olin of Alton. She is a student at the Spence School in New York. Mr. Olin's eldest daughter, Miss Georgene, is visiting him now and is expected in Charlevoix soon to remain for the season.

The Frank York cottage on the First Terrace has been rented for the season to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Boeschenstein, the former vice-president of the Owens-Illinois Glass Co. of Toledo, O.

Mrs. J. William Ferguson of McAllen, Tex., spent two weeks in her cottage here before renting it for the summer to Mr. and Mrs. C. Oscar Lamy, who will spend the summer here. They motored up with their two daughters, Miss Josephine and Miss Betsey, arriving on the first of July. They are to have all of their family with them at intervals during the summer. Mrs. Charles Lamy arrived Wednesday and Mr. Lamy will join her this week-end.

Mrs. Dwight Currie, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Sally Ann, spent two weeks in their cottage in the Woods, which they rented for the season. They returned by motor to St. Louis last Saturday. Dwight Jr. will spend his summer vacation in Europe.

Miss Helen Schlafly, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. William Connett, and her daughter, Miss Augusta Connett, motored here for a three weeks' stay in their cottage, which has been rented to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gardner of Chicago for the season. Miss Schlafly was joined the last week by another niece, Miss Nancy Connett, who was a guest on the yacht Sylvia, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Logan G. Thompson of Cincinnati, and cruised from Chicago with them and their son, Dwight, around the Great Lakes before arriving in Charlevoix.

WASHINGTON SCENE

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, July 10.

THE Macneil of Barra and Mrs. Robert Lister MacNeil arrived in Washington this week after spending a few days on the eastern shore of Maryland. The Macneil and his bride, the former Mrs. Frederick Hicks of Washington, visited the Isle of Barra, the Macneil stronghold in Scotland, on their honeymoon after their marriage at Mrs. Hicks' home in the national capital and received a welcome from the clansmen. They found the Macneil strong hold Castle Kisimul in ruins but with the walls standing.

The Macneil, a New York architect made plans by which the castle could be restored by using native material and labor.

The Macneils expect to go the Isle of Barra for Christmas and to celebrate the festival there as it has been observed for generations.

The latest loan exhibition at the Corcoran Gallery of Art is that of old world masterpieces by Mrs. Adolph Caspar Miller. They include a portrait of a lady by Meister der Vierziger Jahre; the portrait of a man by Barthel Bruyn, a sixteenth century artist and another portrait of a man by Jan Eworth, also of the sixteenth century.

Ancient Chinese temple paintings have been lent by Mrs. George Barnett. Four tapestries were lent by Mrs. Hugh Campbell Wallace, widow of the former Ambassador to France.

Grand Haven Season Opens With Parties Given by St. Louisans

By a Special Correspondent to the Post-Dispatch.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., July 10.

ST. LOUISANS, who are spending the season at Grand Haven are looking forward to the water fete Aug. 3, 4, 5 to observe the one-hundred and forty-seventh anniversary of the Coast Guard Service. Ceremonies will be held to commemorate the memories of coast guardsmen who died in rescue efforts.

The three days will be given over to barbecues, officers' dinners, dances, as well as athletic competition among the coast guardsmen from the Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh districts. Admiral R. R. Waesche, Washington, commander of the service, is expected to be here with officers from the Chicago division. A two-mile pulling race for which headquarters has hung up a large purse will be the climax to the festival. The crews are chosen from the stations of the three districts —Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh.

Highland Park and Spring Lake resort areas sprang into life over the Fourth of July weekend. Many St. Louisans have returned for two months to play golf, swim, sail, hike and do horseback riding. The North Shore, a new resort, is also favored by many from St. Louis.

Among the newcomers at Grand Haven this year are Mr. and Mrs. John R. Shepley and their sons, John Jr. and Terry, and their daughter, Betty. They plan to spend two months.

Back for the summer are the Samuel Dozier Conants and their daughters, Betty, Helen and Louise, and son, Judson. They, too, are taking a cottage for the third year at the North Shore. Miss Betty has as her house guest, Miss Virginia Hill, who will be here for three weeks.

Mrs. Preston B. Postlethwaite and her daughter, Miss Ara, arrived July 2 to spend the season at the cottage on the North Shore where the family was last season. Mr. Postlethwaite and A. H. Timmerman were here over the last week-end, but have returned to St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Carpenter arrived in the spring to open their house on Spring Lake. They had as week-end guests over the Fourth, Langdon Carton, Martin Lammert III and Warren Lammert. Their son, Noel, has a schooner on the lake this year called "The Seagirl," which he purchased last year at Chicago. He entertains his friends aboard at the Spring Lake Yacht Club, where the boat docks.

Mrs. A. E. White and her daughter, Miss Elise, are here in their new cottage on the North Shore. They had been at Highland Park many years. Mr. White joined his family the past week-end and expects to return for short visits. Alex McBay is to be one of the first guests to be entertained at the new home. Miss White was here earlier in the season to be a bridesmaid at the Beaudrias-Handley wedding.

Judge and Mrs. Maurice B. Joyce and their two children, Maurice B. Jr. and Jean Kay, have joined the St. Louis colony again this year on the North Shore. Over the week-end holiday they entertained Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Christy and their daughters, Charlotte and Katherine, at a dinner party at the Spring Lake Country Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Mitchell and their daughter, Miss Nancy, have been here for about three weeks, ensconced in their home, "Fernhollow" on Spring Lake. Their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crane Mitchell of Los Angeles flew here last week to be their guests for a short while. Sunday night the Mitchells gave a cocktail party in their guests' honor.

Mrs. Frank Schramm and family are summering at Woodcroft. Her children are Jack, Joy, Betty and Sally. Mr. Schramm was with them over the past week-end but has returned to St. Louis.

Mrs. Milton B. Strauss has taken the Virginia again—a cottage she has had for the last 20 years. Her son, John, spent the holidays last week-end with her and her guests at present are Mrs. Joseph Weber and her niece, Miss Virginia Rockwell.

In their own cottage, "Ridgwood," again this season are the Brenton Van Cleave family. Their son, J. Wallace, and daughter, Miss Betty, are spending the summer here. Also back are W. H. Ware and children, Tom and Patsy. Miss Patsy has as her guest Miss Joyce Harris.

Mrs. Hattie Montgomery is at Idlewyld and has as her guests her grandsons, Charles Cadey of Baltimore and Montie Montgomery. Also entertaining are Mr. and Mrs. John B. Gross at their cottage, Ranch 144. They have Mrs. Harry Hartmann of Chicago and Miss Estella and Miss Lucille Gross of St. Louis.

Mrs. H. M. Goldsmith and her son, Robert, are occupying "The Shack," on St. Louis ridge at Highland Park. Her husband and son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Goldsmith Jr., will be up later this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Sheehan and their children, Marion and Danny, have taken "Woodpath," a cottage, for two weeks. Their guests over the Fourth were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dorst.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Steinhoff and daughters, Mary Lee and Sally Ann, and Miss Laura Nicholson are settled here for the summer.

WATER CARNIVAL TODAY AT CAMP IRONDALE

Boy Scouts Will Compete in Swimming and Diving Contests.

Boy Scouts at Camp Irondale, operated by the St. Louis Council, will entertain visitors this afternoon with a water carnival. Swimming and diving contests will make up the program which will feature a demonstration of Life Saving Requirements.

The 301 scouts attending the present adventure session are anticipating many thrills Thursday, when the camp program comes to its climax. A barbecue, followed by a moonlight hike, is planned for the evening.

The following troops from St. Louis and vicinity are now encamped at Irondale: Troops 31, 38, 49, 53, 54, 57, 74, 90, 114, 236 and 307. In addition there are 58 unattached scouts in the Lewis unit, a provisional group made up of individual members from the St. Louis area.

The third section of Lion's Den, short-term Boy Scout camp at Seckman, Mo., came to a close Friday evening with a wagon train pageant, representing Daniel Boone making his way over the Mississippi River bluffs in 1797. The pageant was developed by the scouts after a talk by Camp Director Max Nusser at a service last Sunday evening in which he stressed the significance of the Fourth of July and the American spirit in relation to scouting tradition and scout lives.

Troops 19, 156, 228 and 243 were encamped at Lion's Den last week. For a majority of the boys, this was their first experience at camping and each one was free to follow a camp program formulated by troop leaders.

More than 500 scouts attended the two camps over the Fourth of July holidays and not a single accident marred the period.

Troop Notes.

A Court of Honor was held Friday evening by Troop 17 of the First United Presbyterian Church.

Troop 168 of St. Pius Church is preparing to demonstrate totem poles at the Boy Scout Merit Badge Show to be held next fall. Last week the troop, accompanied by Scoutmaster J. C. Metzger, visited the old tourist camp in Forest Park and studied the Totem Pole erected there.

St. Louis Sea Scout units plan to resume activities at the Sea Scout base, Creve Coeur Lake, next Sunday, when most of the leaders now attending the National Jamboree will have returned.

Girl Scouts.

About 300 girls are enrolled in the six Girl Scout Day Camps now being operated in St. Louis and vicinity. Each camp meets from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. for eight days during the summer.

The last Girl Scout Day Camp to open met for the first time Tuesday at the new Shaw Park in Clayton under the direction of Mrs. H. A. Quade. The camp will continue to meet every Tuesday and Friday until July 30.

The final session of the Day Camp in Ferguson will be held Wednesday on the high school grounds, followed by a supper and an entertainment program in the evening.

The Webster Groves Day Camp will hold its final meeting Thursday on the Nerinx Hall high school grounds, with a presentation of plays and shadowgraphs to be witnessed by parents and friends.

Three other Girl Scout Day Camps are now in progress, one at Tower Grove Park, another near the Chain of Rocks Park, and a third at the Old Tourist Camp in Forest Park.

ESTIMATES 70,000 WANDER HOMELESS IN CALIFORNIA

Social Worker Says Whole Families Have Moved From Drouth Areas Into San Joaquin Valley.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 10.—Harold H. Robertson, a social worker has estimated that 70,000 homeless persons are wandering in California's great San Joaquin Valley.

Robertson, secretary of the Gospel Army, a relief and social organization, said he based his estimate on "figures supplied by county health officers, city Police Chiefs and Mayors."

Two Los Angeles County supervisors said they would move for a County-State-Federal Relief Conference and ask Gov. Frank Merriam to attend.

Robertson declared most of the people, largely family groups, had moved to the Valley from drouth areas.

"Many of them are starving," he said. "There are official records showing deaths from malnutrition and exposure."

He declared communicable diseases "are prevalent."

Hospitals in San Joaquin Valley are taxed beyond capacity."

County supervisors Roger Jessup and Gordon McDonough suggested the relief conference, fearing the distressed families will move on to the already over-crowded Los Angeles County, and other nearby counties.

SCOUT MASTERS CALL JAMBOREE A SUCCESS

But Chief Leader Has "No Idea" of Whether He'll Call Another One.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 10. — Boy Scout executives said today the 10-day Scout Jamboree just closed was "successful from all angles." They joined many of the 27,000 scouts in expressing the opinion that the $2,000,000 mass demonstration observed the silver anniversary of scouting fittingly.

Dr. James E. West, chief scout executive, said he had "no idea" whether he would recommend to the Scout Executive Council that another be held.

"Right now," he said, "no thought is being given as to whether to make this a regular activity. All we know now is that this jamboree has exceeded all expectations and it most certainly has been less of a headache than we expected."

With a smile, he recalled six nightly historical pageants by groups of from 3000 to 5000 boys, the mass transportation of the scouts on sight-seeing trips, their "excellent health record" and the 250 tons of food it took to feed them.

"I think the jamboree will be not only a great boon to scouting everywhere but also to the morale of hundreds of thousands of boys all over the country," he said. "The 27,000 boys who came here will tell many thousands more all about it."

West said he was "proud" that the Boy Scouts of the United States had remained a non-militaristic organization.

"Scouting in Germany, for instance," he said, "went out with the Treaty of Versailles. Since the World War and the overthrow of the original German Government, they've developed this German Youth Movement which has been a headache."

Although 24 nations sent scouts to the jamboree, Germany, Italy and Russia were the only three major foreign nations not represented.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN TO BE 100 THURSDAY

Family of Mrs. Charlotte Waechter Meyer to Hold Reunion on Birthday.

A family reunion will be held Thursday to celebrate the 100th birthday of Mrs. Charlotte Waechter Meyer, 5446 Neosho street, a resident of St. Louis for 70 years. Her daughter, three sons, 10 grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren, and other relatives, will be present.

Mrs. Meyer was the wife of a farmer in Hanover and the mother of five children when, in 1867, she and her husband determined to take the family to the United States, where her parents had preceded her. The voyage across the Atlantic in a sailing vessel required 11 weeks. Her youngest child died on the boat and was buried at sea.

Now she is content to sit at home beside her radio with her constant companion "Tiny," a bulldog, and to help a bit with household tasks which fall chiefly to the daughter with whom she makes her home, Mrs. Emma K. Hill.

Her eyes and her hearing are beginning to fail, so that she can no longer visit her friends, attend church or the theater, or do the needlework with which she occupied herself in former years. Yet mentallly she is alert and active.

The world has changed much in her lifetime, Mrs. Meyer observed, but she finds it little better or worse, just "different." She has no formula to offer for a long life, and is a bit surprised that she should have lived 100 years, but she enjoys life, and smiles easily.

Her first home in St. Louis was at Jefferson avenue and Hickory street, a neighborhood which then had but a few scattered houses. For a few years her husband, Fred W. Meyer, who died 40 years ago, worked in brickyards. Later he became a railroad machinist.

Mrs. Meyer was a charter member of St. Luke's Evangelical Church, formerly at Jefferson and Scott avenues, now at Tennessee and Shenandoah avenues. She attended services there regularly until a few years ago.

Mrs. Meyer outlived five of her nine children. Those who survive, in addition to Mrs. Hill, are her sons, Henry, Herman and August Meyer, all of whom live in St. Louis.

ILLINOIS GOVERNOR SIGNS SOIL CONSERVATION BILL

Law Creates State Board and Authorizes Formation of Local Districts.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 10.—The Federal Government's soil conservation bill, the major piece of farm legislation passed by the Sixtieth General Assembly, became law today with Gov. Horner's signature. The law creates a State board and authorizes the formation of local districts to handle anti-erosion campaigns.

Before introduction, the bill was rewritten in Springfield to remove most of the Federally-sponsored provisions requiring farmers to join in the soil-saving work.

A penalty clause was inserted in late June by Senator Melvin Thomas, Charleston Democrat, specifying that farmers trying to block formation of districts be responsible for court costs.

Soil conservation districts can be formed with the consent of 75 per cent of the land owners under the new law.

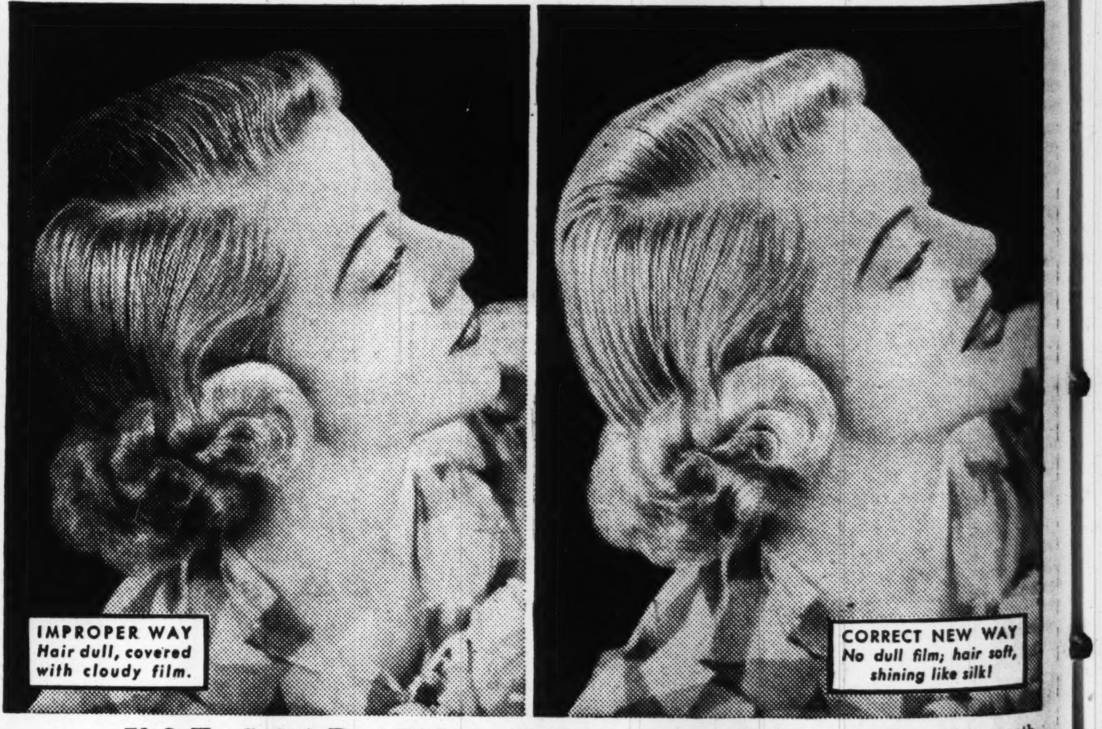
Thrilling Shampoo Keeps Hair Radiant During Summer Months



IMPROPER WAY
Hair dull, covered with cloudy film.
CORRECT NEW WAY
No dull film; hair soft, shining like silk!

NOT SOAP—NOT OIL
It magically removes dulling perspiration and dust; leaves hair gleaming like silk

It's no wonder women everywhere are raving about this amazing new liquid shampoo—as a beautifying aid especially beneficial during summer. For it gives your hair a thrilling new gleam even during hottest summer days when hair becomes dull, matted and sticky from dust and perspiration. Yes, a single application makes summer dulled hair a radiant, glistening halo.

Look at the girl above. See what a difference it makes when you use it. So try it soon—see how beautiful your hair really can be all summer long.

Just how this unusual shampoo works these miracles is a new, scientific secret. It isn't oil, it isn't soap—it isn't anything you've heard of before. Scientists have brought us something brand new; a shampoo so different that they've patented the process by which it is made. Magically quick and easy to use—a boon in summer when frequent shampoos are needed. You simply wet your hair, pour on a few drops and instantly you get a glorious billowy lather. Five times more lather than soap in hardest water. Lather so cleansing that it rids hair and scalp of dirt, grime and perspiration with a single sudsing. You cannot possibly find an easier way to clean your hair.

You rub this active lather briskly into the hair, rinse thoroughly—and you're through. "What?" you say, "no special rinses; no vinegar, lemon or after-rinses to 'cut' the film?" No—they are not necessary. Just a thorough dousing in clear water. That's the marvelous part. Drene cannot leave unrinsable soap film on hair to cover up natural lustre as ordinary shampoos do.

Your hair is left radiant, silky, smooth. Even dull, bleached or dyed hair becomes more brilliant, more natural looking after a Drene shampoo. More amazing, embarrassing flakes of dandruff disappear with a single washing. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Women who have used it for months rave about the thrilling new beauty, new life, new brilliance their hair possesses.

Today, there is no excuse for you to allow your charm to be dimmed by dull, lifeless, stringy hair during the summer. Whether your hair is blonde, auburn, brown, brunette or gray a single washing with Drene will magically give your hair shimmering beauty and a richer, warmer tone.

Procter & Gamble make this marvel, and you can buy it in various sizes at all drug, department and ten cent stores. Only half a tablespoonful for a perfect shampoo. The most economical and beautifying shampoo you have ever used. Try Drene at once. Buy the large size. It costs less per shampoo.

MOVE FOR WAGE RULE IN SCHOOL CONTRACTS

Special Committee of Board to Consider Enforcing Labor Standards.

A special committee of the Board of Education to consider the desirability and expediency of enforcing labor standards in the board's contracts for supplies will be appointed by President Francis C. Sullivan at Tuesday night's board meeting, Dr. Sullivan announced yesterday.

The committee will be created in response to a request by Mrs. Haymer Lowenhaupt, a board member. She proposed that a report be made at the September board meeting whether it was advisable and expedient for the board to undertake sponsorship of labor standarsd and, if so, whether the board should establish definite standards or merely reserve the right to reject bids when of the opinion working conditions for production of supplies were unsatisfactory.

Mrs. Lowenhaupt's Letter.

"The question of labor policy," Mrs. Lowenhaupt said in a letter to the president, copies of which were sent to other board members, "has been increasingly important and has been before the public constantly for many months. The statutes provide that the board shall let contracts to reliable bidders. It may be that this language is sufficiently broad to justify the board in rejecting bids of contractors who do not conform to certain accepted standards of wages, hours and other working conditions for their labor."

Mrs. Lowenhaupt referred in the communication to the board's discussion last month about award of its annual contracts for supply of coal, saying this made her realize the need of a "more enlightened labor policy."

At the meeting June 8, Mark D. Eagleton, lawyer and member of the Auditing and Supplies Committee, submitted a minority report opposing the closing of the contracts for coal. He asserted that disparity in the bids was due to the intention of some bidders to use labor paid "starvation wages" in delivery of the fuel.

Some of the bidders, he said, had paid drivers as little as $1 per load for a minimum round trip of four hours from Illinois mines, with the frequent requirement that the drivers may work as long as 16 hours to haul two loads, and their fatigue is a traffic hazard. The board should not tolerate this practice, he maintained, but should require payment of the equivalent of the union wage scale of $5.25 for an eight-hour day.

Majority Report Accepted.

After a 10-day delay, the board accepted the majority report of the Auditing and Supplies Committee and awarded contracts for $100,837 for the year's fuel supply. The vote on adoption of the majority report was 9 to 2, with Eagleton and Thomas F. Quinn, president of the Building Trades Council, dissenting and Vice-President Edward A. Ferrenbach absent.

In the debate Eagleton cited, for part of the supply, a difference of 34 cents a ton between the accepted low bidder and another bidder "who pays his drivers." The higher price for this contract alone would have added several thousand dollars to the fuel bill for the year.

Mrs. Lowenhaupt, discussing her letter with a Post-Dispatch reporter, said: "I do not think we can do, as we have recently done, wait until an unsatisfactory letting is brought before us and hunt around for a means to reject it. We should have a policy of some kind. This is just a question of fairness." She did not suggest any specific policy.

As in other public contracts, the law requires that the Board of Education must award contracts to the lowest responsible bidders. However, labor standards might be included in the specifications on which bids were based.

SHIP SAILS FOR THE ARCTIC

Leaves Montreal to Establish New Hudson Bay Trading Post.

MONTREAL, Que., July 10 (Canadian Press). — The Arctic patrol ship Nascopie sailed for Hudson Bay today to discharge a Hudson Bay Co. contingent to form a new trading post on Ballot Strait, between the Canadian mainland and North Somerset Island. The new post will be Fort Hearne, on a spot no white man is known to have visited since 1834.

The most isolated point to be visited is Craig Harbor, Ellesmere Island, the British Empire's most northerly postoffice. Among the 83 who sailed today were 11 mounted police, four missionaries, and five tourists.

TRAFFIC LAWS FOR BICYCLES

Notices Calling Attention to Regulations to Be Posted.

Signs urging bicycle riders to observe the laws which regulate automobile traffic will be posted by police this week in bicycle rental and repair shops and on streets frequented by bicyclists.

The educational campaign was suggested by Sergt. Roland J. Schumacher of the Traffic Division, who has lectured on safety to many school children of the city. He has asked the co-operation of local cycling clubs.

ILLINOIS GOVERNOR SIGNS SOIL CONSERVATION BILL

Law Creates State Board and Authorizes Formation of Local Districts.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 10.—The Federal Government's soil conservation bill, the major piece of farm legislation passed by the Sixtieth General Assembly, became law today with Gov. Horner's signature. The law creates a State board and authorizes the formation of local districts to handle anti-erosion campaigns.

Before introduction, the bill was rewritten in Springfield to remove most of the Federally-sponsored provisions requiring farmers to join in the soil-saving work.

A penalty clause was inserted in late June by Senator Melvin Thomas, Charleston Democrat, specifying that farmers trying to block formation of districts be responsible for court costs.

Soil conservation districts can be formed with the consent of 75 per cent of the land owners under the new law.

CORRECT NEW WAY
No dull film; hair soft, shining like silk!

Your hair is left radiant, silky, smooth. Even dull, bleached or dyed hair becomes more brilliant, more natural looking after a Drene shampoo. More amazing, embarrassing flakes of dandruff disappear with a single washing. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Women who have used it for months rave about the thrilling new beauty, new life, new brilliance their hair possesses.

Today, there is no excuse for you to allow your charm to be dimmed by dull, lifeless, stringy hair during the summer. Whether your hair is blonde, auburn, brown, brunette or gray, a single washing with Drene will magically give your hair shimmering beauty and a richer, warmer tone.

Procter & Gamble make this marvel, and you can buy it in various sizes at all drug, department and ten cent stores. Only half a tablespoonful for a perfect shampoo. The most economical and beautifying shampoo you have ever used. Try Drene at once. Buy the large size. It costs less per shampoo.

MOVE FOR WAGE RULE IN SCHOOL CONTRACTS

Special Committee of Board to Consider Enforcing Labor Standards.

A special committee of the Board of Education to consider the desirability and expediency of enforcing labor standards in the board's contracts for supplies will be appointed by President Francis C. Sullivan at Tuesday night's board meeting, Dr. Sullivan announced yesterday.

The committee will be created in response to a request by Mrs. Haymer Lowenhaupt, a board member. She proposed that a report be made at the September board meeting whether it was advisable and expedient for the board to undertake sponsorship of labor standarsd and, if so, whether the board should establish definite standards or merely reserve the right to reject bids when of the opinion working conditions for production of supplies were unsatisfactory.

Mrs. Lowenhaupt's Letter.

"The question of labor policy," Mrs. Lowenhaupt said in a letter to the president, copies of which were sent to other board members, "has been increasingly important and has been before the public constantly for many months. The statutes provide that the board shall let contracts to reliable bidders. It may be that this language is sufficiently broad to justify the board in rejecting bids of contractors who do not conform to certain accepted standards of wages, hours and other working conditions for their labor."

Mrs. Lowenhaupt referred in the communication to the board's discussion last month about award of its annual contracts for supply of coal, saying this made her realize the need of a "more enlightened labor policy."

At the meeting June 8, Mark D. Eagleton, lawyer and member of the Auditing and Supplies Committee, submitted a minority report opposing the closing of the contracts for coal. He asserted that disparity in the bids was due to the intention of some bidders to use labor paid "starvation wages" in delivery of the fuel.

Some of the bidders, he said, had paid drivers as little as $1 per load for a minimum round trip of four hours from Illinois mines, with the frequent requirement that the drivers may work as long as 16 hours to haul two loads, and their fatigue is a traffic hazard. The board should not tolerate this practice, he maintained, but should require payment of the equivalent of the union wage scale of $5.25 for an eight-hour day.

Majority Report Accepted.

After a 10-day delay, the board accepted the majority report of the Auditing and Supplies Committee and awarded contracts for $100,837 for the year's fuel supply. The vote on adoption of the majority report was 9 to 2, with Eagleton and Thomas F. Quinn, president of the Building Trades Council, dissenting and Vice-President Edward A. Ferrenbach absent.

In the debate Eagleton cited, for part of the supply, a difference of 34 cents a ton between the accepted low bidder and another bidder "who pays his drivers." The higher price for this contract alone would have added several thousand dollars to the fuel bill for the year.

Mrs. Lowenhaupt, discussing her letter with a Post-Dispatch reporter, said: "I do not think we can do, as we have recently done, wait until an unsatisfactory letting is brought before us and hunt around for a means to reject it. We should have a policy of some kind. This is just a question of fairness." She did not suggest any specific policy.

As in other public contracts, the law requires that the Board of Education must award contracts to the lowest responsible bidders. However, labor standards might be included in the specifications on which bids were based.

SHIP SAILS FOR THE ARCTIC

Leaves Montreal to Establish New Hudson Bay Trading Post.

MONTREAL, Que., July 10 (Canadian Press). — The Arctic patrol ship Nascopie sailed for Hudson Bay today to discharge a Hudson Bay Co. contingent to form a new trading post on Ballot Strait, between the Canadian mainland and North Somerset Island. The new post will be Fort Hearne, on a spot no white man is known to have visited since 1834.

The most isolated point to be visited is Craig Harbor, Ellesmere Island, the British Empire's most northerly postoffice. Among the 83 who sailed today were 11 mounted police, four missionaries, and five tourists.

TRAFFIC LAWS FOR BICYCLES

Notices Calling Attention to Regulations to Be Posted.

Signs urging bicycle riders to observe the laws which regulate automobile traffic will be posted by police this week in bicycle rental and repair shops and on streets frequented by bicyclists.

The educational campaign was suggested by Sergt. Roland J. Schumacher of the Traffic Division, who has lectured on safety to many school children of the city. He has asked the co-operation of local cycling clubs.

Gothic Tapestry Presented to City Art Museum

Woven in Brussels for the Royal House of Spain, It Tells the Biblical Story of David and Bathsheba.

THE huge 400-year-old Gothic tapestry recently presented to the City Art Museum by Mrs. Audrey Faust Wallace and Leicester Busch Faust was the most prized work in the art collection of their father, the late Edward A. Faust, St. Louis capitalist.

Woven in Brussels for the royal house of Spain, it represents the full flowering of the art in portraying the Old Testament drama of King David and Bathsheba, beautiful wife of Uriah, the Hittite soldier. When Mr. Faust bought it in 1916, its value was estimated among connoisseurs to be around $100,000, but its owner always declined to discuss it in terms of cost.

With a width of 21 feet 5½ inches and a height of 11 feet 10½ inches, it includes 38 figures, some of them of life size. Age has not greatly dimmed the richness of its coloring or the brilliance given it by silk employed in its construction. Its limning is remarkable, the figures seeming to stand out in high relief. The gifted artist who created it is unknown, although in style it is related to a set of 10 tapestries on a similar theme in the Cluny Museum in Paris, the work of a master identified only as "Maitre Phillipe."

The three phases of the story as depicted in the tapestry are not separated by frames. As told in the second book of Samuel, beginning with the 11th chapter, it will be remembered, David became enamoured of Bathsheba when he observed her at her bath, and ordered her soldier-husband, Uriah, to the forefront of the battle so that he was slain, leaving Bathsheba free to marry David.

The dominant scene that covers most of the tapestry, shows Nathan, the prophet, in the foreground sternly denouncing the King for his duplicity and promising that the first-born of the marriage should die as punishment, while David and Bathsheba stand penitently in front of a richly decorated double throne. In the upper left-hand corner David is shown sending Uriah forth as the unknown bearer of his own death warrant, and the upper right-hand corner portrays Uriah delivering to Joab, commander of the army fighting the Ammonites, the letter instructing Joab to send Uriah to his doom.

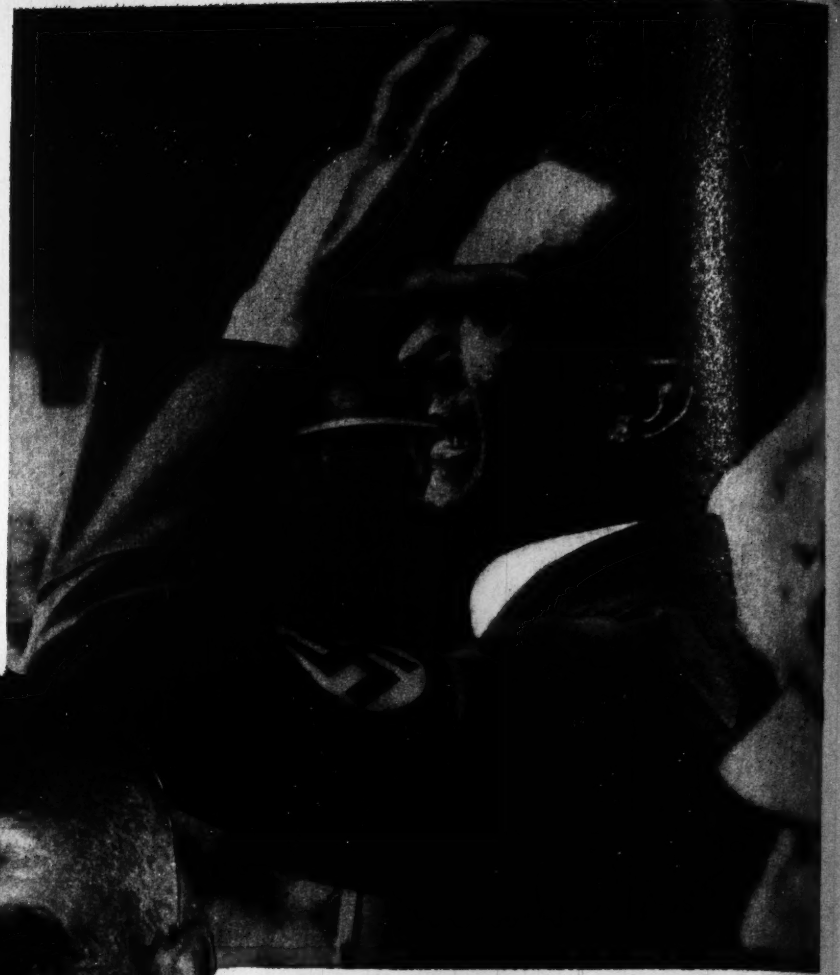
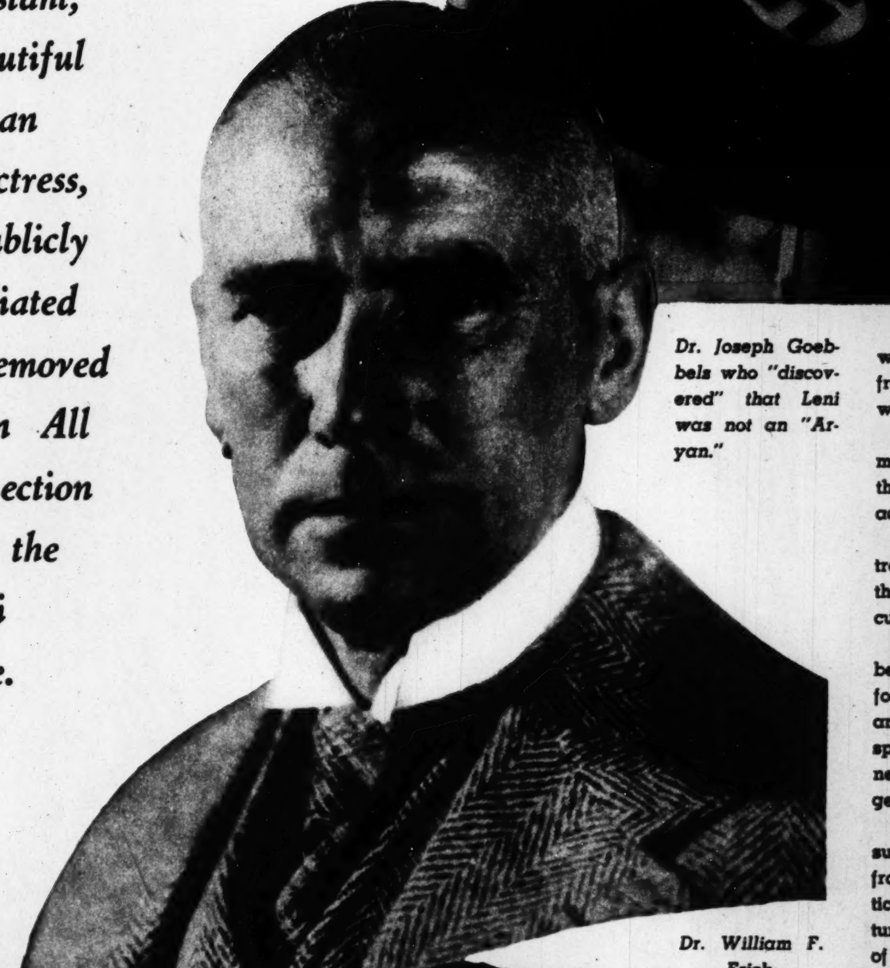
Photographic study of Leni Riefenstahl.

The Downfall of Another Hitler Favorite

Why Leni Riefenstahl, the Beautiful German Movie Actress, Was Publicly Humiliated and Removed From All Connection With the Nazi Regime.



Dr. Joseph Goebbels who "discovered" that Leni was not an "Aryan."



Dr. William F. Frick.

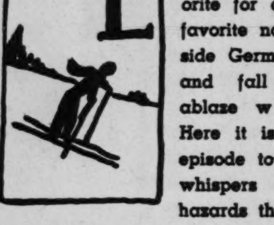
Leni Riefenstahl in skiing costume.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine



BERLIN, Germany.

LENI RIEFENSTAHL, favorite for a while, is a favorite no more. Outside Germany, her rise and fall may seem ablaze with drama. Here it is but another episode to illustrate—in whispers only—the hazards that lurk in tyrants' favor. It may be "30" for her, but no one person's finish means very much any more in a country which has seen the most terrible "30" of all, the June 30 of the blood purge. Such individual sorrows are but the chance by-product of life where unimaginable power is wielded with unimaginable caprice.

The beautiful Leni, it seems, is what the Nazis call a Jew. The powers are aghast. What, a non-Aryan in a post of importance—nothing less, in fact, than Film Director of National Pomp and Pageantry? Something must be done about it, and something is. She is publicly denounced, shorn of office and title, barred from her apartment.

But the peculiar thing about it is that nobody ever suspected Leni was anything else. It was a matter of common gossip, through all the three years while her star was in the ascendant, that her mother was of Jewish ancestry. Somebody, the story goes, had the gall to mention it to Hitler. His reputed answer seems particularly apt at the moment.

"It is I," said der Fuehrer, "who determines who is and who is not a Jew!"

That may be worth remembering in the face of current reports that it was not Herr Hitler, but Dr. Goebbels, Fraulein Riefenstahl's technical superior in the field of propaganda, who "determined" in this case. In that connection, a remark of her own about Herr Hitler, construed in the past in all conceivable shades of meaning, has come in for its share of renewed attention.

When Leni Riefenstahl, daughter of what the New Nordics call a Jewess, became the recipient of high office and marked personal favor from the dictator, there were all sorts of rumors of romantic implications. To them Leni replied:

"Der Reichsfuehrer could not love anyone, except platonically."

Unquesionably, for she has been the soul of discretion, she meant it in the most complimentary sense. Perhaps she actually said "would." But her capricious overthrow—in the present lack of proof that Hitler had nothing to do with it—revives legends of other romantic episodes in Hitler's life, likewise abruptly terminated, of his niece's suicide; of some unpublished quirk of personality implied in his continued bachelorhood.

While some students untouched by Nazi bias or terror have asserted there were, in effect, no women in his life, others have said Leni was the latest of a long series, and produced indications if not evidence that some of them had, in the Americanism, ditched him. He sent for her in 1934, when she was already one of the most famous of German movie actresses.

The cinema, along with motoring and Wagnerian opera, was one of his chief interests. He has told of seeing three and four shows a day. It was natural that he should become one of the thousands of her fans, though it was carrying his admiration pretty far (as Dr. Goebbels must have considered) to make her a dictator of the films.

He was attracted, the story goes, by the sheer courage she displayed as the star of "S O S," in the filming of which she spent six adventurous months in Greenland. The report that she kept his photograph in her tent for that half year may or may not have had anything to do with it.

Poetically, the story goes, she typified to him the Valkyrie—beauty and courage and Germanic pagan tradition. That her very striking style of beauty meant anything more to him is a matter only of report, but the reports are understandable at a glance. She is a brunette, rather tall, vivacious and confident, with a boyish figure and a graceful, jaunty stride, brown eyes with a glint and a wide, resolute mouth which yet have not lost the capacity to melt, as the movies characteristically take occasion to show.

But Leni, it seems, didn't go for that melting business. Fraulein Riefenstahl's preferred to rely on the sensual titillations of unusual photography and harrowing action, with plenty of dangers for the heroine—herself.

And, with the freedom which German directors allow a star, she was able to put it over. One of her two most famous pictures, "Blue Light," was filmed in the Dolomites and packed with nerve-wracking episodes of skiing and mountain climbing. And Leni, refusing a double, took all the risks herself.

But they were nothing compared with the situations, on the screen and off, of "S O S." With Ernst Udet, dare devil pilot, she made 12 hazardous flights across water choked with ice floes. Once, in filming action on the sheer pinnacles of an iceberg, the entire camera crew was thrown into the water and Leni was left marooned hundreds of feet above. Unperturbed, she munched seal sandwiches until means was devised to rescue her from her perch.

ALL this, of course, might well be expected to have a special effect on the emotions of a man so susceptible that he has been reported to put himself in tears, unashamed, by his own oratory. But, whatever the personal elements back of Leni's rise to power, the fact remains that she is a person of excellent intelligence and discretion, powerful and engaging personality, and has done Hitler and his party much good that the public knows.

The stay-at-home world saw the Olympic Games through her eyes, for she had sole charge of the movie news—a separate film for every country, and a very special one for Germany. For three years she has handled the "Partietag," the annual conference of 800,000 Nazis at Nuremburg, with a free hand that included not only the direction of a shock corps of 60 camera men, but the disposition of the delegates themselves to make the best show, and therefore the most effective propaganda, on the screen.

Socially, also, she was of known service to her masters. Her circle was perhaps the most sparkling, if not the most brilliant, in the capital. She was surrounded by young people, by celebrities in the arts and in the movies. Unquestionably she won rather than merely commanded the talent of movie personages for the cause of Nazi propaganda. She dealt out letters of introduction with a liberal but discerning hand.

But all this, while it made her more valuable in the field of propaganda, might carry her full tilt into the interplay of jealousies. Goebbels has a wife. And so has Goering. And both these good women may have felt that their stars waned as Leni's waxed bright, not merely in the prestige of her drawing room, but in personal concessions made her by the Leader, which for a while seemed likely to set her over them both as First Lady.

There was, for example, her apparent immunity from criticism. It meant nothing, perhaps, that many considered her filming of two Nuremburg conferences second rate. But it was of crucial significance that even der Fuehrer's phobia against Jews did not seem to offer a vulnerable spot through which she could be reached.

She was said to have free access to Hitler, unannounced, at any hour. He had sponsored her participation in party powwows that were otherwise for men only; at one meeting, she was the only woman among thousands of men.

IT WAS not the first time she had been the only woman in a gathering of men, as the good hausfrauen, including Frau Goering and Frau Goebbels, were apt to whisper. She had been alone for months in a party of men in Greenland—or chaperoned, perhaps, by her photograph of der Fuehrer—and laughed off gossip with the remark that there's safety in numbers.

She had an easy way with men that stodgy women, accepting the dominance of males and the patriotic urge to mass production of cannon fodder, were apt to consider a personal affront. She had danced in a Paris night club, and if her early ambitions for the ballet didn't mean anything to gossip, Paris night life did. Her father was a Berlin plumber; her mother a Russian woman, and if Hitler chose to shut his eyes to reports of a Jewish grandmother, yet there was no reason for her enemies to abstain from genealogical research against the day when its results might be used against her.

Thus the stage was set for the recent musicale of Dr. Wilhelm Frick, Minister of the Interior. But first a word about the actors.

It was Dr. Frick himself, civil service trained, "the only honest Nazi," who drafted the anti-Semitic law defining the ancestral curse even unto the third generation.

And then there is Dr. Joseph Paul Goebbels (Ph. D. Heidelberg), born with a club foot, with a gift of tongues and of malice and a devious adroitness, the most potent spellbinder next to Hitler, and perhaps the neatest schemer of the lot. His is not a gentle or forgiving nature.

He is not a Jew, but there is a curious suggestion in his appearance, especially from some angles and in some characteristic expressions, of the anti-Semitic caricatures which figure largely in his own field of propaganda.

These the principals, then, with Leni herself. If there were others, their hands were not shown until later. If Hitler was a chief actor behind the scene, he has not chosen to reveal himself. All the public knows begins with the gathering of the crowd at Dr. Frick's home before the musicale.

Leni was there, Dr. Goebbels was there, all the right people were there. Old and sensitive hands at intrigue might have noted a lurking gleam in Goebbel's eye or a hint of tension, of watchfulness for a moment.

THE moment came. It was that lull when everyone had arrived, when the chatter stilled and the guests settled themselves for the beginning of the music. Dr. Goebels rose.

"I am leaving," he shouted, his face purpling, veins swelling in that so-familiar way—"because there is someone here who is non-Aryan."

The gathering, such is the impact of that epithet in Berlin, was frozen with astonishment and fear. Goebbels—perhaps to forestall a confession by the wrong person—thundered again:

"I have documents before me to prove that one of Leni Riefenstahl's ancestors was a Semite."

But he made no move to go home as he had threatened, and indeed there was no necessity for him even to pick up his marbles, for the host obliged at once by escorting the dishonored Fraulein to the door and putting her in a taxicab.

She was prevented from entering her apartment by an S S guard.

"Why?" she cried. "How has this come about? Is it possible?"

The black shirt, with the helpfulness of his kind the world over, said that orders were orders and he took his from Dr. Goebbels.

She sought a refuge with relatives, and wired to Hitler in his Bavarian retreat. She never got a reply. But she got notice that she was shorn not only of authority, but of citizenship, and when she applied for a passport to take advantage of an offer from Hollywood, she learned that Dr. Goebbels had blocked it; she was a prisoner in her own country.

Inevitably where all facts are suppressed, a weed crop of rumors have sprung up—even that Hitler wanted to marry her, but was pushed out of it, and even pushed into acceding to her ruin, by his advisers. But there is a more persistent rumor involving another actor in the tense little drama behind the scenes. This is Gustave Gruendgens, head of the German State Theater, a rival and outspoken critic of her propaganda films, who is said to have financed the investigation of her ancestry.

Hitler is said to have flown into a rage and threatened to fire Goebbels. The truth is not likely to be known unless Leni has the desire and the opportunity to tell it, if, indeed, she knows the truth. Meantime, those who liked to believe that there was a romantic element in der Fuehrer's interest may continue to suspect that her downfall was the outward sign of some more intimate upset. But many keen observers persist in the conviction that not in Leni's case or any other—not since his mother's death—has Hitler formed a true attachment for any human being.

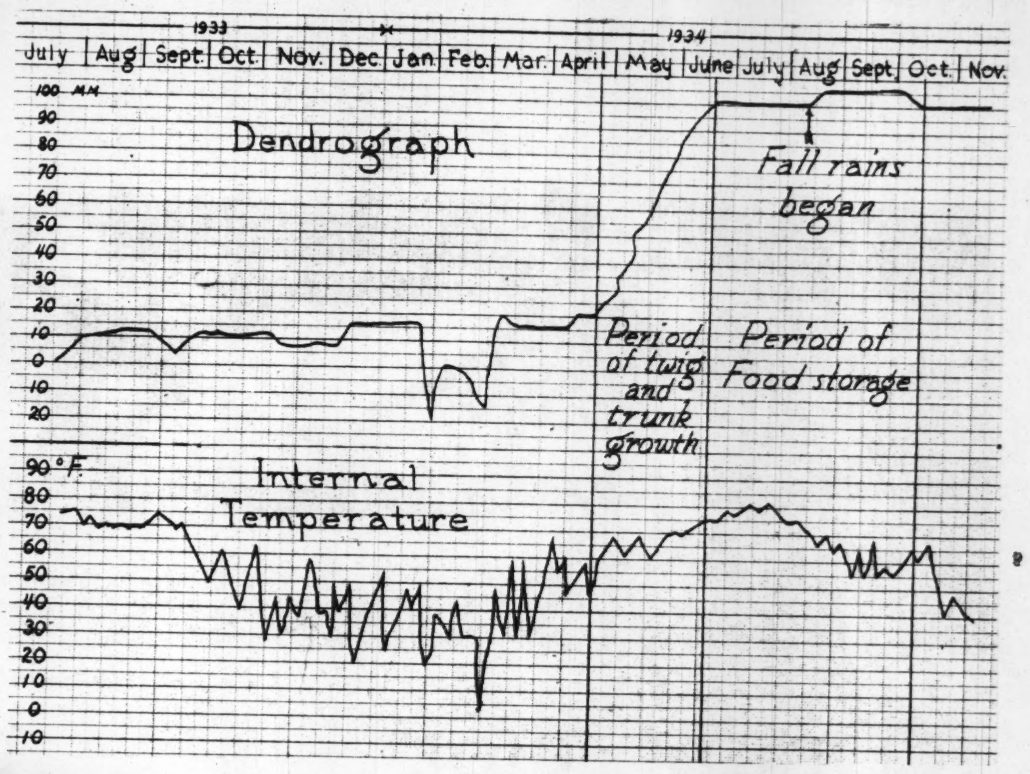
TAKING the TEMPERATURE of TREES

How Experts at Shaw's Garden Are Now Diagnosing the Inner Sickness of Their Arboreal Patients by Feeling Their Pulses.



A "case record" made in tree studies at Shaw's Garden.

A patient under observation; the instruments shown correlate its temperature, girth rhythm and internal pressure with air and soil temperature, barometric pressure, sunshine, precipitation and humidity.

FEELING the pulse and taking the temperature of a tree, Shaw's Garden experts have been able to diagnose its inner malaises to precision. Just as a physician watches the records of his patients as a guide to treatment, so they have come to depend on "fever charts" for warning that first aid is urgent. And having reached that point, they are passing on to attempt treatment by direct injection—not exactly "a shot in the arm," but literally a "shot" in the trunk.

Since 1931 they have kept continuous records of the internal temperature of trees. With a sensitive apparatus called a dendrograph, they have charted the rhythmic expansion and contraction of the trunk. Round the 24 hours and through the arid, icy, blistering seasons of six devastating years, they have measured what may be called the "blood pressure," though of course it entails no heart beat, but represents rather the cohesive tension of the sap, the blood stream of the tree. And, side by side with these, they have charted the external conditions: Sunshine, temperatures of soil and air, barometric pressure, precipitation and relative humidity.

They have determined that trees, like animals, have a normal temperature range. Transpiration through the leaves, like perspiration in animals, keeps them cool. If something interferes with that, and the most obvious something is a typically hot and dry St. Louis summer, the tree runs a fever.

The "normal" summer range, not just for one tree, but for the great mass of trees in this section of the country, is 60 to 75 degrees. Even when the mercury flirts with 110 in the shade, a healthy tree with adequate moisture will run only a degree or two of fever. When internal temperature reaches 86, the tree wilts. Scorched, wilted, helpless, its temperature rises like that of an inanimate object in the summer sun. It has been recorded above 115 degrees.

"As human beings, we are pretty proud of our perceptions," notes A. P. Beilmann, arboriculturist of the garden. "But we are dimly conscious, at best, of external change to which trees react sharply and almost instantaneously. From our dendrographic charts in critical seasons, we can almost tell how long the dew lasts."

But there is a great deal yet to be learned. How, for example, a tree can take sudden changes of barometric pressure as though it were an open vessel or quite outside the atmosphere, which it isn't. Or why pressure inside the tree cannot be artificially pumped up, but can be pumped out. Or why the cooling effect of an "ice pack" on the trunk always travels up and never down.

Plainly, even the superior sensitiveness of trees is only a limited indication of all the surprising tricks at their command. But none, says Beilmann, is any more surprising than the mere fact of survival through a succession of bitter years of which any one, in all reason, should have destroyed them.

In order to learn about these more mystifying resources, Beilmann is branching out from the observation of natural effects to controlled experiment, producing conditions to suit, "making his own weather." The observations begun in 1931, on a burr oak in the North American tract, southwestern part of the garden, will go forward unbroken. They may give him, he hopes—maybe even this year, who knows?—charts of a normal season to compare with the immediate past, which has been decidedly abnormal "even for the Middle United States."

Six other sets of instruments have been installed on other typical trees in typical locations in the garden. It is significant that the burr oak, within 200 yards of water, has never once gone above 83 in summers when the outside temperature hit 110. And, for control, the whole works has also been set up on a telephone pole.

"Artificial weather" is provided by an airplane propeller of the largest size available, driven by a four-cylinder gasoline engine. Even a moderately large tree, in its blast, shows reactions contingent on accelerated evaporation from the leaves, with the consequent speeding up of physiological processes. Special humidity conditions may be contrived by introducing a mist spray into the air blast.

Along with reactions in food and water intake, the effects, if any, on receptivity to direct feeding, "a shot in the arm," are matters to Beilmann of more than merely interest. Except in the proper mood, trees have resisted attempts at direct injection under pressures up to 100 pounds. But the point here is that he has devised something approaching the metabolism tests to which physicians subject their human patients.

The "ice pack" of the earlier experiment was actually a dry ice collar, a "poultice" Beilmann calls it, placed around the trunk, with thermometers to take the internal temperature spaced evenly above and below. The effect below was insignificant. It was marked above, but puzzling. There was no uniform cooling, but instead a coldest spot traveled upward toward the branches at a fairly even rate—as, they say, a chill runs up one's spine.

Comparable puzzles occur in the pressure phenomena which comprise a chief problem in treatment by "hypodermic" injection. But to grasp them one must go a little further into the mass of curious information Beilmann has read on his records since 1931. Therein one understands why he has come to speak of trees as a doctor speaks of patients and why, an outdoor man, at home in boots and corduroys, he has become quite as much at home in the laboratory.

PRUNERS commonly notice gas bubbling from fresh wounds. This is what the pressure measurements were designed to catch, though whether they actually do it is a question. Before Shaw's Garden went into it, a series of readings taken eight hours apart had been reported with really spectacular implications — which, sadly, evaporated when the garden began continuous graphic records round the 24 hours.

The avenues of communication within a tree, perceptible in the grain, are nearly and in some woods actually microscopic. Most of them are up and down through vessels composed of connecting, vertically elongated cells with thin, perforated end walls. Lateral communication is by means of horizontal bundles of cells, called wood rays, radiating outward to, but not through, the bark. The pores in the leaves are microscopic.

Plainly, then, there is no clear way for instantaneous accommodation to outside pressure changes. Beilmann, lowering internal pressure with a vacuum pump, has found that the tree equalizes it in about 30 minutes. Therefore, drastic rise and fall of the barometer should be reflected in the dendrograph or the internal pressure or both.

But the internal pressure record ignores fluctuations of atmospheric pressure—in summer storms, for example—equivalent to a rise and fall of many millimeters of the water column in the open-end manometer, which records internal pressure in terms, to be exact, of the difference between the pressure inside and that outside the tree.

There the tree is behaving like an open cup. But Beilmann's studies and years of research by plant physiologists alike picture it as essentially a closed vessel in respect to changes occurring in measurably less than the 30 minutes of his experiment.

In the sudden, terrific recession of atmospheric pressure characteristic of a tornado, for example, it ought to explode. Maybe it does explosively expand and release its pent-up pressure, speculates Beilmann, and maybe that accounts for tornado freaks of wheat straws impaling hardwood trunks, maybe—

At any rate, the only obvious way for a closed vessel to equalize outer and inner pressure is by expansion and contraction. So, if rapid changes in barometer do not show on the internal pressure chart, then they ought to show on the dendrograph. But they don't. The tree figuratively contrives to have its cake and eat it, too.

But no matter how the dendograph snubs the barometer, it is sensitive enough to every other aspect of the weather. When the sun gets up in summer, the tree begins to shrink. In the cool of the evening, it expands again, so that the graph of the growing season shows a regular rise divided in daily stairs steps, or better, hillocks, with crests about 6 a. m. and valleys at 6 p. m.

Internal temperature, too, follows a related if by no means parallel cycle, with peaks and valleys at, roughly, the same hours. At first it rises with the seasonal rise in external temperature and the stir of physiological activity — which, however, reaching full swing, begins to bring it down through excessive evaporation.

In this period, similarly, rains show, generally in the next day, a cooling effect on a healthy tree. Further along in the abnormally hot and arid summers covered by the record, rain stimulates a pathological reaction —a sudden rise in temperature. A sick tree, says Beilmann, always shows this "feverish" response.

The growing season is limited to 12 to 14 weeks, mid-April to mid-June, followed by a period of food storage, the "dangerous age" for trees in this climate. And for two years Beilmann had relied on his charts to forecast its dangers. At 86 degrees, the "critical" fever, trees wilt. In dry summers their fever rises two degrees a day. Hence a temperature any number of degrees below 86 is an index of reserves to sustain the tree through half that number of days.

SO, SINCE 1934, whenever the fever chart shows 73, Beilmann, knowing that he has less than a week in which to get around to his hundreds of patients in the garden, has begun to irrigate. And he says the method is suitable for practical application by amateurs with many or valuable trees.

Measurements for the purpose may be made with increment borers and thermometers of a dozen available makes, and one tree tells the story for the lot. A hole is bored four to five inches in toward the center of the tree, the thermometer tightly inserted and left for 30 minutes. If it then shows 80 degrees Fahrenheit, you have just three days to work.

The dendrograph shows the day when the tree "goes to sleep" in fall as specifically as the day of awakening in spring. The tree shrinks and its internal temperature falls with the winter decrease in air temperature but inner temperature remains eight degrees above that outside through the coldest weather. At 18 degrees internally, ice forms, and below that point shrinking and expansion follow temperature in a purely physical formula, as though the tree were an inanimate body.

Through all this, the pressure record shows an offensive independence of all factors but one—air temperature. "Through most of the year, the two graphs might have been made with one pen," says Beilmann. He suspects that it is measuring, in effect, the imperfections of the instrument. But occasionally while it follows the mercury like a Siamese twin, it strikes out manfully on its own. Therein, he believes, it demonstrates a potential capacity for measuring something in the tree and independent of outside temperature. Its development waits only on a perfected instrument.

If he had taken its verdict without a grain of salt, he'd have had little hope for first aid feeding by direct injection into the blood stream. Indeed, first attempts seemed hopeless. Hardly a drop of "medicine" could be forced into the tree under as much as 100 pounds pressure, though his instruments show internal pressure, plus or minus, to be measured only in fractions of an ounce. But when he left his hypodermic needle connected overnight, the tree took up a gallon or so of its own accord.

WITH that tip from nature, he set out to create a vacuum inside the tree. The same sort of "needle" used for the injections would do for that. It is a brass screw, fitting in a hole bored inches beyond its nozzle, and sharply tapered, so that it fits tightly to the wood only near the bark. By this means the experimenter could top most "veins" of trees up to a good foot in diameter.

Connecting a "needle" with an electric vacuum pump and inserting manometers above and below, Beilmann noted only an insignificant effect between the needle and the roots. But a negative pressure, a "suction," was rapidly established upward toward the leaves, and it was maintained after the pump stopped for half an hour.

While it lasted, the "patient" would accept treatment by direct injection. Although no available pressure was of any use in establishing the flow, it could, once intake was begun, double the rate.

But the patient, if it accepted, yet did not respond to treatment. No surge of energy followed a stimulant shot in the arm. Nor were there any ill effects, though some of the "shots" comprised fertilizer concentrates which would have "burnt up" the patient if administered by ordinary methods.

Perhaps, reasons Beilmann, material for direct injection must be pre-digested. Perhaps some function of the roots in preparing it for assimilation must be taken care of in the process; certainly the roots select what they will take up. Or perhaps there is some universal vehicle, some fundamental constituent, some parallel for normal saline in human physiology, in which the injection must be dissolved to become assimilable in the blood stream of the tree. There seem grounds for hope. It's a new field. And anyhow, he's still trying.

SUPER SIRE of a RACE of CHAMPIONS

Samuel D. Riddle.

Man o' War Has Earned $1,300,000 Since 1920 and His Descendants Have Made Race Track History in the Last 15 Years.

By MAX RIDDLE

DURING the summer of 1920, a multi-millionaire Texas cattle and oil baron named W. T. Waggoner tendered Samuel D. Riddle a certified check for $300,000. "It's for Man o' War," he said. "Man o' War is not for sale," came the unhesitating answer. The Texan wasn't a man to be put off when he wanted something. And he wanted Man o' War just about as badly as he had ever wanted anything. After a moment he got out his check book, tore out a blank check, signed it and handed it to Mr. Riddle.

"Fill in your own amount," he said grimly. "The check will be good."

The answer still came back: "Man o' War is not for sale."

Later, Samuel D. Riddle told questioners that he was afraid that had he filled in the check for $1,000,000 the Texan would have called it a deal. And there seems to be no doubt that the Texan would have stuck by his part of the bargain.

The owner of Man o' War, who had bought him for $5000, was not suffering from a temporary fit of insanity. Neither was the Texan. Nor was Mr. Riddle motivated entirely by the understanding that neither a million dollars, nor 10 times that much, could breed another to equal the son of Fair Play.

Instead he owned, besides an abounding pride in the achievements of his horse, a burning ambition to prove that he would be a success in the stud, to which he was retired in the fall of 1920. True, he had to gamble that Man o' War would be fertile and that he would live (the good die young, you know), but he was willing to take that gamble.

Of course, you'll ejaculate: "But a million dollars!" Well, here is a little problem in applied mathematics. Man o' War had 256 foals, or about 16 a year. That number does not include the matings which were not fruitful, nor the matings of 1937. His stud fee has always been listed as "PRIVATE CONTRACT," but the well-informed have known that it was $5000 per mating, with no guarantee of a live foal.

Now naturally many of the mares bred to Man o' War were owned by the Glen Riddle Farms, the "nom de course" of Mr. Riddle. Nevertheless, that total of 256 (or more) matings at $5000 each represents the true earning power of the super horse. That is because the sons and daughters of Man o' War which were born at Faraway Farms at Lexington, where the Riddle "haras" is, all had racing careers of their own.

What sort of horse is this which is valued at a million dollars or more, and which can earn $1,300,000 in stud fees in 15 or 16 years?

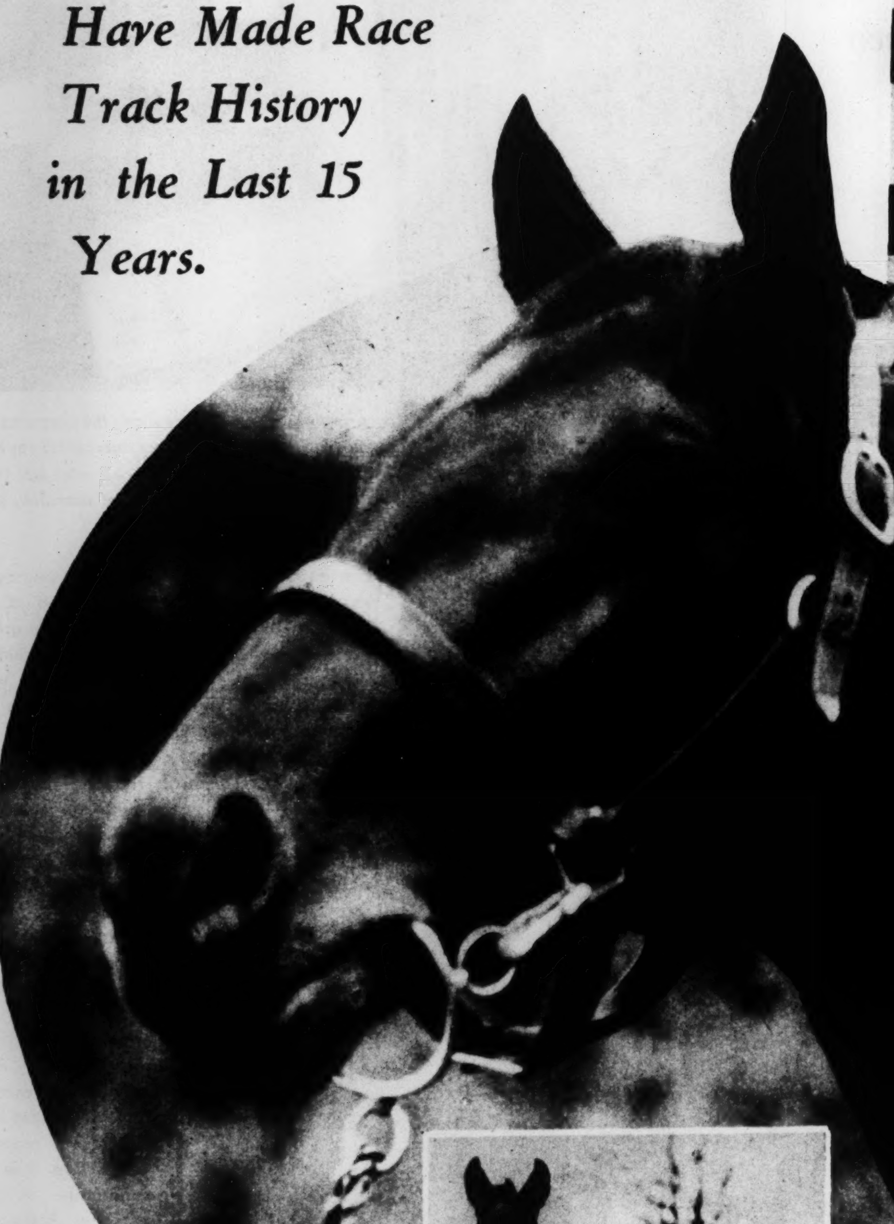
Man o' War descends from the strongest of the American male lines, that of imported Australian, a son of West Australian. The male line comes down like this: Spendthrift, Hastings, Fair Play. All were great race horses. Fair Play had so sensational a stud career that the family is now called the Fair Play line, and in fact he compiled the most enviable record ever achieved by a sire.

Mahubah, the dam of Man o' War, was a daughter of Rock Sand, who was one of the few winners of England's Triple Crown—the Derby, St. Leger, and 2000 Guineas. Rock Sand's mares produced so sensationally to the cover of Fair Play that the mating became known as an "affinity," one line for the other.

Man o' War was bred and named by August Belmont and sold to Mr. Riddle for $5000 in 1918 as a yearling. As a race horse he was supreme, winning 20 out of 21 starts and earning $249,465 (had purses been figured on their present value, he would have grossed more than half a million dollars).

His one defeat came at the hands of Upset and was the result of an atrocious ride by his jockey. He utterly humbled Upset thereafter. As a three-year-old he was unbeaten, breaking five world records and about 10 records for intervening distances. On one occasion, for instance, he broke his own world's mile record while racing to a longer distance. But this record does not show on the books.

He was never once allowed to extend himself for the whole course of a race, he seldom allowed another horse to get in front of him at any point of a race, and he never paid as good as even money in the betting, not even in his first race. On three occasions the odds were 1-100, that is, you had to bet $100 to win one.



Close-up of War Admiral.

Man o' War as he looked in 1933.

Perhaps the final proof that a horse is great is his ability to sire horses which can win the great stakes events which he himself has won. Horses which have failed in the stud are soon forgotten and their lines die out.

One of the first mares which Man o' War covered was a daughter of Roi Herode named Lady Comfey. She had been imported from England and came of strictly sprinting, or speed, stock. It takes about a year for a colt to be born. Generally, the colt is not named until it is 2 years old.

LADY COMFEY'S male foal was, in due course, named American Flag—a Riddle policy has been inaugurated of giving "his" sons and daughters patriotic or war names.

American Flag was not a great 2-year-old, but he was the best 3-year-old of his year. He won the Withers Stakes as his sire had done before him (Hastings and Fair Play had both been second in this race), the Dwyer Stakes, as Fair Play and Man o' War had done, and the great Belmont Stakes as Hastings and Man o' War had. His earnings totaled $82,000.

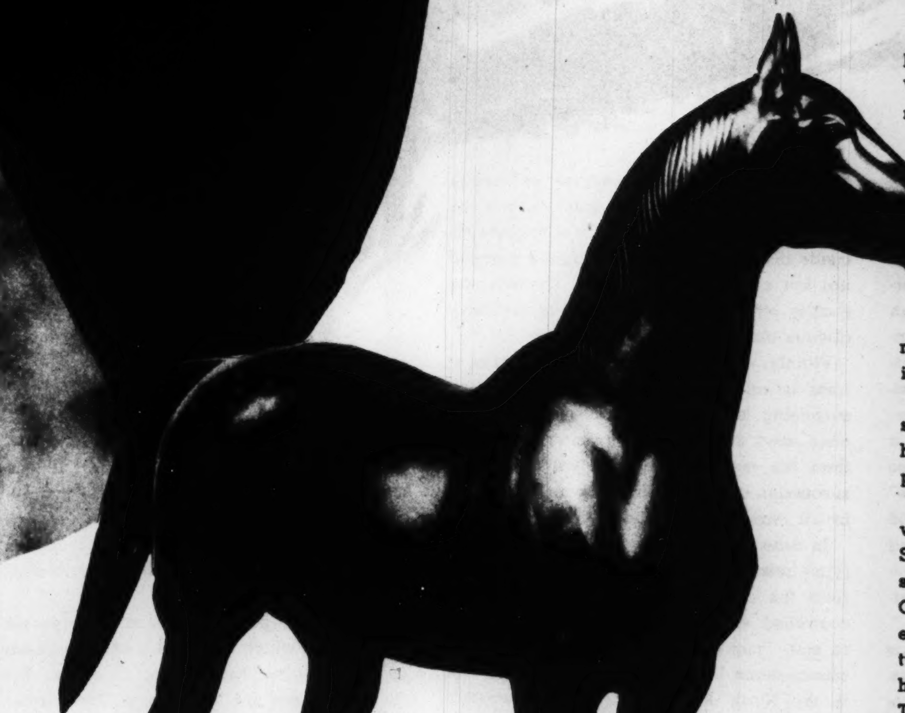
The following year an even greater son of Man o' War came along. He was Crusader, a horse perfect to look upon, and perfect in action. Of all of them, he was probably the best. He also won the Belmont Stakes and the Dwyer. Moreover, he was second in the Withers. Crusader also won the Jockey Club Gold Cup, the Havre de Grace Cup, in which he beat an extraordinary handicap field easily, and the Suburban Handicap.

Crusader was the only horse ever to win the Suburban Handicap twice and he is one of four 3-year-olds to win it. He was permanently injured at the post in his second Suburban, though he won, and though he won races after that. In all, he earned the immense sum of $203,261.

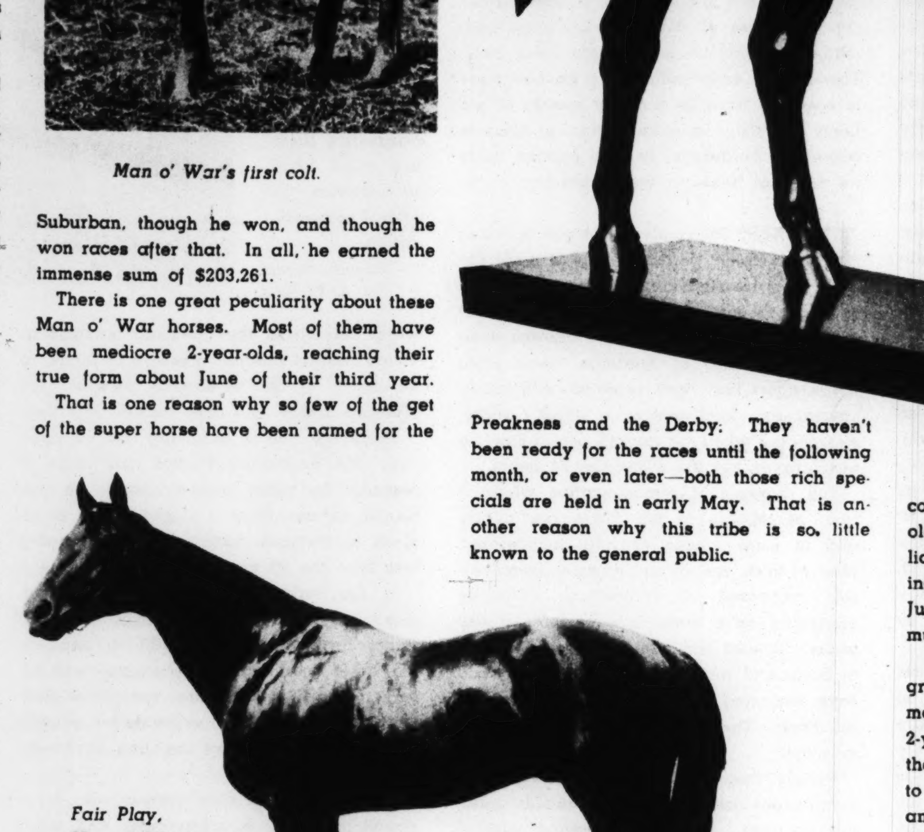
Man o' War's first colt.

There is one great peculiarity about these Man o' War horses. Most of them have been mediocre 2-year-olds, reaching their true form about June of their third year.

That is one reason why so few of the get of the super horse have been named for the Preakness and the Derby. They haven't been ready for the races until the following month, or even later—both those rich specials are held in early May. That is another reason why this tribe is so little known to the general public.



Statue of Man o' War by Herbert Haseltine.



Fair Play, Man o' War's sire.

Though the Belmont Stakes is generally considered the championship test for 3-year-olds, the Kentucky Derby is the most publicized race on this continent. If a smashing 3-year-old beats the Derby winner in June or August, the public doesn't hear much about it, or pays little attention.

The failure of the tribe as a whole to be great as juveniles has seriously affected the money earnings of the family. Many of the 2-year-old specials are richly endowed and they are won by horses which never live up to their earnings by going on where endurance must be added to speed.

And yet the earnings of those which have raced have approximated between $155,000 and $165,000 per season. All told they have earned in excess of $2,000,000, and this does not include their earnings for this season.

Fair Play, the sire of Man o' War, is the only horse in the world's history which has sired six winners of $100,000 or more. Man o' War is the only other sire to get five winners of that much.

No other horse has got more than three. Crusader, the peerless, earned $203,000. Mars, born the same year, won $128,788. War Admiral, at this writing, had earned more than $121,000. Then comes that diminutive and gallant gelding (he weighed less than 900 pounds, whereas his sire weighed 1160 when racing) Clyde Van Dusen, with $122,000. Bateau the fifth on the list, won $120,700.

Scapa Flow, killed while racing, just missed with $93,955, as did Genie and American Flag with more than $80,000 each.

There is another way of estimating the success of a stallion and that is to find out how many of his offspring have won important stakes. Man o' War is peerless.

He has had two Derby winners (Clyde van Dusen and War Admiral) two Belmont Stakes winners (American Flag and Crusader) four Dwyer winners (American Flag, Crusader, Genie, and War Glory), two Withers winners (American Flag and Boatswain), two Suburban victors (Crusader, the only horse ever to win it twice, and Bateau), two Travers winners (Mars and War Hero), two Saratoga Handicap winners (Mars and Marine), three Saranac victors (Mars, Hard Tack, and War Glory), and two Riggs winners (Crusader and Genie). Thursday, a son of Mars, has won it twice.

IN ADDITION sons or daughters have won the Futurity, Pimlico Cup (Edith Cavell won it twice), the Preakness, Saratoga Cup, and other races of equal importance.

Man o' War has been almost equally successful in siring good race mares. Bateau, Edith Cavell, and Florence Nightingale were by Man o' War. And Mata Hari was a daughter of War Woman, by Man o' War. Nellie Flag was a daughter of his great son, American Flag.

Bateau won the Suburban Handicap, one of the great all-age events. Edith Cavell had a penchant for distance races, and was probably the greatest distance mare bred in America in this century. She won the Pimlico Cup, which is two and one-quarter miles in length, twice. The greatest of the filly races, the Coaching Club American Oaks, was won by Florence Nightingale, Edith Cavell, and Bateau.

Just as every family has its skeleton in the closet, there is a dismal chapter in the history of this famous family. Man o' War's offspring which were sold at the auctions at Saratoga, but failed miserably.

Broadway Limited, third highest priced yearling in American blood stock history at $65,000, never won a race. War Time, which sold for $30,000, probably wasn't worth a thirtieth of that. War, a $45,000 purchase, failed and the Man o' War filly from the mare Tuscan Red, cost $50,500, is yet to arrive.

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

(ROBERT H. JACKSON
BISHOP G. BROMLEY OXNAM)

1937 Trust Buster

A NEW and different type of "trust buster" has ridden onto the political battleground at Washington to take up the recently revived fight against big business monopoly. It's the same fight that "Teddy" Roosevelt waged so advantageously some 30 years ago, but its new commander-in-chief, Assistant Attorney-General Robert Houhgwout Jackson, is the antithesis of the old Rough Rider. There's no "big stick" in Jackson's armory. Mild-mannered and small of stature, he prefers the rapier to the bludgeon and carries into the fray one of the sharpest tongues and keenest legal minds in the country.

Only 45 years old, he likes to describe himself as a "small town" lawyer. There's nothing small-townish about his achievements in the Government service, however. Jackson was almost unknown in Washington when Secretary Morgenthau brought him to the Capital as general counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Added to this was the fact that "Who's Who" listed him as having represented several corporations —railroads, banks and telephone company. To many a liberal the soft-spoken young lawyer looked like a strange bird indeed to be wearing the plumage of the New Deal.

It did not take Jackson long to dispel such notions. He has rather emphatically denied that he was a corporation lawyer, asserting his legal practice back home in Jamestown, New York, was general and that he tried "many cases" against corporations.

"In fact," he once said, "it was my legal experience that made me a liberal. As attorney for banks I saw how the small country banks were wrecked and looted by the bonds and securities unloaded on them by the big banks. As counsel for relatively small business firms and utilties of Jamestown I had a chance to see how big business and monopoly went hand-in-hand. I saw the progressive concentration of wealth as local industries were pushed to the wall and taken over by the trusts and giant combines.

"I saw the destructive social effects of such monopoly on small communities. I saw the small business man, the small banker and the worker regimented and impoverished. I would say that my experience as a lawyer accounts for a substantial part of my liberalism."

This, in brief, is the social outlook of the man who has crossed swords with Andrew Mellon's Aluminum Company of America, an institution that must be ranked high on the list of economic giants.

President Roosevelt was Governor of New York when he first began to appreciate "Bob" Jackson's unusual capabilities. At that time he appointed Jackson, with Herman O. Oliphant, now general counsel of the Treasury, to study the judicial system in the State, and their findings led to substantial reforms. So impressed was the future President with Jackson's work on that occasion that in 1934—when the Bureau of Internal Revenue was confronted with an important and difficult task—he suggested Jackson as the man best fitted for the job.

This was the prosecution of a $3,000,000 income tax recovery suit against Andrew Mellon and a group of his associates. A Pittsburgh grand jury had refused to indict the former Secretary of the Treasury and Ambassador to Great Britain, and a poor showing in the civil proceeding would have dealt a severe blow to the prestige of the Roosevelt administration.

The case is still awaiting decision by the United States Board of Tax Appeals, but there were no criticisms of the showing made by the new general counsel in his first big case. One bit of repartee during the hearing serves to demonstrate the sharpness of his wit and tongue.

The veteran Frank J. Hogan, of Teapot Dome fame, recognized as one of the best lawyers in the country, was defending Mellon. He wanted to get into the record the fact that Jackson once represented a power company that was controlled by the Morgan interests. Unable to question his opponent directly, Hogan turned to Jackson for "help" with his faulty memory.

"I am trying to recall the name of a power company controlled by Morgan," Hogan said. "I believe you represented it at one time—can you tell me its name?"

"YES," Jackson retorted quickly. "It was the Nigara-Hudson Company. And I might also remind you that Mr. Mellon was on the Morgan preferred list when they distributed the stock of that company at less than market price."

When the trial phase of the tax case was over, Jackson did not retire to an easy chair in his sumptuous office in the Internal Revenue Building. Seemingly endowed with endless energy he plunged into the drafting of the Stock Exehange Regulation and Utility Holding Company Acts and his influence was plainly discernible when these laws took final form. For a while he was assigned to the task of defending these measures in the courts and then he was advanced to Assistant Attorney-General in charge of the tax division—marked advancement.

Jackson, however, did not stay long in the tax job, soon being promoted to senior Assistant Attorney-General in charge of the anti-trust division. When this move was announced some political observers wondered if Jackson was being "eased out," for the anti-trust division had been in the doldrums for several years. This was particularly true during the heyday of the N. R. A., when monopoly was encouraged—at least by implication—by the New Deal.

The filing of the suit against the Aluminum Company, however, made it clear that Jackson had not been sidetracked in a meaningless job with a high-sounding title. And, incidentally, it may indicate that Mr. Roosevelt is not merely trying to scare big business, but is very much in earnest in this anti-monopoly crusade.

In his spare time, Jackson has found the means to represent the Government in its two most significant victories in the Supreme Court this year and to "front" for the New Deal in defending legislation that has encountered hostile fire in Congress and from labor and business interests.

When the three cases brought to test the legality of the Wagner Labor Relations Act came up for argument in the Supreme Court there were but few lawyers who thought the Government could win. Since the beginning of the industrial boom after the Civil War the courts had clung zealously to an interpretation of the Interstate Commerce clause of the Constitution which denied the National Government the right to regulate manufacturing.

But Jackson, perhaps because his experience with the Supreme Court had been comparatively limited, was undismayed. With the other Government counsel, he set out to convince the Justices that the old conception of Interstate Commerce was wrong and that the activities of a gigantic steel manufacturing concern, like the Jones and Laughlin Company, had to be regulated by the National Government if they were to be regulated at all.

In a calm, restrained tone he pointed out that the operations of a modern steel corporation spread into many states and that a breakdown growing out of labor trouble anywhere along the line must of necessity affect Interstate Commerce. Obviously, he said, no single State could supervise such a complex industry and the power to accomplish this purpose must be lodged in the Federal Government or chaos would be the result.

The able attorneys for the corporation argued briefly, content for the most part to rely on earlier decisions of the court to uphold their contention that the law was invalid. They had won in the lower courts, and when they sat down it was obvious they were confident of another victory in the Supreme Court. It is putting it mildly to say that they were astonished a few weeks later when the court announced its decision, upholding the legality of act in an opinion embodying language almost identical in many respects with that used by Jackson during his argument.

Jackson scored another notable victory in the Social Security cases. Again working with the best legal minds in Uncle Sam's service, he presented careful, well-thought-out arguments which resulted in decisions upholding this pillar of the New Deal's program of social legislation.

Nobody contends that these cases were won solely on the strength of the arguments submitted by Jackson and his associates. There are few men on Capitol Hill, however, who will not agree that they were better presented and better argued than some other New Deal cases that met a less happy fate at the hands of the high tribunal.

Jackson's first major experience with the machinery of practical politics came when the storm broke over the President's bill to enlarge the Supreme Court by appointing a maximum of six new Justices unless those already on the bench who were 70 years old should retire.

The hearings on the measure before the Senate Judiciary Committee had been carefully planned by both sides as a sort of sounding board to develop and test sentiment throughout the country. The administration led off with Attorney-General Cummings, whose arguments in support of the bill were somewhat formal and general in nature. Immediately, they followed up with Jackson.

CHARACTERISTICALLY, Jackson did not waste time on such irrelevant side issues as the age of the Justices or the size of the court, but went at once to the heart of the bill. In all frankness, he expressed the view that the prime objective was to secure "more enlightened" decisions. If it should be necessary to appoint additional Justices to get liberal rulings he was willing to take that step, but he did not contend past decisions had been made merely because a majority of the Justices were old.

Submitting a careful analysis of prior decisions, he said: "These decisions have more and more limited both Federal and State powers to deal with economic problems. The Constitution is broad enough to give the necessary powers and the remedy does not lie in amending the Constitution. The trouble is in the mental attitude reflected in these decisions, and you cannot amend a state of mind."

Jackson was not able to convince the Senate Committee of the soundness of his views, but he lost no caste with the administration on that account.

When work was started on the new wage and hour bill, President Roosevelt tried his hand at drafting a sample law. He turned out a one-page draft, which was promptly vetoed by Jackson. With Thomas G. Corcoran and Benjamin V. Cohen, the Assistant Attorney-General then settled down to real work and turned out a 60-page rewrite of the President's original draft—a measure that embodies every legal safeguard against the day when it may face the acid test in the Supreme Court. When Congressional hearings were started on the bill, incidentally, Jackson was called to defend it—this time as the Government's first witness.

Jackson was born on a small farm near Spring Creek, Pennsylvania. After attending public schools in Pennsylvania, he moved with his family to Jamestown, where he completed his secondary education. Jackson never had a college education, but he was graduated from the Albany, New York, Law School, and was admitted to the bar when only 21 years of age. He never held public office until he came to Washington.

Assistant Attorney-General Robert H. Jackson.

Despite his amazing ability to get things done, Jackson is no slave to his job. With his attractive wife and son and daughter, he lives on a beautiful country estate in nearby Maryland. Careful about his personal appearance, he is an excellent dancer and an ardent horseman. He and his daughter—she rides better than he does—are seen frequently on the bridle paths around his estate.

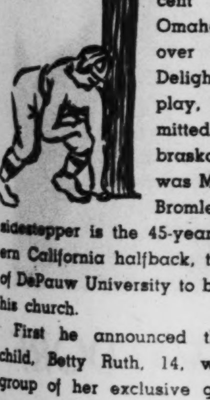
He has a gift for making friends and official Washington is keenly interested in his career. Some of the political crystal gazers believe that his future lies in the law and that he may don the somber robes of a Supreme Court Justice before many years have passed. Jackson has stated that he is not a candidate for a Supreme Court appointment, although he has not said he would refuse one.

Many of his friends believe he is of too active a nature to be content with the secluded life of a Judge. To them he seems a likely candidate for the Governorship of New York—a political pathway that in the past has led to the White House. Whatever may be in store for this likeable young New Dealer, one thing seems certain—if his progress in the future can be measured by his achievements in the past he is going far.

ROBERT CLINE.

The Halfback Who Became a Bishop

OMAHA, Nebraska.



IN THE thick of the recent fight which split Omaha into factions over whether "Idiot's Delight," Pulitzer prize play, should be permitted to show in Nebraska's largest city, was Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam. No sidestepper is the 45-year-old former Southern California halfback, the sixth president of DePauw University to become a bishop of his church.

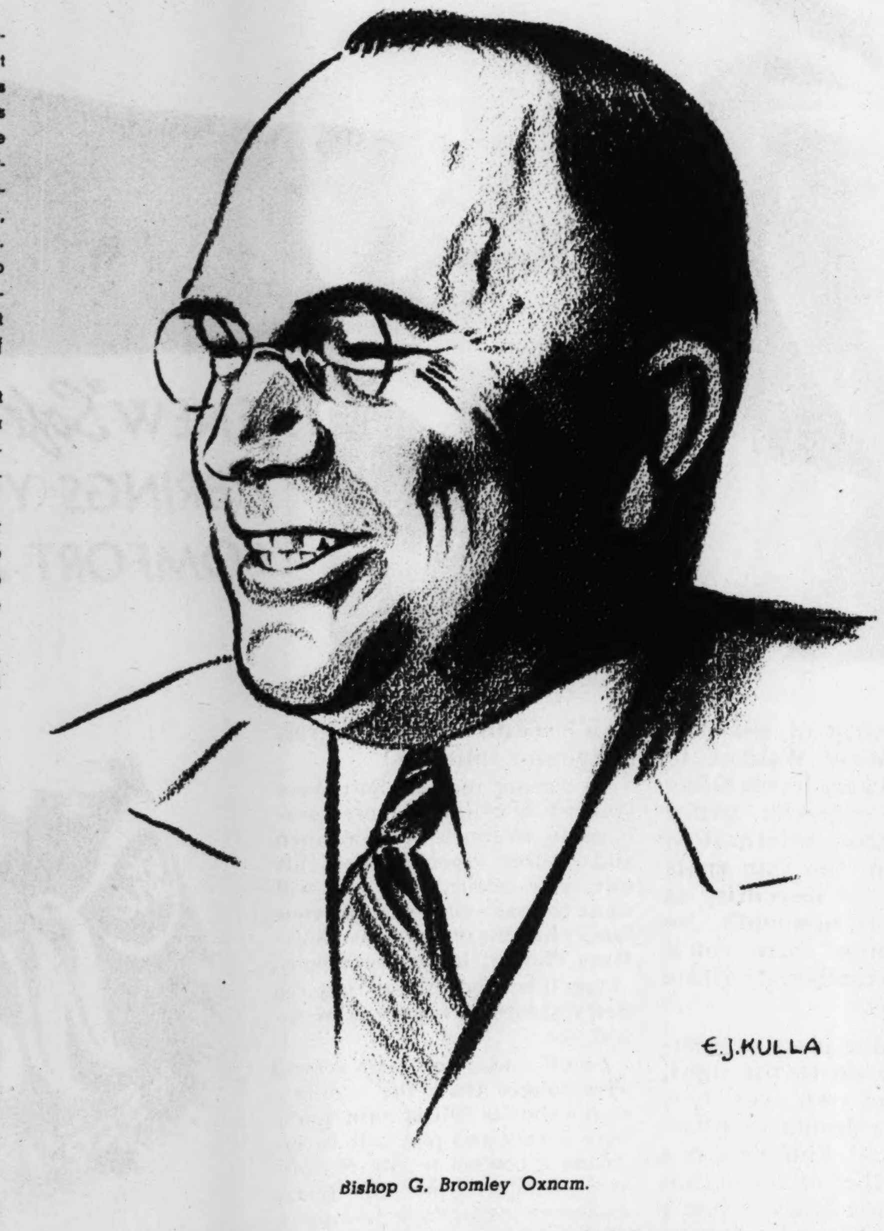
First he announced that his youngest child, Betty Ruth, 14, would entertain a group of her exclusive girls' school classmates at "Idiot's Delight." Then he caustically referred to Mayor Dan Butler:

"It is a thousand pities that our Mayor should make our city ridiculous. . . . The Mayor must eschew politics and cleave to playwriting. If the Mayor were to write the plays of this nation, all would be well. The millions might attend the theater with full assurance that no baby would cry and no politician would blush.

"If the Mayor decides to remain in politics, may I suggest a theme song for his coming campaign: 'Every little damma must be taken from our drama.' Censorship in fact is 'Idiot's Delight.'"

The public press columns of Omaha newspapers resounded for weeks with the storm stirred by the drama controversy, and particularly with the Bishop's defense of "Idiot's Delight." There were those who praised, but many of the letters were bitter in criticism of a man of the church who would lend his voice and prestige to the cause of a stage vehicle considered in some quarters to be obscene.

The Methodist church's youngest bishop is not unused to criticism. He is a liberal—thinks modern, dresses modern, talks modern. His social philosophy—and he is a leader in the church's social program—revolves around a defense of democracy, the foe of communism or fascism. He points out that the Methodist church is traditionally a liberal church, although rural Methodism has become pretty conservative, and contends the Methodist liberal must defend democracy, which he asserts can solve without violence the problem of transition in the economic structure.



Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam.

He realizes that when the liberal attempts to adjust the ideas of the forces of reaction and radicalism, to keep things running smoothly, he may be caught in the cross-fire and be the target for both sides, but that does not stay his belief that his office implies no inhibitions against speaking out on any public question.

One of Bishop Oxnam's first charges was the Church of All Nations in Los Angeles, an institution with a community program. During his 10 years with this church he also taught social ethics in the University of Southern California.

As pastor of the Church of All Nations, he protested against arrest without warrants of non-violent strikers. "Citations" received while in Los Angeles gained him a place in "The Red Network," a compilation of the alleged "red activities" of prominent persons which Dr. Oxnam condemns as a "ridiculous compilation of libelous material which misrepresents many substantial citizens."

A PAGE and a half of the "Network" tells this about Bishop Oxnam:

1. From Plain Talk, December, 1929, quoting Louis Adamic, "radical": "Bromley Oxnam is Methodist only in name. . . . Interested himself in all sorts of liberal and radical movements . . . fighting for the atheistic wobblies who get into jail . . . for pacifists, anarchists. . . . Los Angeles no place for a man of his sincerity and capacity."

2. From Daily Worker, communist paper, October, 1926, to the effect that Dr. Oxnam, on his return from a trip to Russia, spoke at a meeting of the Civil Liberties Union and urged recognition of the Soviet, declared "absolute religious freedom" prevailed in Russia.

3. A version of an attack upon Oxnam by the American Vigilante Intelligence Federation of Chicago. Leroy Smith, asserting himself to represent the Methodist church, originally charged, according to the federation, that Dr. Oxnam had spoken in behalf of men convicted of sedition and at a meeting called to protest against the California syndicalism law. Dr. Oxnam, according to Smith's charges made before Methodist Bishop A. W. Leonard of California, spoke in company with "notorious radicals," such as Upton Sinclair, in behalf of "so-called freedom of speech."

The charges went on to recite that at a meeting where Oxnam and Sinclair spoke that Oxnam was heckled when he first began to speak, with such cries "as cut out the prayer," "who the hell is that bird?," and "that's Oxnam, the wobbly preacher."

At this meeting, charged Smith, another member of the audience shouted, "That's the dope; get a few of these holy Joes and things will come our way. We'll put the skids under the whole works."

4. From an article in the New Republic, May, 1936, by Clarence R. Athearn, who says he was formerly employed by the United States Chamber of Commerce's "committee on combatting subversive activities," to the effect that he resigned rather than prepare an article, to be signed by another college president, attacking Dr. Oxnam as a "red." Dr. Oxnam was one of the chief persons the committee combatted, Athearn declared.

The article, to be titled "Communism's Threat to Academic Freedom," started with a resolution prepared by the Constitutional Protective League and adopted by the Indiana Reserve Officers' Association. It was "an attack upon Dr. G. Bromley Oxnam for his 'constant effort' to commit DePauw University 'to a program of radicalism and communistic activity, as evidenced by his many public utterances.'"

The Bishop is a man of many interests. Besides playing football in college he was tennis champion of Arizona and California. He and his wife own a fine art collection, including pictures by such artists as Joshua Reynolds and Corot. Dr. Oxnam also collects autographs, has signatures of Charles Dickens, Thomas Hardy and George Bernard Shaw. He shares with Yale University the distinction of owning a collection of autographs and metal seals struck at inaugurations of every President of the United States.

He has made several trips to Europe, and has visited Russia three times, once as a member of the American delegation which went there in 1926. He spent a year studying in Japan. At the time this piece was written, the Oxnams were off for Europe again.

He was DePauw president for eight years before he became Bishop for Nebraska and Iowa, with authority over four colleges, a university, six hospitals, about 1000 churches with 325,000 members. His appointment came just in time to spoil a planned trip to study co-operatives in Sweden and Norway. He's a student of international affairs, has been much involved in the movement for peace, interested in industrial problems. He works on the theory, which he says was advanced by Wesley's preachers, that men are more important than things.

HIS books include "The Mexican in Los Angeles," "Social Principles of Jesus," "Russian Impressions," "Youth and the New America," "Preaching and the Social Crisis," and five volumes of "Effective Teaching." At DePauw, he conducted a column, "Facing Facts," in 120 Midwestern daily and weekly newspapers. As Bishop, he's continuing as a columnist for several papers. He's tremendously popular as a speaker, greatly in demand. He's eloquent and outspoken.

"One of the fundamental tasks of religion today is to bring ethical criteria to bear on economic practices," he says. "I think we can work out a synthesis whereby we can conserve the creative initiative that flowed from American individualism while at the same time we appropriate the value that lies in collective action.

"The task is to conserve and create—to conserve the cultural heritage of yesterday while we create a better tomorrow.

"The church should teach the principles of conduct, voice judgment when those principles are violated, and at the same time herald a better day."

"All of which," he smilingly concluded, "is a great deal easier to talk about than do."

Where the United States Prevents Explosions by Starting Them

The Government's Experimental Mine Makes a Blast And Analyzes It.

By ROBERT A. RANDOLPH

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

BRUCETON, Pennsylvania.

WITH a rumbling roar like that of a locomotive speeding through a deep canyon, a great twisting cloud of black smoke and red and yellow fire burst from the mine portal in the hillside. The billowing mass grew in size as it rushed across the valley until it seared the leaves from the trees on the opposite hillside 300 feet away. The force and flames of the blast were deflected upward by old North hill, back stop since 1910 for more than 1600 explosions prepared in the unique experimental mine which serves as a large scale testing laboratory of the United States Bureau of Mines.

This explosion of 900 pounds of coal dust which had been spread through the first 450 feet of the 1300-foot shaft was the climax of the program last June 12 for 1500 West Virginia mining men. There had been demonstrations of coal dust ignition by black blasting powder, by electric arcs and by dynamite, and demonstrations of extinguishing of mine fires. As one miner remarked, "it beat any fireworks program."

But there was far more to the program than mere spectacular display. In the observatory and in small recesses of the east and west shafts were instruments that automatically analyze an explosion. A battery of chronographs that can record 27 independent and simultaneous events at once was in the observatory. Among the things that they aid in recording are the extent and velocity of flame, time pressure at various points, composition of gases ahead of, in, and behind the flame, direction of movement of bodies of air and burned gases, and time of movement of different objects, such as parts of barriers.

The chronographs consist of brass drums around which are glued sheets of metallic-surface paper that have been covered with camphor smoke. Touching the drums are celluloid pen tips, including some that vibrate a known number of times each second. One pen on each chronograph is operated by a tuning fork giving a record in hundredths of a second from which thousandths are estimated. A 31-wire cable containing a wire for each pen, a common return, a telephone circuit, and a pair of wires for initiating explosions leads from the chronographs.

Flame velocity is determined through fusion of tiny tinfoil strips in recessed blocks at 100-foot intervals. Each fusion results in the breaking of a circuit on the chronograph. The velocities are then determined from the time intervals. The foils also help to determine flame length to the nearest 100 feet. A closer measure is determined by the action of the light of the flame on circlets of photographic bromide paper in receptacles secured to the roof at 25-foot intervals. Development of the disks shows which were fogged by the flame of the explosion.

Specially designed manometers, in which the pressure causes deflection of a diaphragm, are in armored recesses along the walls of the shafts. The diaphragm operates a mirror which throws a light beam that traces on a drum covered with photographic film and rotated by a motor. An auxiliary device makes simultaneous time records on the films and on one of the chronographs in the observatory. The records are then translated into co-ordinates of time and pressure and related to the travel of the flame recorded by the tin foils.

VIOLENT movements of air and burned gases are determined by movement of a small vane that is connected to a chronograph.

Along this line, observations have been made of objects moved from carefully noted positions by the force of the explosion. Fragments of shelving have been found heaped at the mine entrance, more than 400 feet from their original position. On the other hand, loaded mine cars weighing several hundred pounds have been overturned and thrown toward the origin of the explosion instead of away from it. This moving of objects toward the site of the explosion instead of away from it was due to the violent compressional wave that travels backward from the flame. It has been shown in almost every large blast in the experimental mine that objects are picked up and carried by the air blast ahead of the explosion only to be overtaken by the flame, with its higher velocity and rising pressure, and thus have their movement reversed. Further, in the last phase of the explosion when the air rushes in to fill the partial vacuum created by the cooling of the gases, light objects often are carried for considerable distances. All this has shown that the most careful study is necessary in evaluating the contradictory evidences found after a mine explosion.

The complex series of chemical reactions that occur during an explosion also are recorded in part in the test shaft. Samples of flame gases are collected by an evacuated brass bottle, which, at just the right moment, breaks its glass seal and, one-twentieth of a second later, caps itself with a rubber stopper, thus preserving its sample. A valve in the bottle allows the sample to be released into a glass container which is sent to the laboratory.

Personal observation and use of instruments in the 1600 tests made in the mine have revealed and recorded facts that have given definite knowledge of many of the phenomena arising from mine disasters. Particularly, it has been shown by repeated demonstrations that coal dust explosions can be prevented almost entirely by distributing rock dust throughout a mine.

Despite the modern methods used in most mines, the creation of the dangerous dust clouds can not be avoided altogether. A coal car may jump the track at any time, causing minute particles of coal to be suspended in a cloud of dust that constitutes a potential explosive of great power. If it is ignited, its effect is as powerful as that of dynamite. But during the early days of the experimental mine, practically all mining men were firm in the belief that it was not possible for coal dust to explode unless fire damp was present.

THIS belief was eradicated by first proving that there was no fire damp in the experimental mine and then exploding clouds of coal dust. The next step was to show that if sufficient rock dust were spread through all mine passages there could be no serious explosion. This was done, just as it is today, by applying flame to a 40 per cent coal and 60 per cent rock dust mixture without any explosion resulting. The two dusts form a mixture that is incombustible and almost any disturbance that causes coal dust to rise is sure to cause the rock dust to rise. H. P. Greenwald, supervising engineer of the experimental mine, estimates that the use of rock dust, applied easily with blowing apparatus, has saved thousands of lives and millions of dollars in American mines since 1913.

Among other things studied at the experimental mine are practical tests of explosives, apparatus and methods of fighting fires in mines, compressibility and bearing strength of various types of coal to determine safe sizes for pillars and abutments, mine roof movements, elimination of danger from electric sparks, and ventilation methods in mines and vehicular tunnels.

An intensive series of tunnel ventilation tests was carried out at the mine in co-operation with the New York-New Jersey Tunnel Commissions in connection with Holland Tunnel, opened in 1927, under the Hudson River. The study was made in a specially constructed elliptical passage in which automobiles were run. It was divided in cross-section into an under duct for intake air, the automobile roadway, and over duct for return air. This method of ventilating a long tunnel, known as the transverse system, was adopted after successful tests in place of the old longitudinal system.

During the World War the experimental mine was used by the Army Engineers in the course of testing the use of the French military geophone, an instrument for hearing sounds underground. One physicist at the experimental mine was credited with greatly improving this instrument.

One of the most practical uses of the mine has been as a training place for candidates for State inspectorships and for mine foremen. Temporary defects in ventilation and other mine safety features are created and the candidates then make their inspections and reports.

THE experimental mine station, containing 77 acres and lying a mile south of this town, owes its creation to the series of coal mine explosion disasters that began in 1906 in France with the Courrieres catastrophe in which 1100 men were killed. This was followed by several major disasters in England and many in the United States during 1907 and culminating in the Monongah explosion in West Virginia in which 358 men lost their lives. These disasters led to appropriation of funds for Federal inquiry. The result was the opening of the experimental mine in 1910.

Studies of the explosibility of coal dust have been the principal work for more than 20 years but, while a lot of necessary and valuable data has been acquired, numerous points remain obscure and new problems still arise.

Only God Can Make a Tree

Bear this in mind, to Feel Fine

The tamarind tree grows in the West Indies. Its fruit gives exercise to your intestinal muscles. Eat it at night and when you wake up you will feel better.

Tamarinds, figs and other fruits and leaves are now made into a tasty health jam. Thousands who formerly suffered from a tired, "dopey" feeling, from sour acid stomach, headaches, gas and other sicknesses of constipation, now use Nature's newest aid to mankind—TAM.

No artificial drugs in Tam. Works like a charm because it works like Nature. When Tam moves your stubborn bowels, it helps curb bad breath, bad skin and other bad conditions, seemingly like magic—Nature's magic. You say goodbye to dull appetite and restless sleep. You have a keener outlook on life—a new sparkle in your eyes, new youthful spring in your step.

Don't wait . . . try this valuable new health jam, TAM. Druggist hands back your money unless you are delighted with results. 5 oz. jar 39c; 16 oz. $1.

"LIGHT TEST" SHOWS NO THIN SPOTS

THE NEW "Soft-Weve" WALDORF BRINGS YOU DOUBLE COMFORT AND SECURITY

HOLD a strip of the new Soft-Weve Waldorf to the light and see its clothlike texture for yourself! Notice how even, how uniform it is. As free from the thin spots that make for insecurity as a strip of soft, new cloth. No rough "humps" here, you'll notice, to scratch and irritate tender skins.

Now hold a piece of ordinary tissue up to the light, and let your own eyes show you what a dramatic difference there is! You'll see one after the other of those thin spots that are likely to break at the slightest pressure. You'll see dirt specks . . . even dangerous splinters!

No wonder the new Soft-Weve Waldorf is so much more comfortable, so much safer. Women and children, especially, need this soft, safe tissue. But you will want to make sure that all your family has the protection of Soft-Weve Waldorf in the bathroom.

You'll be glad to hear that the new Waldorf roll is more economical, too.

You'll find a roll lasts several days longer than the ordinary tissue that is full of thin spots. Save money and play safe by ordering a reserve supply of Soft-Weve Waldorf from your grocer tomorrow! Scott Paper Company, Chester, Pennsylvania.

During the World War the experimental mine was used by the Army Engineers in the course of testing the use of the French military geophone, an instrument for hearing sounds underground. One physicist at the experimental mine was credited with greatly improving this instrument.

One of the most practical uses of the mine has been as a training place for candidates for State inspectorships and for mine foremen. Temporary defects in ventilation and other mine safety appliances are created and the candidates then make their inspections and reports.

THE experimental mine station, containing 77 acres and lying a mile south of this town, owes its creation to the series of coal mine explosion disasters that began in 1906 in France with the Courrieres catastrophe in which 1100 men were killed. This was followed by several major disasters in England and many in the United States during 1907 and culminating in the Monongah explosion in West Virginia in which 358 men lost their lives. These disasters led to appropriation of funds for Federal inquiry. The result was the opening of the experimental mine in 1910.

Studies of the explosibility of coal dust have been the principal work for more than 20 years but, while a lot of necessary and valuable data has been acquired, numerous points remain obscure and new problems still arise.

DANCING SCARECROW

By WALTER DAHLGREN

At dusk o' day when the sun sinks low,
And the tired old farmer does homeward go—
Down in the field just beyond the barn,
The Old Crow Band begins to get warm.
Charley Scarecrow shouts, "Hey hey! What luck!"
Jumps from his post and starts in to truck.
And under the moon all the night long—
They dance, they play and they sing a song
Till the dawn lights up the Eastern sky
And the rooster's crow warns them to fly!

DIRECTIONS ● Mount the background and the orange circle upon heavy cardboard—the other parts upon thinner cardboard. Cut out the parts. Be sure also to cut the five slits. Now join the limbs to the body by sewing with a needle threaded with string. The ends of the limbs with the dark cross are placed beneath the parts bearing a white cross. Insert the neck into slit at neckline and pivot end to orange cross. Make sure, in joining, that all parts move loosely and freely. Then fold A and B, put paste upon dark starred area, insert A and B into slits on either side. Place figure on background so that A and B extend through cut out—finally insert A and B into slits in orange circle, fold and paste. To animate move circle up and down, sideways and around.

BILL'S PRIVATE ECHO

THE CHARACTERS

BILL BUNNY—A bewildered rabbit.

HARRY HOARDER—An honest squirrel.

HILDA HOARDER—Harry's sensible wife.

TOMMY—The Hoarder's playful little son.

JOLLY JOE—A mischievous mocking bird.

Jolly Joe must have hatched from a very odd egg, for he grew up to have a most peculiar, most aggravating sense of humor. He gets his greatest pleasure out of tormenting folks by repeating everything they say, right after they have said it. The other day when Bill Bunny was in his yard talking to his son, Bobby, Jolly Joe hid behind a rock nearby and repeated everything that was said by Bill. But he remained silent when Bobby spoke. Now Bill couldn't see Jolly Joe, so he decided that he was hearing his echo. But he couldn't understand why Bobby's voice didn't echo. Jolly Joe enjoyed this very much, and he proceeded to follow Bill everywhere he went and repeat everything he said. Bill can't understand it. And we see him telling Harry Hoarder about it as

THE PLAY BEGINS

BILL BUNNY—I tell you, it's awfully funny. I'm the only one around who has an echo.

JOLLY JOE—I tell you, it's awfully funny. I'm the only one around who has an echo.

HARRY HOARDER—Gosh! That's wonderful. (They are silent for a moment.)

BILL BUNNY—See—you didn't echo.

JOLLY JOE—See—you didn't echo. (Then to himself.) I'll drive that rabbit crazy trying to figure this out. Ha! Ha! Haw. (Now Hilda Hoarder overheard all that was said. She decided someone was playing a joke on Bill. And seeing Tommy playing where the echo came from, she thinks that she has solved the mystery.)

HILDA HOARDER—Tommy, are you mocking Mr. Bunny?

TOMMY—No, mamma. It's Jolly Joe. He's hiding behind this bush. (Jolly Joe flys away and Harry and Hilda Hoarder start to laugh. Poor Bill. He feels very foolish and he gets a big club and goes hunting for Jolly Joe.)

BILL BUNNY—First I'm going to sock him one, and then I'm going to mock him when he cries—I'll show that fool bird a think or two. Gr-r-r.

SELF-GOVERNING FREE STATE for MEDICINE in the AEGEAN SEA

Greek Government Cedes the Island of Kyra Panagia for That Purpose.

Dr. Herman Esser (center).

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PARIS, France.

ONE day Dr. Herman Esser, noted Dutch surgeon, having observed the destruction of civilian populations and bombings of hospitals during the World War, Italian-Ethiopian conflict and Spanish Civil War, conceived the idea of a free medical state, completely autonomous and divorced from international politics, which might serve as a haven for the maimed and injured from every country on the globe.

Despite the grandiose, idealistic and Utopian sound of this' scheme, Esser is actually carrying it out. He has obtained a country for his state. Greece has agreed to cede to him the island of Kyra Panagia, in the Aegean Sea, for the site of the World Free State of Plastic Surgery. Men of great wealth are backing him, and governments are encouraging him. Patterned on the order of the Red Cross, the state will have, if Dr. Esser's plans materialize, an inviolable neutrality in any conflict and be independent of the jurisdiction or "protective mandate" of any power.

His zeal for such an institution was aroused by the suffering he witnessed performing operations on the crippled in the hospitals of Central Europe during and after the World War. It was fired still more by the bombing of hospitals in Ethiopia and Spain. Even if the aviators and artillerymen do not purposely seek to destroy hospitals in wars from now on, such institutions still will be endangered in ruthless general attacks, he reasoned. Removed to the neutral island of the medical state, patients would be far safer, he thought. They would be out of the combat zone, and there would be no military point in destroying their hospitals.

Such a state, Dr. Esser believed, would perform as great a service in time of peace in aiding and rehabilitating the crippled of all nations. He had a deep conviction that not nearly enough was being done to aid such unfortunates, that the orthopedic branch of surgery was being shamefully neglected, and the average physician did not realize the near-miracles that could be performed to restore the crippled if they received proper attention.

Obstacles to such a scheme were, of course, huge. The doughty physician had to brave ridicule, the red tape of Government offices, and the seemingly hopeless struggle to obtain enough financial backing to cover the tremendous initial outlay. But Dr. Esser's enthusiasm had a contagious quality, and he found statesmen he interviewed surprisingly sympathetic. President Lebrun, Premier Blum, since resigned, former Premier Laval and Edouard Herriot, president of the Chamber of Deputies, in France; Premier Mussolini and King Emanuel of Italy, and King George of Greece all promised their support. So did Dr. Gilbert Murray, Oxford's famed Greek professor. Henri Deterding, head of the Shell Oil Company and the Rockefeller of Europe, promised to contribute a large sum. Pledges of support from other wealthy men followed.

Next, Dr. Esser set about to find a site for his project. It had to be a place definitely set apart to emphasize its autonomy, but not too isolated. It had to be accessible to the medical centers of Europe. He did not want a place with any natural wealth. It would have to be too poor a prize for any nation to fight for. Its climate would have to be mild.

GREECE, the cradle of Western civilization and culture, had an ideal climate, and its Aegean islands fulfilled the other qualifications for Dr. Esser's state. So he petitioned the Greek Government to cede him an island. Not only did the Government receive this surprising request courteously, but it placed the destroyer "Niki" at the physician's disposal so that he could explore the 392 islands. "Here," the Government said in effect, "are the islands. Take your pick." Instead of a sacrifice, the Government took it as an honor. It delegated M. Delandas, one of the directors of the National Bank of Greece, to accompany Dr. Esser as a guide.

After a thorough exploration of hundreds of small islands, the destroyer finally dropped anchor at Kyra Panagia, one of the group known as the Northern Sporades, and Dr. Esser knew he had found his spot.

The landing party found the island almost deserted; its only inhabitants were three shepherd families and some monks of the Order of Mount Athos, who had a monastery and church built 1000 years ago in the reign of the Byzantine Emperor Niciphoros Phocas. About half the size of Staten Island, the island is easily accessible to all parts of Europe, and is 12 hours from Athens.

A committee of leading jurists of Greece has been selected to prepare the legal papers for the ceding of the island. Plans have been made for government by an international body, and a staff of resident and visiting surgeons has been chosen from the best in Europe. The country will have its own currency, telegraph and postal systems and its own passports. Plans are being drawn for hospitals, homes and shops. Rumania, Bulgaria and Italy have notified Dr. Esser they are willing to help him. Preparations are being made to help the crippled psychologically as well as surgically by restoring their confidence and by teaching them trades and professions. The poor would be treated free, others would be charged according to ability to pay.

OF COURSE, even if a medical city does rise out of the meadows of the island, it remains to be seen if the physicians running it will work in harmony, if it will remain free of the selfishness of international politics, if the necessary financial backing will continue. Just how many of the crippled it could care for has not been ascertained, and just how well it could offer a haven to a great number of maimed that would be produced by another European was is problematical. But the 60-year-old physician now head of his own institute for plastic surgery in Paris, is carrying on towards the realization of his dream, confident that it will became a successful humanitarian work.

FOR YOU WHO WANT
More than Just an Eight!

A CHRYSLER IMPERIAL FOR YOUR MONEY!

CHRYSLER'S finest . . . that's the Chrysler Imperial! A car of illustrious history . . . for years it has represented the very peak of Chrysler engineering genius.

Now the great Imperial can be yours at the lowest price in history. It doesn't take $3,000 to buy this car today . . . its price is down in the medium-price field.

LUXURY DEMANDS ROOM! You're entitled to roomy luxury in an eight. And the Imperial gives it to you. A long wheelbase of 121 inches. Extra inches of elbow room, leg room and head room. The widest rear seat of any eight in its price field. Seats made "chair-high" . . . so you ride in comfort . . . not on the back of your neck.

REAL PERFORMANCE THRILLS! The big 110 horsepower Imperial engine is more than just eight powerful cylinders. It's balanced with the precision of a fine watch . . . equipped with a modern, high-compression aluminum head . . . delivers its power with the silky silence made possible by Chrysler's famous Floating Power.

AN EIGHT WITH EVERY SAFETY FACTOR! Why buy any eight with less than Chrysler's famous safety features? Get a Safety All-Steel Body for your money. And get Chrysler's matchless hydraulic brakes. Get both of these as only Chrysler can build them . . . after years and years of pioneering, developing, proving and perfecting!

A RIDE REALLY WORTHY OF AN EIGHT! Your eight cylinder money ought to buy more than an average good ride. In the Chrysler Imperial it does! Chrysler pioneered scientific weight distribution . . . has gone farther with it than any other maker. On top of that, the big, roomy Imperial has Aero Hydraulic Shock Absorbers . . . built like the landing mechanism of a plane. All of this plus independently sprung front wheels.

If you are going to step into the fine car class, get a Chrysler Imperial for your money. Look at all the eights . . . stack them up against the Imperial . . . compare every feature. If you do that, you'll come to just one conclusion: Dollar for dollar, the Chrysler Imperial is the greatest eight of them all.

Easy to buy on convenient terms with the official Commercial Credit Company plan.

The more efficient your furnace, the more satisfactory your warm air system will be. So, why not have the only furnace on earth that gives you all these important features—THE HOLLAND FURNACE.

1 Every casting made of Hollandized cast metal—extremely resistant to injury from excessive high temperature—saves on repairs and replacements.

2 Safety valve (PATENTED): opens at 2 lbs. pressure—prevents possibility of gases accumulating in dangerous quantities.

3 Patented cascade humidifier that really humidifies; allows free circulation around firepot, preventing burned-out castings.

4 Safety guard; coal cannot wedge in draft door to hold it open and make furnace overheat.

5 Draft lid with butterfly valve; deflects incoming air down so it is pre-heated before going through fuel bed.

6 Cone-shaped grate (PATENTED) rolls the fire to outside—holds it against prime heating surface of casting.

6A Slotted firepot makes fire burn on outside against prime heating surface of casting, causing more heat to pass through for same amount of fuel.

And HERE'S WHY HOLLAND CAN GIVE YOU SUCH AN AMAZING Guarantee ON HOME HEATING

SYSTEM SCIENTIFICALLY PLANNED

PLAN CHECKED BY FACTORY EXPERTS

INSTALLED BY HOLLAND'S OWN MEN

FACTORY-TO-YOU GUARANTEE

THE importance of having a furnace as efficient and as economical as the Holland cannot be emphasized too strongly. It is the very heart of your heating system and if it fails in any respect the whole heating system fails. The furnace, however, is only a part of your warm air heating system. Unless every part of the system is correctly designed and engineered for each individual home and properly installed, you cannot have perfect heat in every room.

HOLLAND IS DIRECTLY RESPONSIBLE TO YOU

That's why every Holland Warm Air System is planned and installed by the Holland Furnace Company's own organization. This company definitely guarantees you perfect heat in every room and must be certain you get it: Your entire home, therefore, is carefully surveyed and measured by Holland's own trained heating engineer who draws up a plan based on complete knowledge of your requirements.

YOUR SATISFACTION DOUBLY ASSURED

This plan is then carefully studied by senior engineers at the Holland home office and no installation work can be started until they have approved the local engineer's drawings. Finally, the system is installed letter perfect according to the okayed plans and we then guarantee perfect heat in every room. No wonder owners are unanimous in saying that a Holland Warm Air System is the finest investment in comfort and money saving any family can make!

EASY PAYMENTS—LONG TERM PLAN

Like millions of others, you too will say that a Holland System is not an added expense but a real economy. And you CAN own a Holland. Modern production methods keep prices remarkably low and you can virtually make your own terms. Holland arranges everything—no delays—no red tape. Ask your local Holland engineer to show you the famous Miniature Furnace Demonstration and give you full information about Holland home heating.

ONLY A HOLLAND FURNACE HAS ALL THESE LABOR-SAVING . . FUEL-SAVING . . COMFORT-MAKING FEATURES

The more efficient your furnace, the more satisfactory your warm air system will be. So, why not have the only furnace on earth that gives you all these important features—THE HOLLAND FURNACE.

1 Every casting made of Hollandized cast metal—extremely resistant to injury from excessive high temperature—saves on repairs and replacements.

2 Safety valve (PATENTED): opens at 2 lbs. pressure—prevents possibility of gases accumulating in dangerous quantities.

3 Patented cascade humidifier that really humidifies; allows free circulation around firepot, preventing burned-out castings.

4 Safety guard; coal cannot wedge in draft door to hold it open and make furnace overheat.

5 Draft lid with butterfly valve; deflects incoming air down so it is pre-heated before going through fuel bed.

6 Cone-shaped grate (PATENTED) rolls the fire to outside—holds it against prime heating surface of casting.

6A Slotted firepot makes fire burn on outside against prime heating surface of casting, causing more heat to pass through for same amount of fuel.

7 Dust-proof casing with interliner retains heat in casing, making for most efficient operation.

8 Air accelerator—new-type cold air return boot makes air flow faster and more evenly—saves basement space.

9 Direct-indirect damper lets cold air pass straight into flue when feed door opens—prevents chilling radiator—keeps smoke out of basement.

10 Check door automatically closes when feed door is opened.

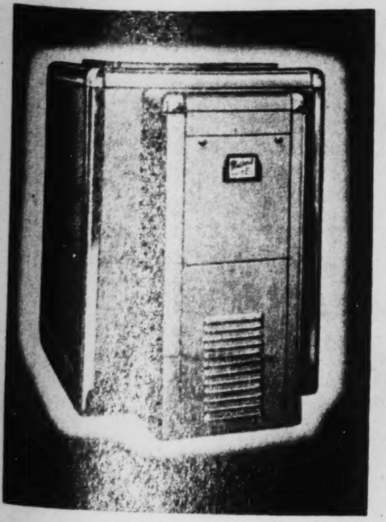
11 Automatic damper control and door opener. Gives all doors and dampers correct setting when feed door is opened.

12 Outside upright shaker; no stooping to shake down ashes or dump fire. Permits clinker removal without disturbing fire bed.

These and numerous other invaluable features have put HOLLAND at the very top of the list for efficiency and durability.

AUTOMATIC HEATING

Holland Furnaces are ideal for all types of automatic heating—with coal, oil or gas. Ask about Holland's own special oil burner and automatic coal burner units.



NEW OIL-FURNACE AIR CONDITIONER

Amazingly low in first cost—yet this new Holland Oil-Furnace Air Conditioner gives you the last word in labor-free comfort at lowest fuel cost. Combines automatic oil-burner, new-type warm air oil-furnace and air conditioning equipment in one compact, extremely handsome unit. Provides complete winter air conditioning plus welcome relief from discomfort in hot summer months. Today's biggest value in home heating and air conditioning. Inquire of your local Holland factory branch for details.

Free FURNACE INSPECTION

If your furnace is defective in any way, it is costing you money for which you get no benefit and it may be a hazard to health and property. Why not learn the truth? The local Holland engineer will gladly make a thorough inspection of your entire heating system and point out defects, if any, that should have attention and will submit an estimate should repairs prove necessary. This service is absolutely without cost or obligation. Call the nearest Holland Factory Branch and ask for FREE inspection.

WE CLEAN ANY HEATING PLANT AND CHIMNEY AND TAKE ALL THE DIRT AWAY

VACUUM-CLEAN YOUR HEATING PLANT . . . Lowest Rates Now

Soot, ashes and carbon deposits lining the inside of your furnace combustion chamber and radiator will act as insulators to deprive you of much useful heat next winter. Holland's giant vacuum cleaner removes such fuel-wasting deposits—takes them entirely out of your home without the slightest dirt or disorder in your rooms. In addition, your chimney, warm air pipes and cold air return pipes will also be thoroughly cleaned from end to end. This will not only save you money next winter but will also insure a cleaner home. Every type of heating system cleaned with equal thoroughness. Call our nearest factory branch for further information. Now is the time to act while special summer rates are still in force.

YOU'RE RIGHT!
CORNS DO COME BACK BIGGER—UGLIER THAN EVER
unless removed Root* and all

THIS NEW WAY LIFTS CORN OUT ROOT AND ALL

THOUSANDS of ex-corn sufferers who used to pare at home with serious danger of infection, causing corns to come back bigger, uglier, more painful than ever are now using the easy Blue-Jay double-action method. Because remember, a corn goes so deep, that with home-paring the corn is only trimmed—the root remains imbedded in the toe. That's why more and more people are using this method that lifts the corn out Root and All.

First the pain stops instantly by removing the pressure, then the entire corn lifts out Root and All in 3 short days (exceptionally stubborn cases may require a second application).

Blue-Jay is a tiny, medicated plaster. Easy to use, invisible. Held snugly in place by Wet-Pruf adhesive. Can't stick to stockings. Doesn't make shoes tight. Get Blue-Jay today. 25¢ for a package of 6

Soap and water alone can never do all these four things until you add Oxol:

1. REMOVE STUBBORN STAINS
2. BLEACH LIKE THE SUN
3. DEODORIZE
4. DISINFECT

YOU CAN'T WASH a stubborn stain out with soap and water. But you can rinse it out . . . easily, gently—if you add a little Oxol!

OXOL CUTS WORK, bleaches like the sun, keeps all your white cottons and linens new-looking! ★ The worst stains . . . coffee, ink, blood, fruit and grease disappear. Oxol makes all white cotton and linens sunny-white and sanitary.

GUARDS HEALTH the whole house over! Add Oxol when you wash dishes, refrigerators, drain-boards, garbage cans, to make them hygienically clean. Use it to take off stains on tile and porcelain. Leave Oxol in the drain pipes, in the toilet, to deodorize and disinfect.

READ THE LABEL—see how many ways Oxol saves time, saves trouble. Ask your grocer for OXOL—the bleach that contains no acids—to take out stains, give you a whiter wash, deodorize . . . and DISINFECT!

SEE AND FEEL THE DIFFERENCE
SMELL THE DIFFERENCE
TASTE THE DIFFERENCE

Note the tenderer crust, the pure, snowy-white color of Wonder Bread. Then—rub your fingers over a slice. Note how smooth, close-knit and slightly moist it is. No holes, lumps or imperfections. Then—compare with any other bread.

Hold a slice of Wonder Bread close to your nose. And note that appetizing "wheaty" fragrance . . . so fresh and clean. Your nose, too, can tell you the remarkable difference between Wonder Bread and any other kind.

Then—taste a bite of Wonder Bread slowly. Let it linger in your mouth . . . so that you get all its delicious full-flavored goodness. Compare the slo-baked flavor the Wonder Bakers have spent a fortune to bring you.

LINCOLN
V·12
ZEPHYR

All of us are adventurers at heart. We have the urge to visit far places, to explore roads off the beaten track. This year, owners of a new car, the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR, are mapping journeys hitherto beyond their reach. They will go farther — in greater comfort and safety!

This new kind of car gets in where roads are roughest and narrowest. There is no sense of strain as you traverse longest stretches, or wind, hour after hour, up and down mountain curves. Steering is sensitive, responsive. Brakes apply evenly, firmly. The car hugs the ground solidly; the center of gravity is low. You are at rest no matter how fast you ride.

Yet it is, most of all, the distinctive "flowing" movement of the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR which takes fatigue out of travel. The unique, all-steel body-and-frame, combined in a single unit, is suspended on long transverse springs. Disagreeable road shocks pass into the springs; the "body" is not affected. You ride "amidships." The car progresses in a gliding, effortless rhythm.

This is the only medium-price car with a V-12 cylinder engine. The engine gives 14 to 18 miles per gallon. And it is, judging by letters, the car with the most enthusiastic owners in motor car history! . . . Why not join up? Lincoln Motor Company, builders of Lincoln and Lincoln-Zephyr V-12 motor cars.

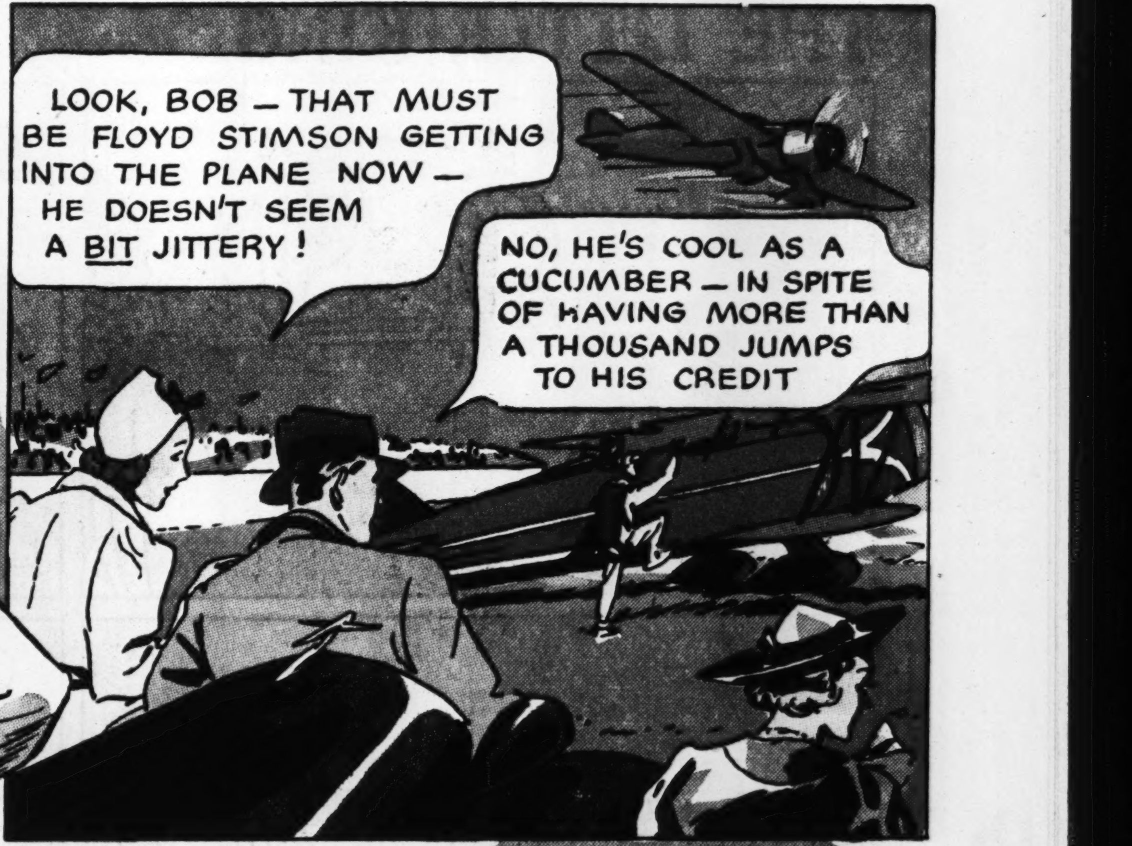
PARACHUTE TESTING IS NO JOB FOR A NERVOUS MAN. DURING ALL THE 10 YEARS FLOYD STIMSON HAS BEEN IN THIS NERVE-RACKING WORK, HE HAS BEEN A STEADY CAMEL SMOKER. "CAMELS NEVER JANGLE MY NERVES," HE SAYS.



LOOK, BOB — THAT MUST BE FLOYD STIMSON GETTING INTO THE PLANE NOW — HE DOESN'T SEEM A BIT JITTERY!
NO, HE'S COOL AS A CUCUMBER — IN SPITE OF HAVING MORE THAN A THOUSAND JUMPS TO HIS CREDIT — AND NOW THE DEATH-DEFYING PARACHUTE JUMP BY — FLOYD STIMSON — FROM A PLANE FLYING UPSIDE DOWN!

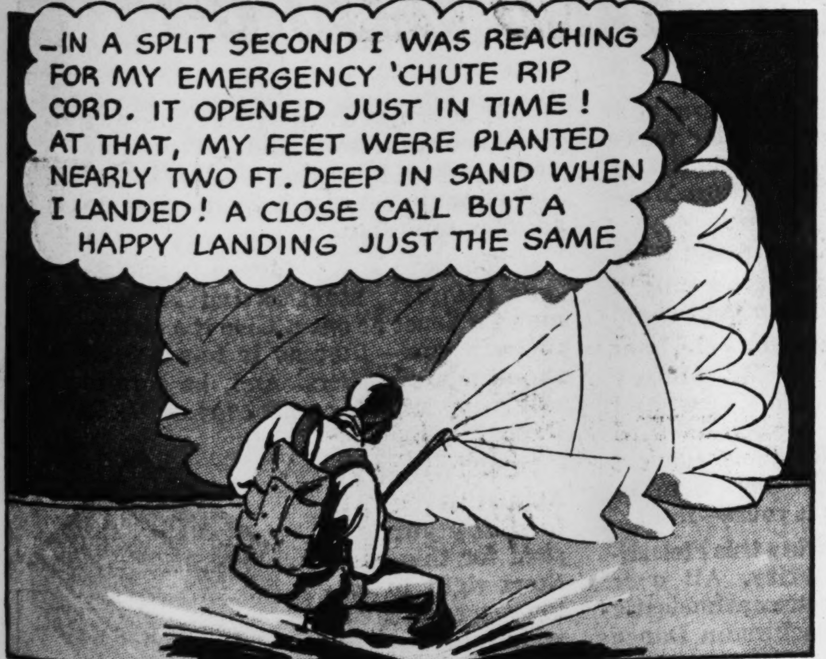
RADIO
HAPPY LANDING, FLOYD!
FLOYD TURNS A COMPLETE SOMERSAULT — PULLS THE RIP CORD — AND THE 'CHUTE BLOOMS
— AND NOW FOR A GOOD MEAL!
I NOTICE YOU GO FOR FOOD IN A BIG WAY, FLOYD — YOUR DIGESTION MUST BE IN SWELL SHAPE
YES, IT IS! AND I ALWAYS ENJOY CAMELS WITH MY MEALS AND AFTER. THEY LEND A HELPING HAND TO MY DIGESTION. ALSO — I'VE FOUND CAMELS DON'T GET ON MY NERVES. FOR INSTANCE — ONE TIME —
I MADE A JUMP FLYING AT 2,000 FEET OVER THE AIRPORT AT OCALA, FLORIDA
I STREAKED DOWN 500 FT. BEFORE I PULLED THE RIP CORD — THE BIG 'CHUTE FAILED TO OPEN — IT WAS NO PLACE FOR JITTERY NERVES

Copyright, 1937, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company



— IN A SPLIT SECOND I WAS REACHING FOR MY EMERGENCY 'CHUTE RIP CORD. IT OPENED JUST IN TIME! AT THAT, MY FEET WERE PLANTED NEARLY TWO FT. DEEP IN SAND WHEN I LANDED! A CLOSE CALL BUT A HAPPY LANDING JUST THE SAME

FOR DIGESTION'S SAKE — SMOKE Camels

SO MANY PEOPLE — LIKE FLOYD STIMSON, "LOU" GEHRIG, AND FRANK BUCK, WHO LEAD INTENSE, VIGOROUS LIVES — CHOOSE CAMELS FOR THEIR CIGARETTE! AT MEALTIMES CAMELS ARE AN AID TO DIGESTION.

AND — THANKS TO CAMELS' MILDNESS — YOU CAN ENJOY STEADY SMOKING. CAMELS DON'T GET ON YOUR NERVES.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS!

CAMELS ARE MADE FROM FINER, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS — TURKISH AND DOMESTIC — THAN ANY OTHER POPULAR BRAND.

LET'S DANCE
By Arthur Murray

ONLY A SHORT TIME LEFT TO GET THIS BOOK OF 20 FREE LESSONS by America's Greatest Dance Instructor—Arthur Murray

Learn to Dance— FREE!

Have more fun this summer!

GET IN THE SWING. Make yourself the kind of a partner everybody wants to dance with. It's fun to learn to dance with this Arthur Murray book—62 pictures, 19 foot-print diagrams make each step easy to follow! Just a few evenings practicing at home and you'll be able to surprise your partners with new steps you couldn't do before!

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES KEEP YOU FROM DANCING

Eat 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast daily to help clear up your skin

● It's no fun to go places when your face is broken out with unsightly pimples. But, many girls and boys have to fight this condition after the start of adolescence, from about 13 to 25 years of age, or even longer.

During these years important glands develop, the entire system undergoes a change. The skin, in particular, gets extra sensitive. Waste poisons in the blood irritate this sensitive skin—then pimples break out.

Fleischmann's Yeast helps to clear up these adolescent pimples by clearing the skin irritants out of your blood. Eat 3 cakes daily, a cake about ½ hour before each meal, plain, or in a little water. Keep on eating it regularly. Watch how it helps your skin get clear and smooth again. Start now!

BEFORE eating Fleischmann's Yeast, I had pimples like these. I couldn't bear to be seen
AFTER eating 3 cakes of yeast daily for a month, my skin was clear again. It's grand how yeast helped me

—says Lenore Beardslee, of Westfield, N. J.

Start Now to Clear Your Skin—Learn the New Steps—GET YOURSELF READY FOR A GRAND VACATION

MAKE yourself a good dancer and be a popular sought-after partner wherever you go this vacation! You can—with the help of this Arthur Murray dance book!

But—you'll have to get busy! This free offer closes soon! There's only a short time left to send in for your copy!

"Let's Dance" is not for sale, you know. It was written by Mr. Murray especially for Fleischmann's Yeast and the only way to get a copy is with Fleischmann Yeast cake labels. Just eat 3 yeast cakes daily for 27 days. Send in the 81 labels. The book is yours—free!

Thousands now following this Fleischmann Way to Popularity. All over America girls and boys are enthusiastic about this special Fleischmann Dance Plan that brings them Arthur Murray's grand book of lessons, and—at the same time—proves how the regular use of Fleischmann's Yeast helps to clear up a broken-out skin.

If you have any tendency to adolescent pimples, start eating Fleischmann's Yeast at once. Give it a chance to help you—just as it has helped thousands of others. And, be sure to save every label for your copy of "Let's Dance."

DON'T DELAY—August 31st is the last day you can send for this book. Start right in eating yeast and saving your labels—NOW!

THEY'RE STILL TALKING

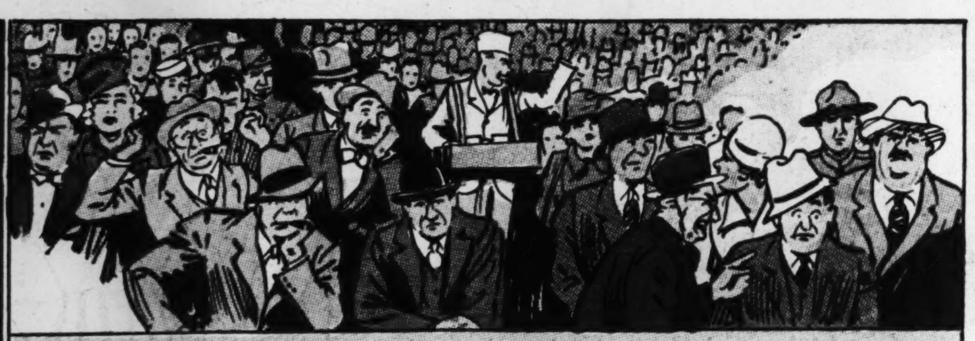
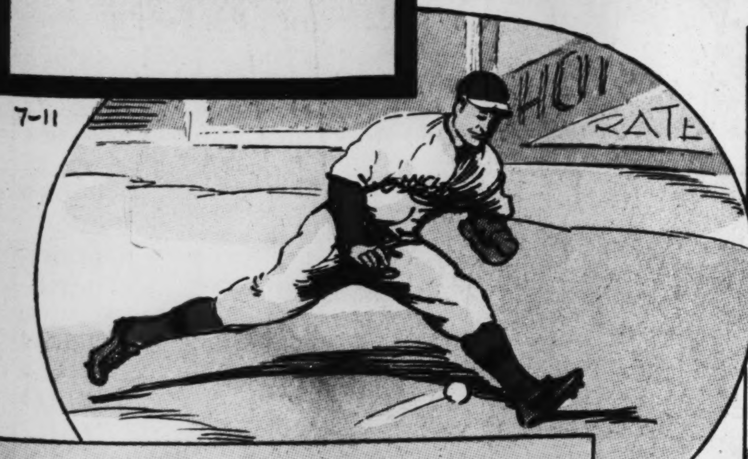
About that Tenth Inning at Cincinnati.

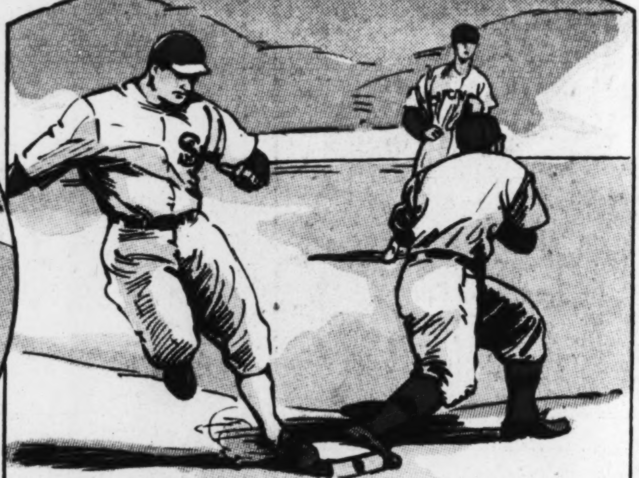


A great partisan crowd sits stunned at the sudden turn in that world series ball qame Oct. 7, 1919.

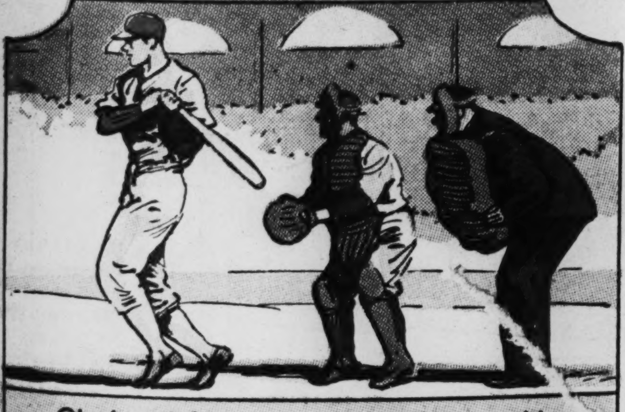
7-11



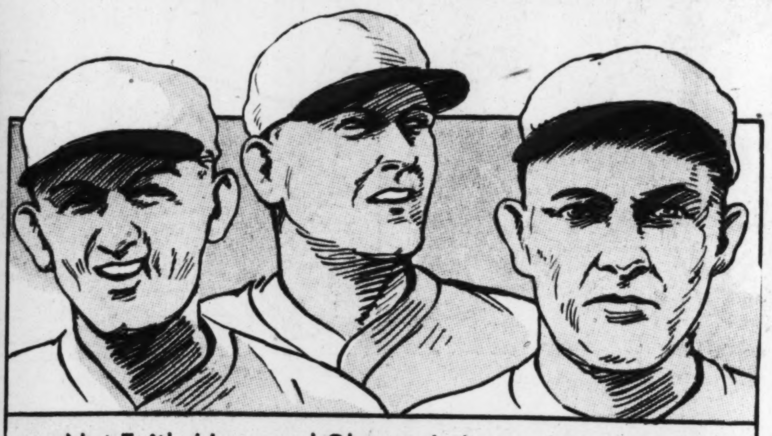
The great Buck Weaver, White Sox third sacker, smashes a double to start the abrupt downfall of the Reds.



The unforgettable Joe Jackson lays down a beautiful bunt and is safe at first. Weaver going to third.



Cincinnati fans roar as the slugging Happy Felsch fans. Up comes Chick Gandil, Sox first-baseman, who hasn't had a sign of a hit. But Gandil rises to the emergency and pounds out a scorching single!

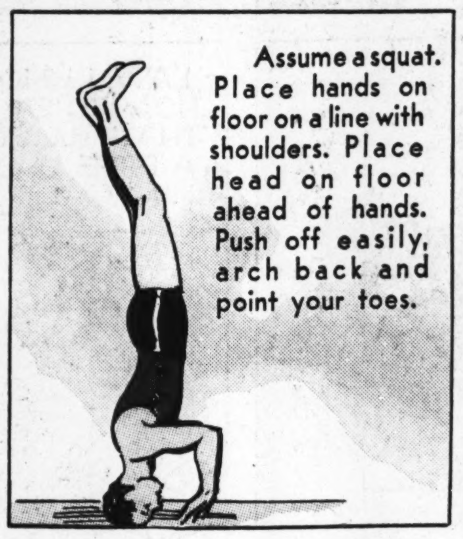


Not Faith, Hope and Charity, ladies and gentlemen, but Weaver, Jackson and Gandil, who pulled that important game out of the fire after the Sox had overcome a four-run Cincinnati lead.

Gymnastics . . . . by NED BRANT

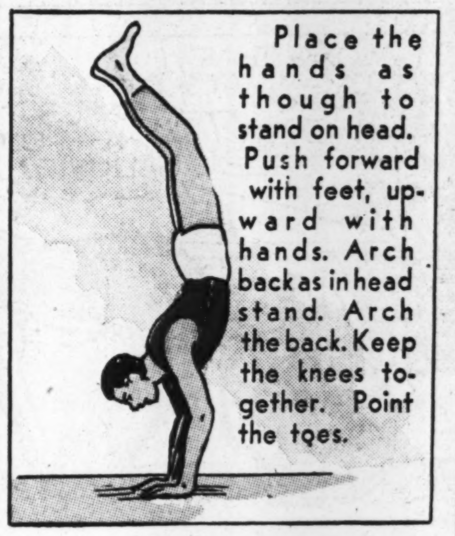
Two Stands and a Spring.

Standing on Head



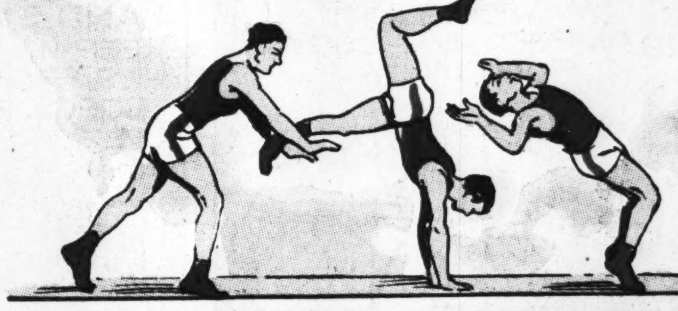
Assume a squat. Place hands on floor on a line with shoulders. Place head on floor ahead of hands. Push off easily, arch back and point your toes.

Standing on Hands



Place the hands as though to stand on head. Push forward with feet, upward with hands. Arch back as in head stand. Arch the back. Keep the knees together. Point the toes.

Forward Handspring



Proceed much in the manner of the stand on hands, except to take a step forward and force the body rapidly through air in order to land on feet.

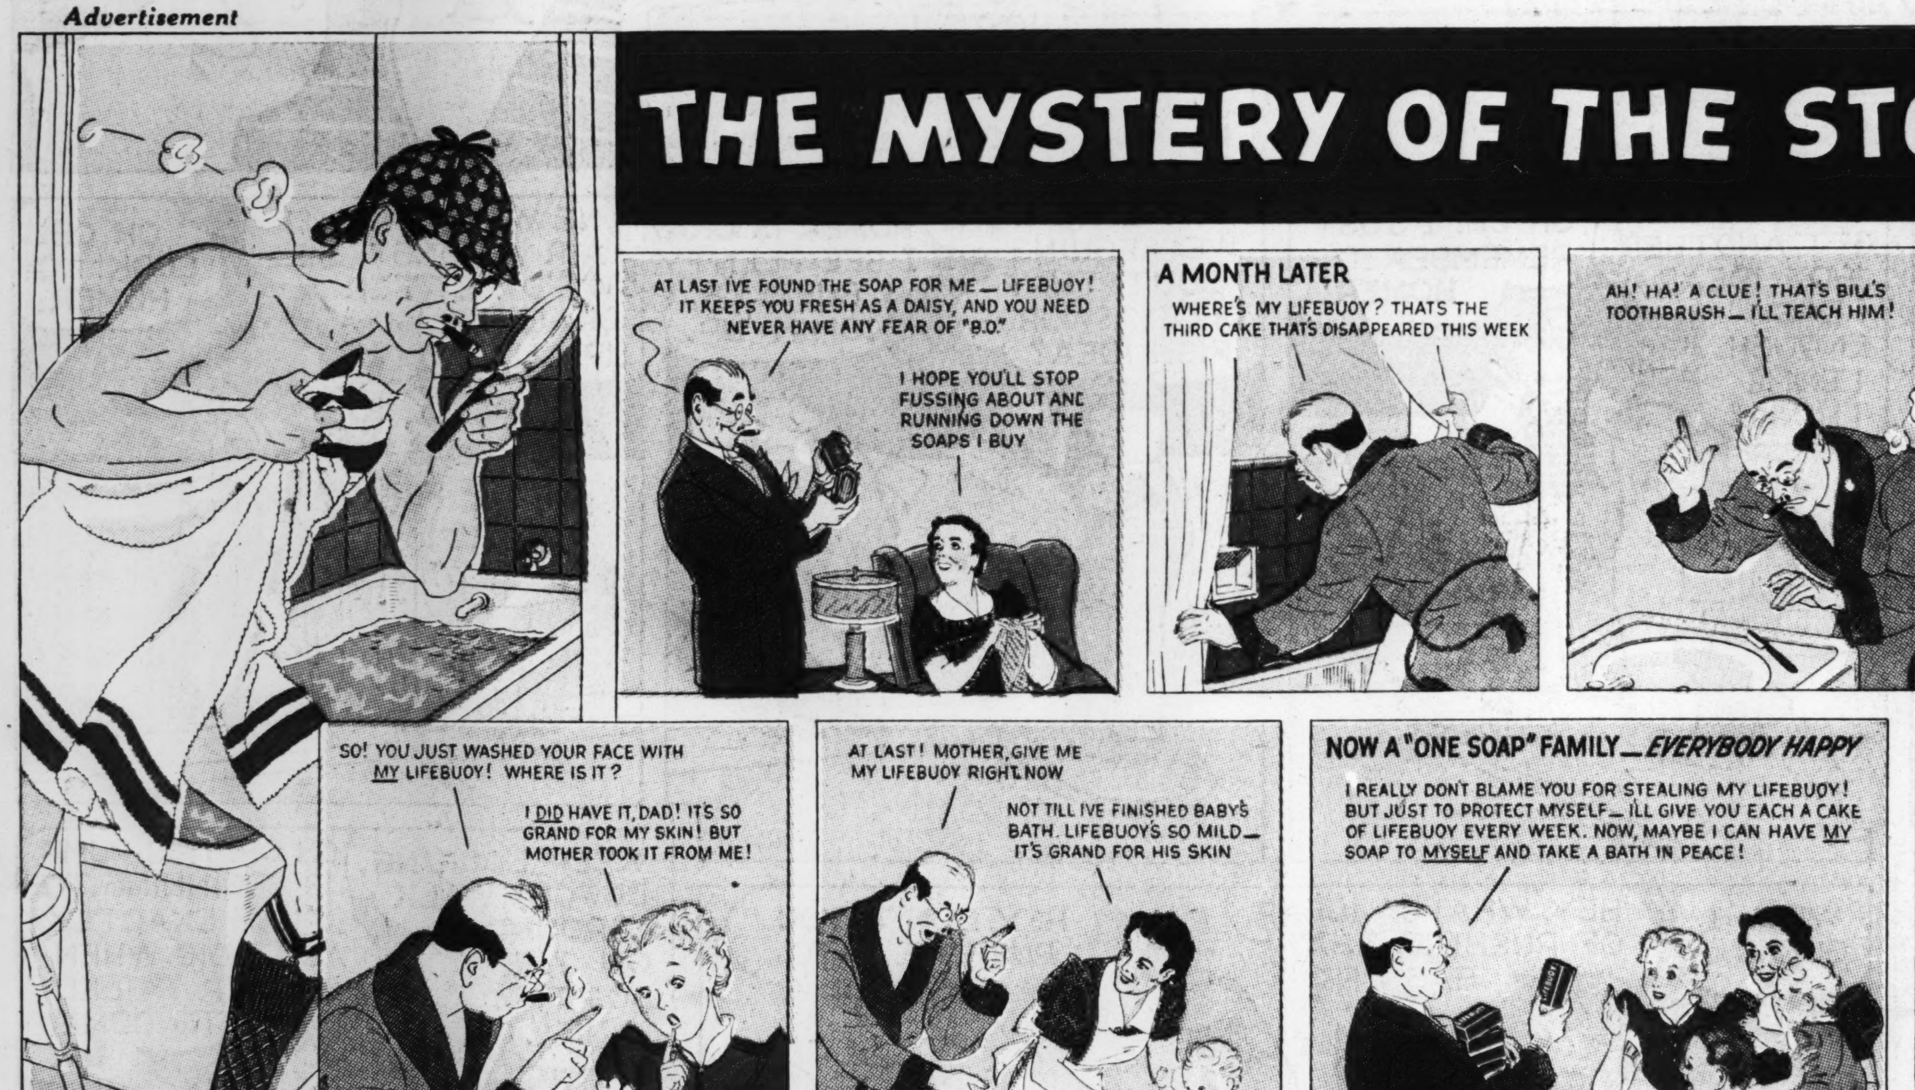
THE MYSTERY OF THE STOLEN SOAP



AT LAST I'VE FOUND THE SOAP FOR ME — LIFEBUOY! IT KEEPS YOU FRESH AS A DAISY, AND YOU NEED NEVER HAVE ANY FEAR OF "B.O."
I HOPE YOU'LL STOP FUSSING ABOUT AND RUNNING DOWN THE SOAPS I BUY
A MONTH LATER
WHERE'S MY LIFEBUOY? THATS THE THIRD CAKE THATS DISAPPEARED THIS WEEK
AH! HA! A CLUE! THAT'S BILL'S TOOTHBRUSH — I'LL TEACH HIM!
SO! YOU JUST WASHED YOUR FACE WITH MY LIFEBUOY! WHERE IS IT?
I DID HAVE IT, DAD! IT'S SO GRAND FOR MY SKIN! BUT MOTHER TOOK IT FROM ME!
AT LAST! MOTHER, GIVE ME MY LIFEBUOY RIGHT NOW
NOT TILL I'VE FINISHED BABY'S BATH. LIFEBUOY'S SO MILD — IT'S GRAND FOR HIS SKIN
NOW A "ONE SOAP" FAMILY — EVERYBODY HAPPY
I REALLY DON'T BLAME YOU FOR STEALING MY LIFEBUOY! BUT JUST TO PROTECT MYSELF — I'LL GIVE YOU EACH A CAKE OF LIFEBUOY EVERY WEEK. NOW, MAYBE I CAN HAVE MY SOAP TO MYSELF AND TAKE A BATH IN PEACE!

SO YOU TOOK MY SOAP. CANT I HAVE ANYTHING IN THIS HOUSE? WHERE IS IT?
AW, DAD, I ONLY BORROWED IT. BECAUSE IT MAKES SUCH SWELL LATHER. BUT SIS TOOK IT FROM ME

Why women, too, prefer Lifebuoy!

Do you know that more American women — as well as men and children — use Lifebuoy for the bath than any other soap? It's a fact — revealed when 8 leading magazines questioned 120,000 women. And millions of American women use Lifebuoy for their complexions, too. And wisely — for the same special purifying ingredient in the lather that stops "B. O." makes the soap's action milder . . . Actual tests on all types of skin — dry, oily, medium — prove Lifebuoy is over 20% milder than many so-called "beauty soaps" and "baby soaps." But you try Lifebuoy! See how its purifying lather freshens, clears, helps refine the texture of your skin! Start today — Use Lifebuoy faithfully, regularly!

NEW 1937 RINSO BETTER THAN EVER FOR WASHERS
I MUST TRY THE NEW RINSO
WELL — I SEE YOU'RE USING RINSO. IS IT AS GOOD AS THEY SAY IT IS?
IT'S BETTER! SEE FOR YOURSELF HOW WONDERFUL THE SUDS ARE GLORY BE! THESE ARE THE RICHEST SUDS I'VE EVER SEEN AND WAIT TILL YOU SEE HOW LONG THEY STAND UP — EVEN IN THIS HARD WATER LATER
— BUT HERE'S THE REAL REASON WHY I'M CRAZY ABOUT THE NEW 1937 RINSO. IT WASHES CLOTHES WHITE AS SNOW AND IT'S PERFECTLY SAFE FOR COLORS

Recommended by makers of 33 famous washers

"Use the New 1937 Rinso," say the makers of 33 washing machines, "for safety and for whiter, brighter clothes."

And that goes for tub washing, too! Try the New Rinso — and see! It gives richer, longer-lasting suds that soak clothes at least 5 shades whiter than ordinary soaps. And it gets colors bright and gay as new. Rinso's faster-acting suds loosen dirt in as little as 10 minutes — yet it's perfectly safe even for overnight soaking. Clothes last 2 or 3 times longer washed this safe "no-scrub" way. You'll like Rinso for dishes and all cleaning. Dishes, pots and pans come sparkling clean without a trace of greasy film on them. Rinso is easy as ever on hands; keeps them smooth, white and lovely. You'll find Rinso is a mighty economical soap to use; that's because a little goes a long, long way. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Get the BIG household package.

IT'S ABOUT 80 FEET DEEP HERE! —GIVES ME TH' JITTERS TO THINK OF BEING DOWN AT TH' BOTTOM!
THAT REMINDS ME, ROSCOE, OF AN EXPERIENCE I ONCE HAD IN 150 FATHOMS — HAW-
IT WAS OFF THE COAST OF JAVA AND I WAS DOWN SEARCHING THE HULK OF AN OLD DUTCH GALLEON FOR GOLD, WHEN SUDDENLY, A GIANT OCTOPUS CAME TOWARD ME —
IN AN INSTANT IT WAS UPON ME AND ENTWINED ITS TENTACLES ABOUT MY BODY —
WITH ONE ARM FREE, I UNSCREWED THE AIR-HOSE AND PUT IT IN THE UGLY BRUTE'S MOUTH -
PEARL-DIVING HAD TAUGHT ME HOW TO HOLD MY BREATH FOR 3 MINUTES, DURING WHICH TIME THE OCTOPUS WAS INFLATED TO A FAIR-SIZED BALLOON —
YOU CAN FANCY THE CREW'S AMAZEMENT WHEN THAT STRANGE SIGHT POPPED UP TO THE SURFACE! —THEY SENSED THE SITUATION AND SOON RESCUED ME! —

LOYAL FLYERS BOMB REBEL LINES WEST OF MADRID

One of Heaviest Attacks of War Made by Big Government Air Fleet — Counter-Attack Begun by Insurgent Planes.

LEFTISTS REPORT FRESH ADVANCE

Announce Capture of Villanueva del Pardillo, 15 Miles From Capital—900 Prisoners Are Said to Have Been Taken.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, July 12.—A large Spanish Government air fleet flew over insurgent lines west of Madrid today in one of the heaviest bombing raids of the Spanish civil war.

Insurgent aircraft countered with attacks on Government positions, but the loyalist troops held their gains.

Before dawn, incendiary bombs had traced out the ground positions for bombing.

The Government Defense Ministry announced Gen. Jose Miaja's troops captured Villanueva del Pardillo, 15 miles west of Madrid, and took 900 prisoners, including seven officers.

The northern edge of the insurgent triangle, which has its bases roughly at Aranjuez 25 miles south and Escorial to the northwest and its apex at Madrid, is regarded by military experts here as in a precarious position.

A Government wedge has been driven into the heart of the triangle to Brunete in the direction of Navalcarneo, insurgent supply base.

From the south in the direction of Sesena and from the Usera district outside the triangle's southern edge the Government has directed strong attacks, forcing the insurgents to keep their lines heavily manned instead of being able to send men as reinforcements to the threatened northern lines.

In addition to the 900 prisoners, the Defense Ministry declared numerous anti-tank guns, machine guns, and a radio station were taken when Villanueva del Pardillo fell. The key villages of Quijorna and Villanueva de la Canada have been said also to be in Government hands.

The Government position now is a rough quadrilateral threatening Navalcarnero to the south and the Extremadura road to the north with the insurgents in Las Rozas and Majadahonda, on the Escorial highway, in danger of being cut off from the principal insurgent forces.

While the battle continues west of the capital, an insurgent garrison still remains in the Casa de Campo region on Madrid's western outskirts.

Observers said the striking part of the new offensive aimed to lift the siege of Madrid has been the intensive aerial attacks made by the Government. American and Canadian volunteers were said to have played important roles in the activity.

INSURGENTS ADMIT LOSS NEAR MADRID

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, French - Spanish Frontier, July 12.—Official insurgent sources today admitted the Government offensive west of Madrid had made the first changes in battle lines there since February by carving out a strategic piece of insurgent territory south of Escorial.

The admission came in a statement by insurgents: "We have established a powerful line of fire against the enemy drive." Positions on the new line were given as Villanueva del Pardillo, Villafranca del Castillo, Villanueva de la Canada and Brunete, which are in Government hands.

A Spanish Government spokesman at Bayonne, France, said insurgents were shifting many troops from the northern front to the Brunete line. Insurgent planes and tanks also were headed southward, he declared.

The Basque delegation at Bayonne reported Government forces still held the town of Banos de Carranza, where the Basque Government had its last headquarters. The delegation said insurgents tried to bomb the town yesterday but were turned back by airplanes
